Citizens have freely criticised the board Etruptone over the rates established for commutelal electric lights. It is perhaps true the board merited some of the criticism in publishing one schedule of rates and then raising the schedule at its next meeting. However, it will be much easier to lower the present rates if too high than to have raised the first schedule should it be proven the charges were too low when the plant became operative. In a word, "Sag Harhor" is a success of the largest proportions. Such enthusiam has rarely been seen in this fashionable theatre. There were cartain calls, cheers and speeches, and all the other signs and accompaniments indicative of success in the largest measure. Mr. Herne has, in the character of Capt. Dan Marbie, another one of those noble creations similar and yet superior to that of Uncie Nat Berry, which part he wrote for himself in "Shore Acres."
