The rate of increase in subscribers is the greatest testimonial that a metropolitan newspaper can hope to receive. The friends of the Chicago Times-Herald are growing in number with tremendous rapidity, and a subscriber once secured is never lost. Look for excellent service in political, domestic, foreign or sporting news in the Times-Herald and satisfy yourself that it is unequalled in the quality and reliability of its news.

A business man of Chicago, who does not wish his name made public at this time, has given $10,000 to Wheaton College. The announcement of the donation was made last night at a Washington birthday celebration given in Woman's Hall, Wheaton College. Some time ago the faculty decided to raise an endowment fund of $100,000 for the purpose of meeting the current expenses of the college and enlarging the work, and the donation of $10,000 was given in response to the call made at that time. The donor's reason for not wishing his name told is that he would be bothered by countless appeals from institutions and from individuals for aid, and he wishes to avoid these.
