Here's an update on COVID-19 cases in Ontario as well as in the greater Kawarthas region.

Today, Ontario is reporting 945 new cases. However, this total includes only 112 cases for Toronto, due to a data error from Toronto Public Health's migration to Ontario's Contact and Case Management system. Toronto Public Health's actual case count for February 10 as reported on its website is 411, meaning the actual provincial case count today is 1,244.
