RUB ON SUNLIGHT SOAP

LEAVE 30 TO 60 MINUTES

RINSE WELL

Sunlight Soap is better than other soaps, but is best when used in the Sunlight way (follow directions).

Hard rubbing and boiling are things of the past in homes where Sunlight Soap is used as directed.

Sunlight Soap will not injure even the daintiest fabric or the hands, and the clothes will be perfectly white, woollens soft and fluffy.

The reason for this is because Sunlight Soap is absolutely pure, contains no injurious chemicals—indeed, nothing but the active, cleansing, dirt-removing properties of soap that is nothing but soap.

GO NORTH OF CANADA FOR NEW LAWS.

Einas Mikkelson Tells of His Plans and Hopes Concerning the Expedition which will go through the Northern Country to the Polar Regions—What he Expects to Discover on the Trip.

London, Nov. 29.—Plans have been formulated by a young Dane, Einas Mikkelson, for what promises to be an interesting expedition to the Arctic regions, the objective point being that part of the Polar Ocean which lies immediately to the west of the group of great islands known as the Farry Archipelago, north of the northern coast of Canada. Mr. Mikkelson is at present in London, whither he has come to consult with the Royal Geographical Society.

He took part in the first Ziegler expedition of 1901-2, under Evelyn Baldwin, and before visiting Franz Josef Land had experience of Arctic exploration under Lieut. Andrup of the Danish Royal Navy, on his second expedition to the East Greenland coast in 1900 and on the boat excursion that year, when they explored and mapped a long stretch of the coast, covering some two degrees of latitude southwards from near the entrance to Scoresby Sound. After the Baldwin expedition his work lay for a time in Icelandic waters. The Thor was sent by the Danish government to these waters in fulfilment of the part assigned to Denmark by the international council for the scientific investigation of the sea, in connection with the fisheries.

"My proposed expedition," said Mr. Mikkelson in an interview, "does not aim at the pole either directly or indirectly. Of course I cannot fix precise limits to the field of work, but I do not expect it will extend farther north than about the 76th parallel. It is in the hope of making geographical discoveries that I am undertaking the expedition. A glance at the map will show that the most westerly islands of the Farry Archipelago—Banks Land and Prince Patrick Island—extend to about the 125th meridian west of Greenwich. To the west of these islands, that is, the mouth of the Mackenzie River, and of the northern shores of Alaska, lies an entirely unexplored region.

"These northern shores of the North American continent comprise one of the most tightly ice-bound coasts in the world. The icebergs which come from San Francisco Bay, through the Behring Strait, scarcely ever get out of sight of land. Even when a strong wind blows off the shore the ice only drifts back a few miles. This state of things is unfavorable to the supposition that the open ocean, it would perhaps be more accurate to say, unbroken by land. My belief, in fact, is that there is land awaiting discovery in this section of the Polar Ocean. Collinson and McClure, on their expedition half a century ago, kept close to the coast. It is my object to see what lies away from the coast, and to try to locate the land which I believe to exist there.

"Of course it is a theory on which I am working—a theory which, in my opinion, is justified by the known facts. The expedition I am now organizing is designed to put the theory to the test. But, as a matter of fact, there is one record of what is supposed to have been the observation of land in the seventies of last century. An American whaler named Keenan drifted some little distance north in the fog, and when the fog cleared he thought he saw land in the distance. This was north of Harrison Bay, on the Alaskan coast.

HAS TWO COMPANIONS.

"Two companions will join me in the expedition. One of these is Mr. Liefingwell, a young American geologist, whose acquaintance I made on the Baldwin expedition, and the other is Mr. Ditlevsen, a fellow-countryman of mine, who is an artist and naturalist, and who, like myself, accompanied Lieut. Andrup to the East Greenland coast in 1900. The three of us propose to start from Canada in the spring of next year. And here let me say that though I am hoping to explore a portion of the Polar Ocean, my plans do not contemplate the exclusive use of a ship for the purpose of the expedition, though, of course, we shall be glad to make use of such ships as frequent the coast which shall be the base of our operations. Early in May we hope to reach the upper waters of the Athabasca River by way of Edmonton, and we shall then follow that stream and the Slave and Mackenzie rivers down to the northern coast of the Dominion. This two months' journey will be some time in July before we reach the mouth of the Mackenzie river. In this neighborhood we shall remain until the close of August, when I hope there will arrive a whaler from the Francisco coast with stores and provisions, which will have been brought north especially for the use of the expedition. Geological and zoological investigations and study of the native Eskimaux—their customs, manners, superstitions and other characteristics—will profitably occupy the time awaiting our start. We will get up harness for the work that lies ahead.

"Our winter quarters will not be at the mouth of the Mackenzie. From there the whaler which has brought our stores will carry us a little way along the coast, eastward to Cape Bathurst. Here there is a station of Dominion government, which maintains a schooner permanently in these waters, and here I propose to engage a couple of Eskimaux, perhaps 50—for sledging work. When everything has been got together I am relying on the schooner to convey the expedition men and baggage to Cape Kelleit, the southern point of Banks Land. The distance is not great, and I have no fear that we shall not get transported all right. It is at Cape Kelleit that winter quarters will be established. While the Eskimaux are engaged to sled to the Cape with my two companions by boat up the north-western coast, Einas Mikkelson, who is to be the starting point of the journey of exploration proper in the spring of 1907. We shall establish at Prince Albert Cape a

INFLUENCE OF SEA DEPTHS.

"Then, again, even though no land should be discovered in our march across the ice, we may find it advisable to change our direction before reaching the limit point. Part of the equipment of the expedition will be a simple but I hope efficient sounding apparatus, consisting of silk thread weighted at intervals. Considerations of weight, of course, will prevent us from carrying elaborate apparatus. Soundings will be taken during the journey through fissures in the ice, and if it is found that the continental shelf is descending rapidly to great depths, we shall know that further search for land in the same direction is not likely to be successful, and shall turn off and keep within the limits of the continental shelf. In fact, our movements after Mr. Ditlevsen has turned back with the Eskimaux will necessarily be governed by circum-stances.

"On leaving Mr. Liefingwell and myself on the ice, Mr. Ditlevsen and the Eskimaux will return to the whaler at Cape Kelleit by way of Prince Alfred Cape, and after breaking up the winter camp will pass over to Cape Bathurst and proceed along the coast of the mainland in a westerly direction, keeping a lookout should they not encounter us before reaching the mouth of the Colville River on the North Alaskan coast. Camp will be established there, so that wherever we land on the coast, we will be able to make for that point. Then in the autumn one of the whalers will take off what I hope will be a reunited party, and we shall return to San Francisco and thence home."

FINANCIAL CONSIDERATIONS.

"I have definitely made up my mind to make a start next year, but I have not yet secured all the support which will be necessary if the expedition is to be carried out with the completeness forshadowned in my plans. As no ship will be attached to the expedition, the cost will be much less than in the case of the customary polar expedition. My estimates involve a total expenditure of some two thousand pounds. Half of that has been promised me by an American association, and other sums in hand reduce the balance to about eight hundred pounds. I shall make a start, if necessary, with the funds at present at my disposal, but the expedition will in that case have to be much more hurried than I should like it to be. However, I am hoping for the best. Sir Clements Markham was good enough to express great interest in my plan, when he was in Dundee in the summer, and I have met with a very kind reception in geographical circles since I came to London."

Help for the Kidneys Through Gin Pills.

A GUARANTEED CURE.

Read this letter. Read it twice. You have never heard such good news before—if your kidneys are sick. It tells how to be free of pain—how to have all your old-time health and vigor.

"I have been for years a sufferer with pain in the back and across the kidneys. I was scarcely a minute, day or night, that I was free of pain, and when I attempted to pass urine, the pain was almost unbearable. A friend of mine in Portage la Prairie, who was similarly afflicted, strongly advised me to get Gin Pills, as they had cured him. I bought a box of Gin Pills, and in less than a week, to my great delight, found myself without pain. I have had to go as often as every 20 minutes to urinate and several times during the night. Since taking Gin Pills, I sleep through the entire night and am not more than ordinarily inconvenienced during the day. I can earnestly recommend Gin Pills to anyone suffering from pain in the back, kidneys or bladder.

Mr. C. O. C. GOWLER, Portage la Prairie. Your druggist has Gin Pills, or will get them for you. See box for full directions. If you send us your name and address, we will send you the paper in which you have read this, and you will get Gin Pills absolutely free. You will get such relief that you will gladly continue the treatment until cured. Do it today—now—and start to cure yourself.
