Takes a Sail with a Maniac.

Robert Weiskittel of Cincinnati, general agent of the New York Life Insurance company, who has been staying on Les Cheneaux islands, Near Mackinaw City, had a thrilling experience which nearly cost him his life. Fort Wayne, Ind., is entertaining Mr. Weiskittel made many friends at the hotel where he was stopping, among them being a physician from Flint, Mich. One day the doctor extended an invitation to the insurance man to accompany him in a sail on the lake. The only occupants of the vessel were Wieskittel, his host and the sailor who managed the boat When the boat was out in the lake the doctor suddenly jumped from his seat. In each hand he held a revolver, and in his eye there was the unmistakable glare of the maniac. He declared he was going to kill the other two men. The sailor, unnoticed by the maniac, turned, the boat toward land and the prow touched the sand while the doctor was still talking and flourishing his weapons. Then Weiskittel and the sailor jumped out and ran for life.

The commandant and other officials of the prison were going about their duties on a hot summer afternoon, July 16, when a little, wizened Filipino, serving a life term, assumed a crouching attitude and began to creep up behind with a bolo. TEMPERATURE RISES AS HIGH AS 125 DEGREES.

And People for 10 Months in the Year Sleep Out of Doors-The Town the Hottest in the Entire Country-AU Business Suspends at Noon.

People in the east who complained of the great heat of August should congratulate themselves that they are not forced to live in Yuma, Ariz., the banner hot town of the United States. Fancy an everyday temperature varying from 105 to 125 degrees in the shade for four or five months at a stretch. Imagine a village of several hundred adobe, stone and brick squat one-story houses and store buildings, all with clumsy porches in front, strewn along a dreary red brown roasting bank of a drowsy, muddy stream; where rude thoroughfares straggle up and down a naked hill shimmering under the fiercest, emptiest sky you ever saw. Such is Yuma.

Imagine a region thousands of square miles in area, of yellow sand, quaint cacti, whitened bowlders, not one commanding mountain or shapely prominence-a desolate, ghastly desert waste under a fiery sun-and you have the setting of Yuma. Imagine yourself on some vantage spot and looking over a frontier town paralyzed in overwhelming sunlight, where scantily clad, swarthy Indians sprawl fast asleep on hot earth in a patch of shade, no white person in sight, not a sign of activity anywhere, stores shut, houses bolted and blinded, not a sound heard save a rustling of dried sage brush. And that is life in Yuma during a midsummer afternoon, writes a correspondent on August 10.

The summer thus far this year in Yuma has been an average one. From May 14 to May 30 the temperature every afternoon ranged from 93 degrees to 101. Then there was a week of comparative coolness; the meroury never rose above 90. From June 7 to June 25 the mercury varied from 105 to 113 degrees. Old Sol then settled down to business. The desert sand dunes had become baked, and the foothills were glowing. For six weeks the mercury never was below 102, and from that it has gone to 122 degrees twice. From July 3 to July 20 the average afternoon temperature was 115 degrees. During nights the mercury sunk slowly to an average of 105 at about 4 a. m. With the rising of each sun the mercury climbed up steadily until about 3 o'clock.

And the warmest weeks of the year are yet to make their records. Last summer the hottest day in Yuma was August 26, when the mercury touched 127. In September there were several days when the temperature was at 121. and a few nights when the thermometer never registered lower than 108 degrees. In 1896 Yuma's red letter hot day occurred. It was August 16, when extra hot winds blew from off the the desert. Between dawn and noon the mercury rose from 110 to 123, and by 4 o'clock it rose to 129. Several deaths among children occurred during the heated spell.

Topographically Yuma is situated for the making of high records. As far as the eye can reach, and miles and miles farther, in any direction, there is nothing but profound aridity, through which the Colorado drowsily meanders to the guif of California. From some points nothing is in sight but a vast crumpled sea of yellow sand and the horizon. Yuma is the heart of a region of extinct volcanoes, barren hills and sterile canyons; a region of mirages, Gila monsters and reptiles that thrive amid burning alkali wastes and deadly thirsts, where not a green thing in nature may be seen as far as vision aweeps, except a few sparse cottonwood trees at the railway stations where a withering white sunshine blazes from out a cloudless sky twelve hours a day, months at a time; where inflamed eyes and even blindness from the intense sunshine are common; where the earth is so hot that white people can scarcely walk upon it with thin shoes, and where tough range cattle sicken and die in a few weeks.

At night the whole population sleeps out of doors, and many people slumber under the open heavens 10 months in England Pollows United States.

Red, white and blue, though the colors of the union jack, were not used generally in England as marks of patriotism before the queen's diamond jubilee, three years ago. The old colors were red and white, and the innovation is said to be due to some dealer's importing a large stock of French decorations left over from the French national fetes. Englishmen are cheering the three colors now, however, as vigorously as though they were Americans or Frenchmen.
