

DAN. GROSVENOR SAYS: THE LATE DR. WISE.

"Peruna is an Excellent Spring Catarrh Remedy—I am as Well as Ever."

Hon. Dan. A. Grosvenor, of the Famous Ohio Family.

Hon. Dan. A. Grosvenor, Deputy Auditor for the War Department, in a letter written from Washington, D. C., says:

"Allow me to express my gratitude to you for the benefit derived from one bottle of Peruna. One week has brought wonderful changes and I am now as well as ever. Besides being one of the very best spring tonics it is an excellent catarrh remedy." Very respectfully, Dan A. Grosvenor.

Hal P. Denton, Chief National Export Exposition, Philadelphia, Pa., writes: "I was completely run down from overwork and the responsibility naturally connected with the exploitation of a great international exposition. My physician recommended an extended vacation. When life seemed almost a burden I began taking Peruna, and with the use of the fifth bottle I found myself in a normal condition. I have since enjoyed the best of health."

Almost everybody needs a tonic in the spring. Something to brace the nerves, invigorate the brain, and cleanse the blood. That Peruna will do this is beyond all question. Every one who has tried it has had the same experience as Mrs. D. W. Timberlake, of Lynchburg, Va., who, in a recent letter, made use of the following words: "I always take a dose of Peruna after business hours, as it is a great thing for the nerves. There is no better spring tonic, and I have used about all of them."

THE FREIGHT BUSINESS.

Not the "Go-as-you-Please" Rap-Hamned Thing Many Suppose.

Most people have an idea that freight is the last thing that railroads look after. Many profess to believe that a piece of freight once started on its journey is allowed to loaf along at its own sweet will and pleasure, stopping where it wishes, and staying as long as it likes, and only bringing up at its destination when there is nowhere else to go. When you have waited day after day for that piano which was shipped a month ago you are ready to adopt that opinion. But don't be in a hurry. When that piano box shows up in Foughkeepsie at the time it should be in Portland, the Foughkeepsie agent does not uncase the instrument and give a series of boxcar recitals for the next two months. You may think he does, but he doesn't. Not a bit of it! There is no welcome anywhere for the wandering Willies of freightdom. No agent wishes to be caught with missing freight piled up in his yard or house. The truth of the matter is, the railroads are continually punching lagging freight in the ribs and admonishing it to move on. After you have listened to the elaborate plans taken to look after freight you will marvel that a single package ever goes astray. But—the man who is waiting for that piano knows that it does.—Lewiston Journal.

New Fad in Hair Dressing.

How fashions change! Not long since there was a fad for wearing one large rose, with the hair dressed low. The wreath of tiny flowers is an exceedingly pretty style, and the hair may be dressed very high in the center. The tendency of hairdressing today is toward negligee style. There is a studied carelessness and grace. The waves of hair at the back and sides are full and in broken lines, rather than set curls, as formerly, says the Cincinnati Enquirer. The curled fringe bang is not nearly so popular as a series of full loose poufs, as the French say, consisting of large waves of light rolled curls. A very new method is to part the hair at the side and bring it across the forehead in a loosely waving mass. The hair is dressed very high for evening wear, and if there is not sufficient natural hair, special coils, attached by a tortoise-shell pin, are readily adjusted. The coils and poufs must be very slim, rather than broad as formerly.

Hunting Big Game in Africa.

An expedition has just left England with the object of ascending the Nile as far up as possible beyond Khartoum and exploring the country on both sides of the river south of Fashoda, which is said to team with big game of all kinds. Almost nothing is known of the zoology of the region of the upper Nile and the expedition will devote most of its attention to this subject, making extensive collections as it works its way up.

Distorted by Glimmer.

"What is the honeymoon, pa?" "Well, the honeymoon is the only period in a man's life during which he considers it funny to come home and find that his dear little wife hasn't dinner ready on time."

CAREER OF THE ILLUSTRIOUS JEWISH DIVINE.

His Recent Death a Great Loss to That Religion in the United States—Eminent as a Reformer, Pulpitman and Author.

American Judaism has sustained an irreparable loss by the death of the eminent and venerable divine, Rev. Dr. Isaac Mayer Wise of Cincinnati, which occurred in that city recently. The departed was the brilliant luminary within the ranks of American Israel. Let there be light was always the motto of this noble man, and the word enlightenment sums up the object for which he lived. He was editor of the American Israelite, which he founded in 1854, and Die Deborah, which he founded in 1855. He was president of the Hebrew Union college of Cincinnati since its foundation twenty-five years ago, president of the conference of American rabbis since its inception in 1839, and a member of the board of directors of the University of Cincinnati. Notwithstanding his great age

REV. DR. ISAAC MAYER WISE.

Dr. Wise enjoyed the very best of health, and indications were that he would live for many years to come.

This illustrious man was born at Steingrub, Bohemia, April 3, 1819. He received his early religious instruction from his father, who was a religious teacher; his grandfather was a physician who had graduated from the University of Padua. Early in life he evinced a great desire to attain knowledge, and as soon as he was able he attended the University of Prague, of which he was the oldest living graduate. When he left the university he settled in Radatz, Bohemia, where he became a rabbi. Here he was united in marriage to Miss Theresa Bloch. The young rabbi was a contemporary of the great European Jewish reformers, but as Europe was then in a state of revolution, there was little opportunity for progressive ideas to spread, so Dr. Wise immigrated to America with his family, arriving in New York July 23, 1846. When he arrived here Judaism was also in a chaotic state. There were many congregations throughout the land which were of an ultra orthodox nature, but there were also a few that were reformed. Before leaving Europe Dr. Wise had furnished a plan for reforming Judaism. This young enthusiast was warmly welcomed by Dr. Lillenthal, Dr. Leiser and other eminent rabbis. His first rabbinical call was to Albany, where he remained until 1854, when he was called to Plum Street Temple in Cincinnati, where he remained until the time of his death.

The most important work of Dr. Wise was his efforts in the reform of Judaism in America. In addition to being editor, rabbi and teacher, he wrote many books, one of the most important being the first English translation of a Hebrew prayer book. Probably the most important result of his life work is the attitude which the Judaism of today occupies towards Christianity. By means of numerous books and lectures all over the country he gave the Jews the tolerant view of Christ which they now hold. He pictured Christ as a great Jewish reformer, who fell a victim to the Roman empire's fear that the mission of Jesus was political instead of spiritual. It can be safely said that Dr. Wise did more than any other man of his time to bring Jew and Christian into harmony, and to make the name of Christ honored among the Jews.

The funeral of Dr. Wise took place in Cincinnati, from the temple in which he had officiated since 1851, and was marked by the utmost simplicity, in accordance with his often expressed wishes. Individuals and delegations from all over the country attended, and the discourse which followed him to the grave was the largest ever seen in Cincinnati. A widow, eleven children and many grandchildren survive him. In Chicago is resident one son—Dr. Julius Wise, who will succeed him as editor of the Chicago Israelite, and who, under the nom de plume of Nickerdown, has become well known in the newspaper world.

Very Latest in Fitas.

It was thought that the limit had been reached in flies when the wings were put on with cement and a line of silk, with reversed wings which could not be pulled out. But now there is a fly book in which are separated legs, wings and bodies. They are adjustable to ordinary bait hooks from Nos. 1 to 12, according to the fish wanted. Each part is tied to a bit of aluminum tube. The bait hook is separate. The fisherman observes that the trout are rising to a little fly of which he has no specimen. The real fly has gray wings, brown legs and a white body. He takes out the combination book and puts a white body on a hook; then he adds the legs and wings of the right color, and then he fishes.

STORMING OF BADAJOS.

The Triumphant English Soldiers Become Drunken Wretches.

The fire of the French was frightfully accurate and concentrated, says New Lippincott. Gen. Walker himself simply dripped blood; he was a mass of wounds. His ladders were found to be all too short. The walls of the fortress were 30 feet in height. However, through some lack of staying power in the French, success at last crowned the attack. One man clambered somehow to the top of the wall and pulled up others, until about half of the Fourth Foot (now the King's Own Royal Lancaster regiment) were fairly into the town. Walker's men took three bastions. Gen. Picton, severely wounded, had not dared to risk losing the castle but now hearing the tumult of Walker's success, he sent his men forth and thousands went swarming through the town. Phillipson saw that all was lost, and retreated with a few hundred men to San Cristoval. He surrendered next morning to Lord Fitzroy Somerset. The English now occupied the town. With their comrades lying stark, or perhaps in fearful torment, in the fields beyond the wall of Badajoz, these soldiers, who had so heroically won this immortal victory, became the most abandoned drunken wretches and maniacs. Crazy privates stood at the corners of streets and shot every one in sight. Everywhere were soldiers dressed in the garb of monks, of gentlemen at court, or mayhap wound about with gorgeous ribbons and laces. Jewels and plate, silks and satins, all suffered a wanton destruction. Napier writes of "shameless rapacity, brutal intemperance, savage lust, cruelty and murder, shrieks and piteous lamentations."

TURKISH POLICE JUSTICE.

A Patrolman Trips a case in the Opium Street.

I witnessed in Constantinople an amusing instance of Turkish police justice. An Armenian and a Kurd had quarreled over the ownership of a tobacco box. As their language grew more expressive and their speech louder a crowd collected, delighted with the dispute. The Kurd had picked up the box on the street and the Armenian declared it was his. When they were about to come to blows a policeman came up and tried to effect a compromise, but neither disputant would give way. At last the Armenian suggested that the Kurd should be asked to declare what was in the box. The Kurd promptly answered: "Tobacco and cigarette paper." The Armenian smilingly informed the officer that all the box contained was a 25-cent piece. The policeman gravely opened the mysterious case, then turning to the crowd with the air of a Solomon, said: "The Armenian is the owner of the box. I return it to him. The Kurd is a liar. (Here he smote the man from the mountains over the head.) Allah be praised! For my trouble in deciding this complicated affair I keep the 25 cents."—Chicago Record.

LADY LOUISE TIGHE.

No social event of the century equals in celebrity the ball given in Brussels on the eve of the battle of Waterloo. The last survivor of this famous event has just died at Woodstock, Ireland, and in her last days she often referred to that night of gayety and tragedy so graphically described by Thackeray in "Vanity Fair" and by Byron in "Child Harold." This woman was Lady Louise Tighe, daughter of the duchess of Richmond, by whom the ball was given. It was she who buckled on Wellington's sword ere he left the brilliant ballroom to go out and begin the fight which decided the fate of Europe. Lady Tighe's father, the duke of Richmond, had a residence in Brussels, near which city the British under Wellington were encamped. On the night of June 16, 1815, the duchess gave a ball in honor of the British officers. Wellington was there. While the ball was in progress a message from Blucher came to Wellington, and about the same time the sound of guns was heard. Wellington, after a few moments of abstraction, gave orders to one of his staff officers, who instantly left the room. Others saw him go, and, one by one, they stole away from their partners, who in many cases never saw their heroes again until their dead bodies were brought in from the bloody battlefield. Wellington was one of the last to leave the ballroom, and ere he departed the lady who has recently died fastened his sword about him.

WOMEN AND EATING.

Serious Results May Follow Carelessness of Diet.

Women are notoriously careless about their own food. One could wish that those who neglect the duty of properly and efficiently nourishing their own bodies would study the statistics of insanity and its increase among us. The old Latin proverb tells us that our aim should be to keep a sound mind in a sound body, says the Philadelphia Ledger. "Drink and hurry and worry send a doctor of the men to an asylum," says a doctor, "while love affairs, combined with a lack of food, throw most of the women off their balance." The love affairs would have but little influence over them if they were properly fed, but among the illusions in which girls and women indulge is, that, as they care very little about their food, so the lack of it can not have much effect upon them. They rather despise men for being careful to have regular meals, whether business presses or not, and are inclined to vaunt their own superiority in such respects. But if this disregard of the natural instincts of hunger leads us in the same path as "drink and hurry and worry" leads men, and if we are to be humiliated by hyper-sensitiveness in love affairs, how pre-eminently does male common sense stand out in the matter!

One-Half the Money Wasted.

The great machine, L'Assistance Publique, which dispenses charity to the Paris poor, undoubtedly is the richest charitable establishment in the world. It draws from real estate investments $480,000 and from the government investments $712,000, making an income of over $1,200,000. It is an enormous sum to dispense in charity and it would seem sufficient to make it certain that nobody need go hungry in Paris; but the complaints are constant that worthy people are refused assistance and that the poor die of starvation, and L'Assistance Publique is accused of squandering its millions of francs. It is charged that five-ninths of the income is spent in paying the functionaries who handle this great sum.

The Voice and Altitude.

Generally speaking, races living at high altitudes have weaker and more highly pitched voices than those living in regions where the supply of oxygen is more plentiful. Among the people living on the plateaus between mountain ranges the men have voices like the women and the women like children, and their singing is a shrill monotone.

ALABASTINE

is a durable and natural cement base wall coating. In 5 lb. paper packages, made ready for use in white and fourteen beautiful tints by mixing with cold water. It is a cement that goes through a process of setting, hardens with age, and can be coated and recoated without washing off its old coats before reusing.

ALABASTINE is entirely different from all the various alkalines on the market, being durable and not sticky on the wall with glass. Alabastine customers should insist on having the goods in packages properly labeled. There should be good imitation. There is nothing "just as good."

ALABASTINE

Prevents much sickness, particularly throat and lung difficulties, attributable to unsanitary coatings on walls. It has been recommended in a paper published by the Michigan State Board of Health on account of its sanitary features; which paper strongly condemned alkalines. Alabastine can be used on stucco, plastered walls, wood ceilings, brick or concrete, and any one can brush it on. It admits of radical changes from wall paper decorations, thus covering of themselves the insect and germ life. Alabastine is manufactured by the Alabastine Company of Grand Rapids, Michigan. Informative and interesting booklet mailed free to all applicants.
