JUDICIAL CONVENTION.

The Republican legal voters of the 12th Ju licial Circuit of Illinois are requested to send Delegates to a Convention to be held at X Du Bois Opera House in the city of Elgin, Kane County at one o'clock P. M. on Wednesday the 3rd day of February 1897, for the purpose of placng in nomination three candidates for Judges of said Circuit to be voted for on Monday the 7th day of June 1897, and to transact such other business as may properly come before the Convention. The several countles comprising said Judicial Circuit will be entitled to Delegates as follows: (the basis of resresentation being one delegate for every three hundred votes or major fraction thereof cast for William McKinley for

FOR CIRCUIT JUDGE, GEO. W. BROWN. Beyond a possibility of doubt Judge Geo. W. Brown, will after June next, be the chosen successor of the Hon. Clark D. Upton on the circuit bench in the Twelfth Judicial circuit of Illinois. This much was settled Tuesday by the action of the republican convention held at Wheaton. This county unanimously instructed its delegates for Judge Brown and the unit rule. The county republicans further honored one of its most popular citizens by granting the candidate the privilege of encosing his own delegation-a thing seldom before accorded a candidate from this county, for any office; but Judge Brown is one the citizens of Dul'age delight to honor, hence this departure from precedent established.

There are three judges to be nominated in the district, comprising the counties DuPage, with fourteen delegates in the convention, Kane has forty, Lake and McHenry have seventeen each, DeKalh has nineteen, Boone ten, and Kendall

TO SHAPE NATIONAL POLICY.

When A. J. Hopkins returns to Washfon after the holiday recess he will find self confronted with a great and delitask, yet a task which, if successfully plished, will enhance his fame as no ingle act could add to his reputatrustwothy fegislator.

James G. Blaine, the

ision of the work upon the new matters relating to reciprocared in she hands of Mr. sen found that the ity treaties with only those countries from which we admit sugar, molasses and hides duty free. The McKinley act also included tea and coffee in this list and the Dingley restrictions would sadly limit the countries with which we could hold reciprocal relations.

Mr. Hopking asks for the broadest application of the reciprocal policy and his views are fully in accord with those of Mr. McKinley. The reciprocity section was one of the most popular features of the Mc-Kinley bill and its reenactment in a breader form is demanded by the com mercial and industrial interests of the country as it will aid greatly in providing a market for our manufactured products. If Mr. Hopkins can reconcile the several factions of the ways and means committee and of congress to a bill of this character he may be sure that it will receive the immediate approval of President McKinley and of the people. Mr. Hopkins never before had so good a chance to demonstrate his statesmanship.—Aurora Express.

The article in the REPORTER of a few weeks ago regarding abolishing the practice of calling non-partisan township caucuses has caused considerable comment favorable to the plan, not alone among the republicans but among the other parties as well. There is hardly any doubt but that retaining partisan organization in township matters will strengthen the republican party and serve to offset the efforts made to keep the free-silver fallacious doctrine alive. Let the republicans nominate good men of character for these offices and the effect will not only be a sweeping victory in local matters, but, in the intervals between state and national campaigns, insure keeping alive the fundamental principles of SUSAN A. ROBERTS, M. D. republicanism, thus strengthening the party in the township.

Col. Chas. P. Bryan is making an excellent canvass for speaker of the house and is winning many warm supporters to his side who are confident his superior qualifications will secure for him this honor when the general assembly meets early next month. Hon. Albert J. Olson of Chicago, has shown his courage and independence by aunouncing his intention of voting for Colonel Bryan for speaker no matter what combinations are made against the country legislators. Other Cook county members are likely to follow the lead of this stalwart representative of Chicago's best interests, in which case Colonel Bryan is pretty sure to win.

Under the law in Illinois, members of the state legislature will receive $1,000 each for their full term of two years, with the single exception that in an extra session they receive $5 per day for the special term. As the pay is fixed by that that passed the law was that this plan would tend to a more vigorous prosecution of business, the dropping out of the numerous short recesses, and hence a shorter session. Under the old habit, the legislature really had about two working days a week. Now it will not infrequent-
