Here's an update on COVID-19 cases in Ontario as well as in the greater Kawarthas region.

Today, Ontario is reporting 1,095 new cases, with 4 of Ontario's 34 health units reporting triple-digit increases. The seven-day average of daily cases has decreased to 1,622 and the proportion of active cases has decreased for the 37th straight day, with 95% of all cases now resolved.

There has been a small increase in hospitalizations and a smaller decrease in ICU admissions and patients on ventilators. Ontario is reporting 23 new deaths, including 2 in long-term care homes.

With almost 8.4 million vaccine doses administered, almost 57% of Ontario's total population has now received at least one dose of vaccine. A record number of people received their second dose yesterday, with almost 3.9% of the entire population now fully vaccinated.
