The house on the Wm. Shepperd homestead in the southeastern part of the township burned to the ground Sunday. Mrs. Shepperd had a narrow escape from death. She had gone up stairs for her pocketbook, and the stairs were a mass of flames when she endeavored to return to lower floor. She was rescued through an upper window.

Residents of East Grove, north of the Railroad, are taking the initiative in circulating petitions to the railroad company to abolish the dangerous grade crossing at Maple avenue, or establish gates which will protect the public, and especially school children, who are compelled to cross the tracks at this point.

A Hinsdale fruit and vegetable peddler, had his stock in trade ruined, and a wheel smashed on his wagon in a runaway on Main and Curtiss street Saturday. Baskets of peaches, grapes, melons, and vegetables were scattered along the street, and quickly disappeared in the capacious maw of the small boy, before the owner arrived on the scene. When he did arrive to claim his property, Day Policeman Hofer, grabbed him up for hawking without a village license.
