TLDSB recognizes no mandatory online training occurred for local teachers

Published on January 21, 2021 — in Education — by Kirk Winter

Earlier this month, the Trillium Lakelands District School Board distributed a memo from the Ministry of Education telling parents that all teachers in Ontario had received mandatory training in how to best deliver virtual programming.

Sinead Fegan, board communications officer, in an email to The Advocate received Jan. 15, shared that the training that took place for TLDSB staff on the Sept. 2, 3 and Nov. 20 PD Days was not mandatory, drawing into question the veracity of the statements made by the education minister to the contrary.

When released originally on Jan. 6, this memo brought an immediate negative response from the teachers' unions
