J. W. Wakely,

Opposite the Post Office

Still busy at the new store. Thanks to our many customers and friends, but still we should be when you think of our large stock of $18,000 worth being bought altogether. Naturally the wholesalers were anxious to secure our opening order and offered us in many cases prices as low as that of the manufacturers, which we can afford to sell you at wholesalers' prices and still have our profit. (We are not giving things away nor yet are we selling below cost as no man can afford to do that.) And the fact that we have no old stock should be a drawing card to you, as any person spending their money don't like to be shown stocks worn, old looking or out of style, and that's what we haven't got, as you already know we have only been in business for five weeks. Now if new stylish and reasonable merchandise is any attraction to you we will be pleased to have you call and see for yourself that our prices are right—if not don't buy.

ONTARIO BANK AFFAIRS.

Hampering the Bank of Montreal. Montreal Star, 16th Oct. Considerable surprise is manifested in financial circles at the manner in which some of the banks are endeavoring to get the Ontario Bank's managers and business.

The Bank of Montreal officials here are not disposed to discuss the matter, but Mr. Braithwaite, the Toronto manager, has made a satirical reference to the way some of the other banks are "not" helping the Bank of Montreal.

The subject was discussed at some length on the street to-day, and the consensus of opinion seemed to be that, while the banks had a perfect right to open where and when they pleased, it was a breach of banking etiquette to hamper the Bank of Montreal in its efforts to liquidate the Ontario business.

One broken said: "The Bank of Montreal has done Canada a signal service by stepping into the breach so promptly, and I feel disappointed to think that any other bank would snatch away the managers of the Ontario branch at this time, when their extensive local experience would have been of the greatest service. Banking competition these days seems to be extending beyond the bounds of reason."

FREE MAGAZINE FOR THE BLIND.

New York Lady to Provide one for People Who Can Read by Touch.

New York, Oct. 22.—Announcement was made to-day that Mrs. William Ziegler, widow of the patron of Arctic explorers, had decided to publish a monthly magazine for the blind. It will be printed in raised characters, which the afflicted ones will be able to read by touch, and will be distributed without cost to all the sightless ones in the United States so far as they can be found. Mrs. Ziegler's enterprise will be the first periodical to enter its peculiar field.

Walter G. Holmes, who has been interested in work for the blind, and through whom Mrs. Ziegler has had attention called to her need for printing literature for their benefit, will put the magazine under way. He has engaged offices at 1031 Broadway and is anxious that knowledge of the magazine shall be brought to the attention of all blind persons, so that they may send their names and addresses to him. They should say what type they read, New York point or "Braille," as the magazine will be printed in both.

Mrs. Ziegler's magazine will contain stories of the news of the day, fiction, special articles, and letters to the editor, and is especially intended for industrial departments, wherein blind people may find information as to the lines of work in which they are engaged, and a correspondence department.

TEACHERS OF GREY COUNTY

Think the Government Should do Something for Urban Teachers.

At the annual meeting of the West Grey Teachers' Association held at Owen Sound on the 16th and 17th inst, the following resolution was unanimously adopted, on motion of T. A. Reid, Principal of Owen Sound Public Schools:

"That the teachers of West Grey in convention assembled hereby express their appreciation of the efforts of the Ontario Government and Provincial Parliament which have in view the greater stability of the teaching profession, the improvement of the position of the Public School teachers of the Province; That this Association respectfully begs to submit, however, that existing evils cannot be remedied by the legislation of last session, which fixed the various minimum salaries to be paid by rural schools; that the legislation should be extended to include urban as well as rural schools, which minimum salaries adapted to various classes of schools and to the positions of Principals, Head-masters and assistants respectively; and further, that independent boards of grading and special grants should be made to secure liberal salaries, above the minimum; that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Minister of Education to the Ontario Educational Association, to the various teachers' associations of the Province, and to the leading daily papers."

NOT TALL ENOUGH.

(London Tid Bits.)

Just at the time when vague reports were beginning to creep abroad that Germany was meditating fresh extensions of her frontier at the expense of Holland, a Dutch official of high rank happened to be visiting the court of Berlin, and among other specialties got up to amuse him a review was organized at Potsdam.

"What does your excellency think of our soldiers?" asked Prince Bismarck, as one of the regiments came marching past in admirable order. "They look as if they know how to fight," replied the visitor gravely, "but they are not quite tall enough."

The Prince looked rather surprised, but made no answer, and, as several other regiments filed past in succession, but the Dutchman's verdict upon each was the same: "Not tall enough."

At length the grenadiers of the guard made their appearance; a magnificent body of veterans, big and stalwart enough to have satisfied the giant-loving father of Frederick the Great; but the inextinguishable critic merely said, "Fine soldiers, but not tall enough."

Then Prince Bismarck rejoined, "These are the finest men in our whole army; may I ask what your excellency is pleased to mean by saying that they are not tall enough?" The Dutchman looked him full in the face and replied with significant emphasis, "I mean that we can load our country twelve feet deep."

ARE YOU SUPERSTITIOUS?

The Unlucky Thirteenth.

A writer in an exchange says: Last Friday you will note the day—I received a card from an old young friend a card, at the top of which was printed a copy of the wedding notice, and followed by the following: "To our friends and relatives, Greeting; The thirteenth anniversary of the above ceremony, which was performed on Friday and the thirteenth of the month, finds the principals in good health and cheerful spirits. Here's wishing you one and all at least, another thirteen years of health and happiness and freedom from the 'unlucky thirteen' bugaboo". To some this may look like flying in the face of Providence—tempting fate, but it may be only the application of common sense to the affairs of life. Here's a couple, I imagine, who apparently do not bother themselves about portents and omens, but have no use for a rabbi's foot, would rather walk under than go round a ladder, would without hesitation make thirteen at the table, and do not care whether they see the new moon over their right shoulder. They do not doubt put on the first boot in the morning that comes handiest, and never think of turning back when a black cat crosses their path on their way to church. They do not jump to the conclusion that there is going to be trouble in the family because somebody happens to spill salt; nor do they go into hysterics because somebody else in the house breaks a looking glass. With them Friday is as good as any other day, and they believe there is luck in odd numbers. They are healthy, happy, prosperous and contented, and their strong common sense saves them from all sorts of superstitious old wives' fables. Sensible couple!

CHEESEMEN CONDEMN TURNIPS.

Farmers Should Not Feed Them to Their Cows—Quality of Cheese is Lowered.

The Peterborough Cheese Board is hot-foot after the farmers who are feeding turnips to their cows and sending their milk to cheese factories. "Down with these turnips" is the slogan of the board and much as the king may long for the strongly scented roots they will have to go without them. And, by the way, its just that scent that is causing all the trouble.

The matter was brought up by Mr. Riddell at Wednesday morning's meeting of the cheese board. He referred to the injurious effect that feeding of turnips had on the cheese manufactured, and hoped that the farmers would be strongly urged to stamp out the evil entirely. Turnip cheese did not bring as high a price as the quality was not so good and buyers did not care to buy them.

Other members of the board also expressed the opinion that the feeding of turnips was strongly to be condemned and hoped that the dairymen of the Peterboro district would not lower the standard of their cheese by feeding turnips to their cows.—Review.

The Irony of Fate.

(Montreal Star.)

The irony of fate is well illustrated in recent banking developments. The Ontario Bank was incorporated in 1857 with the express purpose, as the late Senator Simpson put it, of "closing the Bank of Montreal out of Ontario."

Mr. Simpson came from Bowmanville, and at one time was employed by the Bank of Montreal. He left the bank under circumstances that made him indignant, and he made his threat to an old Montrealer to whom he broached the subject of starting a bank to be called the Ontario.

Mr. Simpson achieved some success at the beginning of his undertaking, and after making some headway in Ontario he invaded Montreal with a flourish of trumpets. The local branch also did well under the management of Hon. Henry Starnes.

Old Montrealers will remember that Mr. Starnes lived over the bank building, which occupied the site where the Royal Insurance is now. The bank in those days had a local Board of Directors composed of four prominent Montrealers.

And it did well, but it didn't chase the Bank of Montreal out of Ontario.

The Higher Graces of Life.

(Westminster Review.)

When the refinements of art, music and culture generally are lacking in a community, and thought is concentrated on what are regarded as the "practical" affairs of life, the tastes of the lower classes will inevitably run toward low sports and vulgar pleasures. Even the few who keep themselves from such, live incomplete and colorless lives. In the "hurry and blindness of civilization" the higher graces and pleasures of life are regarded as if no account, or as luxuries that may be sought after when the bodily needs and appetites have been satisfied, but it is just these things that raise mankind above the level of the animal. When we have food, clothing and shelter we have only got the animal's share of life, and our working population are thought to have got all they have a right to ask for when these are secured to them; but the higher needs of the soul are of even a more essential and practical nature than the requirements of the body, for they go to mould the character, and make life worth living. Anything that leads to divert the mind from the sordid necessities of life is good for a man or community; everything that brightens existence, even in its outward aspect, as color, light, music, art, harmonious movement, or the fall of sparkling water, is elevating in its tendency.

UNITED STEEL CO'S NEW CITY.

Making a City to Order.

Twenty miles southeast of Chicago a new, sleepy river winds its marshy course and empties into Lake Michigan, writes Dewey Sheldon Beebe, in Technical World Magazine for August. The straggling oaks and stunted bushes which somehow keep alive in the shifting sand only serve to emphasize the barren waste. Cacti, natives of southern deserts, here flourish in abundance. Hot winds blow the sand into ever-changing mounds, and the lake lies hot and steaming in the glaring sun. The river—Grand Calumet, so-called—is but a tiny stream, so stagnant in places that the current and the marsh can hardly be distinguished.

Three years hence the traveler along these shores will be greeted by the busy clatter of a large city. The whole face of nature has been changed. The outline of the coast is now symmetrical. As he approaches the river, a great harbor masts his gaze. The largest steamers can now navigate the river, and an ideal haven is afforded the huge freighters which ply between Lake Superior and this new city. A confusion of craning metallic noses and the shouts of men turns the traveler's attention toward the sand hills, where great clouds of heavy smoke, hanging above leaping flames and glaring furnaces, betray the reason for this sudden transformation from desert quiet to the humming industry. The largest steel mills in the world here give employment to 15,000 workmen. Two miles and belching furnaces. The magnitude of the great plant is overwhelming.

That this transformation shall take place has been decreed by the action of the U. S. Steel Corporation. To give weight to their plan, they have bought 6,000 acres of land on the Grand Calumet River, drawn up the plans for the new steel plant and city, and have started the project of all time, by voting $75,000,000 for the enterprise.

RICHEST ORE OF MODERN TIMES.

Laurentian Strike the Greatest in the History of Canadian Mining.

The special correspondent of the Wabigoon Star at Gold Rock reports that at the Laurentian the men are still working in the same phenomenally rich ore at the 85-foot level and now that the excitement has somewhat abated and the deposit can be judged in a cool and collected manner, the consensus of opinion is that without much risk of contradiction this ore shaft is the richest that has ever been struck during modern times and that there is no record in the history of ancient mining that describes any deposit that contains the amount of gold in the same area in one continuous seam. It is known that it extends in depth from about 80 feet to the 200 foot level, at least. Mr. Nickerson has certainly an enviable duty ahead of him in organizing and supervising the developing of this unique property, and with the experience he has had, there is no doubt the mining world will now shortly see what they have been for months patiently waiting for—the energetic and practical opening up of the Laurentian mine.

The gentleman who will have charge of the future development of that valuable mining property, the Laurentian, is R. B. Nickerson, M. E. of California. Mr. Nickerson has had a varied experience among western American mines and was for six years general manager of the Confidence mine in California. He left Wabigoon for the scene of his new duties on Tuesday morning. In California, Mr. Nickerson had heard somewhat of the fame of the Laurentian, and expects to become associated with a proposition untried on the continent.

STURGEON PT. 'PHONE SERVICE.

Season is Too Short—Revenue Might be Increased.

The Post will charge the Bell Telephone Co. one cent for the following hint whereby the management may earn the thanks of a community and at the same time add something to the revenue already enjoyed from Sturgeon Point.

The Point service ends when Mrs. Wakely closes her grocery, and that is when the daily mail service ends—on Oct. 1st. Cottagers occasionally remain a couple of weeks longer, and the Point is visited by hundreds of duck hunters and others between the 1st of October and the close of navigating. Many of these would like to telephone to friends, but are unable to do so, and occasionally this inability leads up to unpleasant results, as in the case of the break-down of a yacht, when those on board are unable to assuage the anxiety of loved ones at home. Then the country folk deserve consideration.

We would suggest that, when Mrs. Wakely's exchange closes, a nickel-in-the-slot machine be placed in the residence of Mr. Robt. Graham, Jr., east of Mr. J. M. Knowlson's cottage. The planting of one pole would do the trick. Mr. Graham lives at the Point all winter, and we feel confident the revenue would repay the Company.

Intermittent Publicity. "Every new and then advertising brings one-in-a-while results," observes a philosophic writer in "Ad. Sense." The example of the most successful users of publicity is a lesson in itself. They do not waste their ammunition in desultory firing. Every day they blaze a volley through the newspapers, and every volume counts. It doesn't depend upon chance shots. The business that is advertised occasionally has about as much opportunity for healthy growth as a child would if fed occasionally. Advertise in the Post.
