CHASE AFTER C. A. S. BOY WHO LEFT HIS FOSTER HOME.

Was Committed to Mimico Industrial School Last Week.

From Monday's Evening Post.

A ward of Mr. J. J. Kelso, Supt. of the Neglected, Homeless and Dependent Children of the Province of Ontario, was placed some years ago in a foster home with a highly respected and well-to-do family living near Resboro. Hopes had been entertained all along of his being a good and useful boy until lately, when he most regrettable manner. His guardians returned him to those who had control of him, and when reprimanded he appeared penitent and willing to return to his former home if given the opportunity. He was taken back and did well for a short time, when he again sneaked away. The matter was at once reported to Mr. Kelso, who advised that he be reclaimed and taken before the Magistrate, and committed to the Victoria Industrial School at Mimico, filling in Sault Ste. Marie as the municipality for his maintenance.

These instructions were on Thursday last carried out to the very letter. Early in the morning of the 22nd, two persons, with a fleet-footed liver horse, set out in search of the missing boy who was supposed to be with a Mr. Jackson, about seven miles south-east of Omamee. On arriving at the home of Mr. Jackson the party learned that the boy, who had been there two weeks, had received one dollar for his service and was told on Saturday morning to leave, which he did. The family had heard that the boy had gone to a Mr. Carow, some distance away. On going to Mr. Carow it was found that the boy had been there a short time and left on Wednesday morning of the 22nd. Arriving at Mr. Carow's next, he stayed for dinner and then left to look for employment. The men who were chopping in the woods nearby when these men were asked about the boy they had not SEEN OR HEARD OF HIM.

As all traces of the boy seemed to be lost in this locality the searchers decided to go to another section of country, where there were farmers who might be in need of help. After a rapid drive on rough and smooth roads through the hills and dunes of Emily, through the fields when necessary, somewhat like a steepchase in the old country — and by this way, a hunt was soon on an elevation standing with his gun ready waiting for the bound to bring up a fox—several families were interviewed without avail until the house of a Mr. Morton was reached, and there the welcome news were received that the boy had slept there on Wednesday night, had breakfast and was only a little while gone to a farmer named Hall, with whom he had hired in the morning. In a very short time the search party reached the home of Mr. Hall, and when the driver went in to enquire he was told that the boy was there, but as soon as the boy was told that he was wanted in Lindsay he was not there for a little while. Then the search began in earnest — the lad, who had not yet been there two hours, had escaped to the outbuildings, and was not to be found.

Very soon, however, he was dragged from his hiding place in the strawstack by Driver Lloyd and taken back to Omamee at mid-day. He was then taken to Lindsay, where he immediately before County J. M. McSweeney, who heard the case and committed the youthful offender to the Industrial School. As a speedy delivery of the prisoner was necessary the earliest out-going train was boarded and the undertaking completed in the brief space of 12 hours' time, while the distance of over 100 miles was travelled in doing so.

PULPIT NOTICES.

Lindsay Churches Could Also Remedy. Central Methodist church, Woodstock, is about to do away with pulpit announcements on Sundays, publishing a calendar instead. This plan was adopted in Knox Presbyterian church, Stratford, some time ago. It is in use in some churches in Hamilton and other cities. It ought to be extended. It not infrequently happens that, in addition to the regular announcements of a church, several printed or written notices are sent in, the reading and emphasizing of the whole often taking up as much time as the opening prayer. It is no wonder that hearers are sometimes inattentive to sermons after being requested to bear in mind to many announcements for the week. A printed calendar, a copy of which can be taken home by each family or person, shortens the meeting requirements, shortens the service, and enables the people to concentrate their minds on the great objects for which they should attend church, worship and instruction. Turning the pulpit into a bulletin board where there are daily newspapers and printing offices is very much out of date and ought to be relegated to oblivion.

CHASE AFTER C. A. S. BOY WHO LEFT HIS FOSTER HOME.

Was Committed to Mimico Industrial School Last Week.

From Monday's Evening Post.

A ward of Mr. J. J. Kelso, Supt. of the Neglected, Homeless and Dependent Children of the Province of Ontario, was placed some years ago in a foster home with a highly respected and well-to-do family living near Resboro. Hopes had been entertained all along of his being a good and useful boy until lately, when he most regrettable manner. His guardians returned him to those who had control of him, and when reprimanded he appeared penitent and willing to return to his former home if given the opportunity. He was taken back and did well for a short time, when he again sneaked away. The matter was at once reported to Mr. Kelso, who advised that he be reclaimed and taken before the Magistrate, and committed to the Victoria Industrial School at Mimico, filling in Sault Ste. Marie as the municipality for his maintenance.

These instructions were on Thursday last carried out to the very letter. Early in the morning of the 22nd, two persons, with a fleet-footed liver horse, set out in search of the missing boy who was supposed to be with a Mr. Jackson, about seven miles south-east of Omamee. On arriving at the home of Mr. Jackson the party learned that the boy, who had been there two weeks, had received one dollar for his service and was told on Saturday morning to leave, which he did. The family had heard that the boy had gone to a Mr. Carow, some distance away. On going to Mr. Carow it was found that the boy had been there a short time and left on Wednesday morning of the 22nd. Arriving at Mr. Carow's next, he stayed for dinner and then left to look for employment. The men who were chopping in the woods nearby when these men were asked about the boy they had not SEEN OR HEARD OF HIM.

As all traces of the boy seemed to be lost in this locality the searchers decided to go to another section of country, where there were farmers who might be in need of help. After a rapid drive on rough and smooth roads through the hills and dunes of Emily, through the fields when necessary, somewhat like a steepchase in the old country — and by this way, a hunt was soon on an elevation standing with his gun ready waiting for the bound to bring up a fox—several families were interviewed without avail until the house of a Mr. Morton was reached, and there the welcome news were received that the boy had slept there on Wednesday night, had breakfast and was only a little while gone to a farmer named Hall, with whom he had hired in the morning. In a very short time the search party reached the home of Mr. Hall, and when the driver went in to enquire he was told that the boy was there, but as soon as the boy was told that he was wanted in Lindsay he was not there for a little while. Then the search began in earnest — the lad, who had not yet been there two hours, had escaped to the outbuildings, and was not to be found.

Very soon, however, he was dragged from his hiding place in the strawstack by Driver Lloyd and taken back to Omamee at mid-day. He was then taken to Lindsay, where he immediately before County J. M. McSweeney, who heard the case and committed the youthful offender to the Industrial School. As a speedy delivery of
