

initiative and to work with Spence.

“Tom is a fantastic gentleman, professional, well-spoken and he stands behind his company, he’s young and ambitious and you hear that in his voice,” he said. “He wants to make it work, he’s the right man for that position.”

Mangoni noted that he has personally used Kawartha Delivers and notes how much the service was needed in Kawartha Lakes.

“Kawarthas need an online delivery service, this is fantastic for the community and the cost is minimal to get it delivered,” he added.

When the opportunity arose to amalgamate efforts in hopes of helping the local front-line workers, Mangoni didn’t hesitate and offered countless, fresh pizzas for the cause.

And he would do it all over again if he gets the chance.

“It’s amazing, I’ll do it once a week if somebody needed it, everybody needs it, especially in these times, if they need help and as long as it goes back into our community,” he said. “I believe if you invest in your community, it’ll come back.”

Kawartha Delivers employs close to ten drivers and is currently partnered with about eight different restaurants. The app, Kawartha Delivers can be downloaded for free at the app store and they can also be found at Kawarthadelivers.com.

“I think it has been a positive impact, we have some really nice people working with us and the restaurants are amazing,” said Spence. “The drivers that I have been lucky to get on board are top-notch, we get to get out into the community, contributing and staying safe.”