

“We have had a few emails regarding masks and mask protocols,” Letham said, “and we have referred some of the inquiries to the health unit. Businesses understand why it is important and why it is in place.”

When asked to elaborate on Level Three re-opening protocols and feedback the mayor stated, “Some of the restaurants have decided that they want to continue serving outside only, and that is their prerogative. Gyms are excited to re-open.”

Finally, the mayor shared that the glitches associated with virtual meetings are also shared by the city. The Economic Recovery Task Force committee was to have a public meeting this week but their technology let them down.

“Our app prevented the public meeting part from occurring,” Letham said, “and with no public participation and no uploading to YouTube for public feedback it legally could not be considered a meeting.”

The task force will try again on Aug. 11 with a more extensive agenda.
