Throat Paralysis.

(From the Courier-Herald, Saginaw, Mich.) It was publicly talked all over Clare County for some time before the Courier-Herald sent a reporter to Dover to Investigate the Coulter matter. He finally went, and we publish to-day his report. The Coulters are prominent people, though Mrs. C. in response to the question whether she objected to being interviewed, said, "Certainly not." Her story follows: "About 14 years ago we decided to take up our abode in Dover and everything went along smoothly for seven years, business progressed and being of a saving temperament we accumulated quite an amount. Our family increased as the years rolled by and we now have 5 children, but sickness made its way into our household, and doctors' bills flooded upon us, until we have nothing left but our home and our children. Everything went to satisfy the claims of physicians. "About three years ago I had a miserable feeling at the back of my ears, my right hand became paralyzed and the paralysis extended to my arm and throat, and would affect my head and eyes. Sometimes for days I would lose my sight, my face was deformed, lifeless as it were, my nose was drawn to one side and I presented a pitiable appearance and never expecting to regain my natural facial expressions. I employed the best physicians that could be procured, expending thousands of dollars for their services, but could not obtain relief. At last, they stated my case was beyond the reach of medical skill and it would be but a short time until the end would come. In connection with receiving the attendance of physicians I have tried every medicine known to the apothecary but never received any relief until Dr. Williams' Pink Pills came to my assistance. Before I had taken half of the first box the deformity in my face had left me, and before four boxes had been consumed the paralysis had disappeared entirely and much to my surjust about a year ago and my trouble has not appeared since. He could not walk across the room without assistance, in fact he would fall all over himself, but after taking a few boxes of Pink Pills. St. Vitus' dance entirely left him, and no trace of it is left. These Pills are worth their weight in gold. You may say in this connection that I am willing at any time to make affidavit feel ruinous trials and temptations to the truth of these statements, and furthermore I will answer any communication concerning my case.

Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Med. Co., Schenectady, N Y., for 50 cents per box, or six boxes for

ELECTRICITY FOR DEAFNESS.

Mechanical and Electrical Vibrations Are the Means of Cure.

Many advanced aurists are now investigating the effect of mechanical and electrical vibrations in curing deafness and various diseases of the ear. A prominent New York practitioner has invented an instrument which gives a struction. This temptation of limited austained note of reed-like quality over several octaves of the scale. Galvanized Steel Wire Fencing.

The most extensive and complete plant for the manufacture of wire fencing in the United States is the De Kalb Fence Company, located at De Kalb, Ill. For years prior to 1890 barbed wire was extensively used for fencing, but those using it often lost in fine stock, more than its cost and to avoid danger to man or beast there was need of, and a demand for, a barbless fence.

The proprietors of this company having spent more than 12 years in the manufacture of wire fencing, recognized this fact, and have produced the best lines of smooth wire fencing for all purposes now in use. The success of this company is due to the managers adopting the true business principle of making good what they make, putting enough material in their lines to make them both strong and serviceable, instead of producing a cheap flimsy article only to meet the price of a fence that has never given satisfaction. This is what has made their fence so popular and in such great demand and to-day they have over 40 special machines, with a capacity of over 22 miles of fence per day, and their fencing is used in every state in the Union. The fence most used is their Cable Steel and Hog Fence for field fencing. Cable Poultry Fence, Steel Web Picket Fence, and Park and Cemetery Fence, and to complete same they also make gates of wood or steel frames to match, and also furnish iron posts. All of their styles of fencing are strong, neat, durable and economical in price.

And everyone needing fencing of any kind will consult their own interests by sending to the De Kalb Fence Co., 121 genius enough to fail for $150,000! High street, De Kalb, Ill., for their 44 page catalogue and prices. The reader is also directed to their advertisement in this paper.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

TAKES BUSINESS TROUBLES FOR HIS SUBJECT.

Wonderful Changes Have Come Over the Various Processes of Acquiring Worldly Wealth-We Need More Happy Christian Homes.

YORK, JULY 7.-In his sermon for to-day, Dr. Talmage, who is still absent on his western lecturing tour, chose a subject of universal interest, viz: " Business Troubles," the text selected being Ezekiel 27: 24: "These were thy merchants in all sorts of things." We are at the opening door of returning national prosperity. The coming crops, the re-establishment of public confidence, and, above all, the blessing of God, will turn in upon all sections of America the widest, greatest prosperity, this country has even seen. But that door of successes is not yet fully open, and thousands of business men are yet suffering from the distressing times through which we have been passing.

Some of the best men in the land have faltered; men whose hearts are enlisted in every good work, and whose hands have blessed every great charextend to them her sympathies, and plead before heaven with all-availing prayer. The schools such men have established, the churches they have built, prise I felt like a new woman. I have the asylums and beneficent institutions not taken any medicine since last spring | they have fostered, will be their eulogy long after their banking institutions are forgotten. Such men can never fall. They have their treasures in banks that never break, and will be millionaires forever. But I thought it would | Sabbath day resolve that you will give | The flash of the distress gun is nobe appropriate, to-day, and useful, for me to talk about the trials and temptations of our business men, and try to brought nothing into the world, and offer some curative prescriptions. In the first place, I have to remark that a great many of our business men understood that it takes now three or four times as much to do business well as once it did. Once, a few hundred dollars were turned into goods-the merchant would be his own store-

sweeper, his own salesman, his own bookkeeper: he would manage all the affairs himself, and everything would be net profit. Wonderful changes have come; costly apparatus, extensive advertising, exortitant store rents, heavy taxation, expensive agencies are only parts of the demand made upon our commercial men; and when they have found themselves in such circumstances with small capital, they have sometimes been tempted to run against the rocks of moral and financial decapital has rulned men in two ways. Sometimes they have shrunk down under the temptation. They have yielded fired. At the first hard dun they surrendered. Their knees knocked tocial peril. They did not understand man can fight no braver battle with cause sugara were up when they wanted to buy, and down when they wanted to sell, and unsaleable goods were on the shelf, and bad debts in their ledger. The gloom of their countenances overshad swed even their dry goods and groceries. Despondency. coming from limited capital, blasted them. Others have felt it in a different way. They have said: "Here I hav been trudging along. I have been try ing to be honest all these years. find it is of no use. Now it is make or break." The small craft that could have stood the stream, is put out beyond the light-house, on the great sea of speculation. He borrows a few thousend dollars from friends, who dare not refuse him, and he goes bartering on a large scale. He reasons in this way: "Perhaps, I may succeed, and if I don't I will be no worse off than I am now, for a bundred thousand dollars taken from nothing, nothing tomains." Stocks are the dice with which he gambles. He bought for a few dollars vast tracts of western land. Some man at the East, living on a fat homestead, meets this gambler of fortune and is persuaded to trade off his estate, for lots in a western city with large avenues, and costly palaces, and lake steamers smoking at the wharves. and rail-trains coming down with lightning speed from every direction. There it is all on paper! The city has never been built, nor the railroads constructed, but everything points that may, and the thing will be done as suras you live. Well, the man goes on. stopping at no fraud of outrage. his splendid equipage he dashes past. while the honest laborer looks up, and wipes the sweat from his brow, and says, "I wonder where that man got clutches, but finds nothing in its grasp. The men who were swindled say: "I dont' know how I could have ever been deceived by that man;" and the pictorials, in handsome wood-cuts, set forth the hero who in ten years had

And that is the process by which many have been tempted through limitation of capital, to rush into labyrinths from which they could not be extricated. I would not want to block up any of the avenues for honest accumulation that open before young men. On the contrary, I would like to cheer them on, and rejoice when they reach the goal; but when there are such multitudes of men going to ruin for this life and the life that is to come, through ; the attainment of money above the wrong notions of what are lawful value of the soul. It is a grand thing spheres of enterprise, it is the duty of to have plenty of money. it only comes. Our best mercha. .s are thrown into competition with men of more means and less conscience, and if an opportunity of accumulation be negup. From January to December the struggle goes on. Night gives no quiet to limbs tossing in restlessnes, nor to a brain that will not stop thinking. The dreams are harrowed by imaginary loss, and flushed with imaginary gains. Even the Sabbath cannot dam back the tide of anxiety; for this wave of worldliness dashes clear over the churches, and leaves its foam on Bibles and prayer-books. Men who are living on salaries, or by the cultivation of the soil, cannot understand the wear and tear of the body and mind to which our merchants are subjected, when they do not know but that their livelihood and their business honor are dependent upon the uncertainties of the next hour. This excitement of the brain, this corroding care of the heart, this strain of effort that exhausts the spirit, sends a great many of our best men, in middle life, into the grave. Their life dashed out against money safes. They go with their store on their backs. They trudge like camels, sweating, from Aleppo to Damascus. They make their life a crucifixion. Standing behind desks and counters, banished from the fresh air, weighed down by carking cares, they are 23 many suicides. Oh! wish I could, to-day, rub out some of these lines of care; that I could lift some of the burdens from the heart; that I could give relaxation to some of these worn muscles. It is time for you to begin to take it a little easier. Do ity. The Church of God can afford to your best, and then trust God for the rest. No not fret. God manages all the affairs of your life, and he man ages them for the best. Consider the lilles-they always have robes. Behold the fowls of the air-they always have nests. Take a long breath. Bethink, betimes, that God did not make you for a pack-horse. Dig yourselves to toil, with blistered hands and out from among the hogsheads and the shelves, and in the light of the holy to the winds your fears, and your fretfulness, and your distresses. You it is very certain you can carry nothing out. Having food and raiment, be therewith content. The merchant came home from the store. There had been a great disaster there. He opened the front door, and said, in the mids: of his family circle: "I am ruined. Everything is gone. I am all ruined." His wife said: "I am left;" and the little child threw up its hands and said "Papa, I am here." The aged grandmother, seated in the room, said: "Then you have all the promises of God beside, John." And he burst into tears, and said: "God forgive me, that I have been so ungrateful. I find I have a great many things left. God forgive resolved to be rich at all hazards.

Again, I remark, that many of our business men are tempted to neglect their home duties. How often it is that the store and the home seem to clash, but there ought not to be any collission. It is often the case that the father is the mere treasurer of the family, sort of agent to see that they have dry goods and groccries. The work of famlly government he does not touch. Once or twice a year he calls the children up on a Sabbath afternoon, when he has a half hour he does not exactly know what to do with, and in that half hour he disciplines the children, and chides them and currects their faults, and gives them a great deal of good advice. and then wonders all the rest of the year that his children do not do better. when they have the wonderful advan tage of that semi-annual castigation. The family table, which ought to be

If there be any blessing asked at all, it is cut off at both ends and with the hand on the cary ing knife. He counts on his fingers. making estimates in the interstices of the repast. The work done, the hat goes to the head and he starts down the street, and before the family has arisen from the table he has bound up another bundle of goods and save to the customer: "Anything more I can for you today, sir?" A man has more responsibilities than those which are charged by putting competent instruct ors over his children and giving them a drawing master and a music teacher. The physical culture of the child will not be attended to unless the father looks to it. He must sometimes lose his dignity. He must unlimber his joints. He must sometimes lead them out to their sports and games. parent who cannot forget the severe duties of life sometimes to fly the kite. and trundle the hoop, and chase the ball, and jump the rope with his children ought never to have been tempted out of a crusty and unredeemable soiltariness. If you want to keep your children away from places of sia you can only do it by making your home attractive. You may preach sermons. and advocate reforms, and denounce wickedness, and yet your children will be captivated by the glittering saloon, Christ. of sin unless you can make your home a brighter place than any other place on earth to them. Oh! gather all charms into your house. If you can afford it bring books, and pictures, and cheerful entertainments to the household. But, above all, teach those children, not by half an hour twice a year all his money." After awhile the bub- on the Sabbath day, but day after day, ble bursts. Creditors rush in. The law | and every day teach them that religion is a great gladness; that it throws chains of gold about the neck; that it takes no spring from the foot, no blitheness from the heart, no sparkle from the eye, no ring from the laughter, but that "her ways are ways of pleasantness, and all her paths are peace." I sympathize with the work being done in many of our cities by which beautiful rooms are set apart by our Young Men's Christian associations, and pray God to prosper them in all things. But I tell you there is something back

While, my friends, They do not care how money comes, if | we do admit there is such a thing as the lawful use of money—a profitable use of money-let us recognize also the fact that money cannot satisfy a man's soul, that it cannot glitter in the dark lected one hour, some one else picks it | valley, that it cannot pay our fares across the Jordan of death, that it cannot unlock the gate of heaven. There are men in all occupations who seem to act as though they thought that a pack of bonds and mortgages could be traded off for a title to heaven, and as though gold would be a lawful tender in that place where it is so common that they make pavements out of it. Salvation by Christ is the only salvation. Treasures in heaven are the only incorruptible treasures. Have you ever ciphered out in the rule of loss and gain the sum: "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his soul?" However fine your apparel, the winds of death will flutter it like rags. Homespun and a threadbare coat have sometimes been the shadow of coming robes made white in the blood of the lamb. The pearl of great price is worth more than any gem you can bring from the ocean, than Australian or Brazilian mines strung in one carcanet. Seek after God; find his righteousness and all shall be well; all shall be well hereafter.

Some of you remember the shipwreck of the "Central America." That noble steamer had, I think, about 500 passengers aboard. Suddenly the storm came and the surges trampled the decks and swung into the hatches and there went up a hundred-voiced death shriek. The foam on the jaw of the wave. The pitching of the steamer as though it were leaping a mountain. The dismal flare of the signal rockets. The long extinguished furnaces. The walking of God on the waves! The steamer went not down without a struggle. As the passengers stationed themselves in rows to bale out the vessel hark to the strained muscle, tug for their lives. There is a sail seen against the sky. ticed, its voice heard not for it is choked in the louder booming of the sea. A few passengers escaped, but the steamer gave on great lurch and was gone! So there are some men who sail on prosperously in life. All's well; all's well. But at last, some financial disaster comes; a euroclydon. Down they go! the bottom of the commercial sea is strewn with shattered bulks. But because your property goes do not let your soul go. Though all else perish save that, for I have to tell you of a more stupendous shipwreck than that which I just mentioned. God launched this world six thousand years ago. It has been going on under freight of mountains and immortals, but one day it will stagger at the cry of fire. The timbers of rock will burn, the mountains flame like masts, and the clouds like sails in the judgment hurricane. Then God shall take the passengers off the deck, and from the berths those who have long been asteep in Jesus and he will set them far beyond the reach of storm and peril. But how many shall go down will never be known until it shall be announced one day in heaven; the shipwreck of the world! So many millions saved! Oh! my dear hearers, whatever you lose, though your houses go, though your lands go, though all your earthly possessions perish, may God Almighty, through the blood of the everlasting covenant, save all your souls.

The Congregationalist publishes the following opinion of a physician as to the use of the individual cup at the communion service: Not one of the authors of this movement, so far as I have been able to ascertain, has made any painstaking research to justify the unwarranted conclusions arrived at; on the other hand, years ago, at considerable trouble and expense, I sought information from the most distinguished medical men in the world on this subject. From that time until this no med-mony of holy communion has been the cause of disease. I think, therefore, it is safe to assume that, with the many interesting and valuable investigations still undetermined, medical men had better seek some other source as the cause of in-

Or is it sour and hard, grim and frowning, dominated by petty goesin and tealousles, self-asserting and domineering-driving away more than it draws? Look into this matter. The Christian Character.

Every honest prayer breathed, every cross carried, every trial endured. every good work for our fellow men lovingly done, every little act conscientiously performed for Christ's glory, helps to make the Christian character beautiful and to load its broad boughs with "apples of gold" for God's "baskets of silver."

FIGHT BETWEEN STALLIONS.

Thrilling Spectacle in the Barn of a friend. New York Farmer.

A thrilling struggle took place in th barns of W. A. Wadsworth of Genesed lately. Two fine stallions, one an imported thoroughbred named Devil-to-Pay, the other a large Percheron called Victor Hugo, were kept in the stable. By some means the Percheron rubbed against the door of Devil-to-Pay's stall loosening the latch. The door swung open and the latter, with a shrill neigh, leaped out into the open. This was the signal for a combat. The stallions faced each other, then circled around, and finally came together like shots from a catapult, the thoroughbred snapping and biting, and then with lightning-like quickness, would whirl and his heels would strike the sides of the Percheron, then away and make ready for a renewed attack. The Percheron was cough of the steam pipes. The hiss of not so quick, but delivered his blows with his forefeet, kicking with rapid succession. The perspiration rolled down their sides and in some places stained with blood where the sharp hoofs or teeth had penetrated the hide. They were secured without much difficulty, and both animals were terribly injured by the combat.-Exchange.

Weyman's Creative Moods.

Stanley Weyman says that he was washing his hands when the idea came to him of the plot of the "House of the Wolf." He owes his inclination to write romance about early French history to a chance perusal of Professor Baird's "History of the Huguenots," which he happened to take up while sitting in the smoking-room of his club mourning over the hard-heartedness of publishers. This was in the paimy days of Rider Haggard's popularity and Mr. Weyman wisely reasoned that he could do that sort of thing rather better than Mr. Haggard.
