A contemporary says: "Several Ontario schools didn't open at the first of the month. The reason is they didn't offer salaries large enough to induce teachers to accept positions with them. These schools deserve to be closed until the rate payers are prepared to whack up a decent income for the teachers. If any class deserves to be paid well it is the men and women who have the education of the boys and girls of the country in their charge. This is almost the situation in Lindsay, and the question of increase in the salary will likely come up before the Board of Education at their next meeting.

That Big Maskalogue. In another column we stated that Master "Normie" McConnell had captured five maskalongs in Sturgeon lake, the largest weighing 20 lbs. It will fill the hearts of Fish and Game Association members with joy when they learn that Wednesday we were visited on by Fishery Officer Bradshaw, and the editor was closely questioned as to the veracity of the item. It was pointed out that Master McConnell had broken the law by catching five fish, but when we explained that he had carelessly omitted giving the names of three of the same place, Inspector Bradshaw admitted that he had no grounds for interference. The incident proves two things:—that the Inspector is zealous in the discharge of his duty, and that he is a careful reader of The Evening Post.

COMMUNICATIONS.

FIREMEN'S FUND. (To the Editor of The Post) Sir.—I notice that you have been lending the use of your columns to assist in this fund. This is indeed very laudable, but did it ever occur to you that the firemen are paying too dear for their whistle? I venture the assertion that every man who is taking an advertisement in the scheme is doing so with the sole object of adding the firemen, and not from any expected assistance to their business from the advertising. I wonder if they ever thought to ask what proportion of this money is going to the benefit of the firemen? I may be in error, but venture the statement that fifty, if not seventy-five per cent of their money goes into the pocket of the outside promoter of this philanthropic scheme who can have no interest in our firemen.

Versly Barnum was right. Instead of commending this scheme, if the Mayor had presented a list to our business men and others, (because every citizen is interested as well as our business men) I feel confident that the fund would have a much larger sum at its disposal than there will be after the present scheme has turned in its balance.

Yours, etc. H. J. L. Lindsay, Sept. 28th.

Keeping Quiet. The labors of the professional joke-smiths serve two good ends. They make the people laugh—sometimes—and sometimes they suggest a profitable train of thought. Here is an example that many a storekeeper whose business is not so strenuous as it might be may ponder to advantage.

Tommy—Can we play at keeping it shop in here, mamma?

Mamma—(BVO has a headache)—Certainly, but you must be very quiet, very quiet.

Tommy—Well, we'll pretend we don't advertise.

To advertise in the shop use the daily newspaper. Advertise in The Post.

Young Chap, is This You? Every city has some young fellows that are getting themselves in shape to spend a useless life. They skip school as often as possible and leave it for good as soon as they can. They do not care to work and are more or less of a burden to their parents. It is a pity there is no law compelling them to do something. The young man who drops out of school early in the race, smokes cigars, loaf around the street corners and runs with toughs, says the St. Catharines Star Journal, is ready to enter life's contests away in the rear. He has cut down his earning capacity to a small quantity. He will be badly handicapped and the chances are he will be beaten in the race of business and of wage earning. No business man wants an employe of this sort and he is never likely to be either well off or live to be a good old age. If he were married his wife would have to take in washing to keep him, and he is most likely to fill a dishonored grave.
