One of the most delicate pieces of apparatus is that used for counting the number of cells in the blood. Medical scholars tell us that in a minute drop of blood no larger than the head of a pin there are from three to four million of these red cells. In health there are a certain number in a certain amount of blood; while in certain diseases, as anemia, this number is greatly deficient, causing pale cheeks, white lips, transparent ears, and great debility. This delicate apparatus has proven over and over again that Scott's Emulsion increases these red corpuscles faster than any other known preparation, thus curing or preventing the many diseases and conditions caused by this, poor blood.
