ALTON HONORS A MARTYR.

Magnificent Memorial Dedicated to E. P. Lovejoy.

ANNIVERSARY OF HIS DEATH.

Sixty Years Ago the First Abolitionist Fell a Victim to the Fury of a Mob—Description of the Monument Erected by His Admirers.

The people of the state of Illinois have redeemed their debt of gratitude to Elijah Parish Lovejoy for first pointing out to them the way to action in the vindication of the right of free speech. The monument erected to his memory at Alton was dedicated Nov. 9 amid the booming of cannon, singing of songs and forensic effort.

ELIJAH PARISH LOVEJOY.

local schools and colleges adjourned for the occasion and the day was observed as a general holiday. A chorus of fifty voices sang songs and anthems, and the programme abounded in interesting supplementary features, one of them, the dedication ode, written by Frank C. Riehl, editor of the Daily Republican.

The first speaker was Thomas Dimmock of St. Louis. His address was a review of the work of Lovejoy and of its far reaching significance.

Rev. J. M. Wilkerson, who represented the Afro-American citizens of the state, spoke of the gratitude of his race to the memory of this man, who struck the first blow for them. State Senator D. R. Sparks followed, paying high tribute to the work of his predecessor, Senator Herb, in procuring the appropriation from the state which made the monument possible. Lieutenant-Governor W. A. Northcott was then introduced and spoke in behalf of the state. He was received with a storm of applause, and his words held the great audience in rapt attention from the first to the last.

The monument is a massive granite column 90 feet high, surmounted by a bronze statue of Victory 17 feet high, weighing 8,700 pounds. This shaft, in three pieces, weighing respectively sixteen, eighteen and twenty-two tons each, is one of the largest columns in this country.

The base consists of a round plinth, square cap, die and base in the form of a seat. It stands in the center of a terrace 4 feet in diameter, surrounded on three sides by a granite exedra wall 8 feet deep on the outside, having a seat on the inside. The terrace is floored with 6-inch granite flagging and is reached by seven granite steps. Two large granite pedestals, surmount-

Hearing Affected

Ringing and Snapping in the Head Cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. "For many years I have been troubled with catarrh, which caused me much pain and affected my hearing. A New Use for Oil. The Pennsylvania railroad is adopting a novel method of getting rid of the dust which annoys the passengers on some of their lines. Crude oil is sprinkled over the road bed by oil tank sprinkling cars. It has been found especially successful on road beds composed of gravel, keeping down the dust, as well as turning off the water. The road between Washington and Baltimore is undergoing the treatment now, and as far as the sprinkling cars have advanced, the road is perfectly free from dust.
