This Week

The situation at Pinecrest Nursing Home in Bobcaygeon continues to improve daily but staff are not letting their guard down.

“We are fortunate to report no new deaths at Pinecrest Nursing Home over the weekend,” stated Mary Carr, administrator at the long-term care home that lost 29 of its residents due to a COVID-19 outbreak.

Carr said residents are showing positive signs of improvement which is great news after such a challenging few weeks.

“However, our staff are not taking anything for granted. We remain focused on implementing precautionary measures and are diligently maintaining all new and ongoing care directives from the province,” she continued.

Public health will be retesting all residents this week for clearance of the virus. Carr commends public health for proactively retesting residents who have been free of symptoms for at least 14 days looks forward to sharing more positive news with the community as information becomes available.
