tral get of the wonderful electric tower the Pan-American exposition grounds is at Falls View station, on the Canadian side at Niagara Falls. Looking up and across the river from this station, the electric tower is seen with the naked eye. The distance is about twenty miles. This early glimpse of the greatest of the exposition structures is doubly expressive of the fact that the exposition and Niagara have joined hands and forces to entertain as the public has never entertained before. Standing on the platform of a Michigan Central train at Falls View and looking first down at the falls and gorge, and then far away at the distant electric tower, it is hard to conceive that electric power generated by water power of the falls give life to the lamps on the very apex of the tower. But such is the fact.

Distribution of Light

When one considers the general plan for the proposed illumination of the Every now and then a man's mind grounds of the Pan-American exposition, it is easily seen that the secret of the great success that is to be attained in the illumination is to be found in the evenness of the distribution of light and decorative effect, by dividing the individual lights into as many units as possible and still keeping the points of light proportionate in size to the objects to be decorated

F. MEAGHER.

A MONUMENT TO HIS MEMORY BY MONTANA.

A Rebel in Iroland and Soutenced to Be Hanged-He Gained Fame in the Civil War and Was Acting Governor of Montana.

The name of Gen. Thomas Francis Meagher, one of Montana's early governors to whose memory it is proposed to erect a monument in that commonwealth, is known in two hemispheres. It has made part of the history of Ireland and America. In Ireland it was associated with events which characterized an epoch not rare in the story of that country-an epoch of revolution. What Lord Edward Fitzgerald was to the period of 1798 and Robert Emmet was to the unfruitful, though gallant, movement of 1803, Meagher was, in a great measure, to the revolutionary attempt of 1848.

Meagher's Career in Ireland. Gen. Meagher was born in Waterford, Ireland, in 1823. After his college graduation, in 1843, he entered into the whirl of political strife then raging. The repeal movement was then shaking Ireland. Every town and village was in ferment. O'Connell, playing with the passions of the people, which he controlled with a potency equal to the wand of Prospero, had constructed a gigantic organization. It was at this period that John Mitchell, editor of the Irish Citizen, met young Meagher in Dublin. Meagher's services in the national cause were compressed into the period of a few years. It was the stormlest time in the history of the country during all its struggles against foreign domination since the days of the volunteers in 1782 and the revolution of 1798, of which Wolfe Tone, Fitzgerald, THOMAS FRANCIS MEAGHER. Emmet, Hamilton Rowan and other leaders of the "United Irishmen" were the inspiration.

From 1845 to 1848 Meagher labored zealously with other leaders of the Young Ireland party, whose object was to obtain Irish independence by force or arms. In the summer of 1848 Meagher was captured with arms in his inds in the county of Tipperary a engaged in an effort to array in peasantry winst the authority of slightly faster than the average of the th British coma after O'Brien's attempt at Ballingary. He was tried for high treas a with Smith O'Brien, Terrence Bellew McManus and Patrick O'Donoghue, and was convicted, of creased in ten years 37.8 per cent and course, and sentenced to be

By a special act of royal elemency. however, Meagher was released from the extreme penalty, the punishment of all the conspirators being fixed at transportation for life to the convict settlement at Van Dieman's land. In the spring of 1852, after nearly four years of penal exile, he made his escape and landed in New York in the latter part of May.

Meagher soon became a distinguished lecturer and public writer. He studied law with Judge Emmet and in 1854 became a member of the New York bar, which practice he gave up for a time to undertake an expedition to Central America. In 1853 Meagher published a volume of his speeches on The Legislative Independence of Ire-

His Service in the Civil War.

At the outbreak of the civil war he organized a company of Zonaves for the national army and joined the Sixty-ninth New York Volunteers under Col. Michael Corcoran. He served during the first campaign in Virginia and at the first Bull Run had a horse shot under him. In the latter part of 2861 he organized the Irish Brigade and became its colonel. In February, 1862, he became a brigadier general He and his command fought bravely during the seven days' battle around Richmond, and at the second Bull Run, Fredericksburg and Antietam, where again a horse was shot under him. After Chancellorsville his brigade was so decimated that he resigned and was out of actual service until early in 1864, when he was recommissioned brigadier general of volunteers and assigned to the command of the district of Etowah. In 1865 he was ordered to report for duty to Gen. Sherman at Savannah, but the close of the war put an end to further military service.

As Governor of Montana. same acting governor in the absence | peaceful holiday.

of Gov. Sidney Edgerton. His first official act was to call the legislature together at Helena, February 21, 1866, to provide for the expenses of the government. The attacks of the Indians upon the residents of Fort Benton, on the Upper Missouri, compelled him to call for volunteers, and it was in procuring the armament for these that the circumstances occurred which led to his death. He had traveled 30 miles in the saddle under a scorching July sun, after superintending the arrival of arms and munitions for the militia. He reached Fort Benton the evening of July 1, 1867, wearied from his long journey and, there being no accommodations at the post, he took quarters in a stateroom on board the old battered Missouri steamer G. A. Thompson. That night he attempted to leave the boat. The night was dark and he stumbled over a coil of rope on the deck and fell into the dark, rushing waters. He struck the guard in his descent, which probably disabled him, and, although a gallant swimmer, and despite the efforts of willing hands, he was swept forever from the sight of man. The body was never recovered.

GERMANS ON THE INCREASE. Centus Returns Show Population of Empire to Be 56,000,000. The United States census office has received through the state department a consular report on the population of the German empire and its changes during the last century. The population is now about 56,000,000, larger than that of any other country in Europe except Russia, which has in Europe alone over 106,000,000 subjects. or nearly twice as many as Germany. In 1789 the whole German empire had a population of about 26,000,000 an at the close of the Napoleonic wars in 1815 Sermany, though somewhat reduced in size, had a population of something more than 30,000,000. In 1845, since which date the area has remained almost constant, Germany had 34,000,000; in 1865, 40,000,000; in 1885, 47,000,000, and in 1900, about 55,-500,000, an increase during the century of about 30,000,000. Since 1871, when the modern German empire was organized, the population of Germany has increased about 35 per cent, a growth extremely rapid for an old country and for one sending out large and steady streams of emigrants. The Germans feit a natural pride in the rapid growth of their population, says the report, compared with that of their rival across the Rhine. In 1845 France had about 36,000,000 inhabitants and Germany 24.000,000. Now France has about 38,000 900, or only two-thirds the number in Germany. The provisional results of the census of Vienna, taken December 31, 1900, have just been announced, and according to a report from the consul general at Vienna showed a population of 1.635,-647, or nearly 63,000 less than there were in Chicago when the recent census of that city was taken. These figures show Vienna to rank pext after London, Paris and Berlin among the European capitals, while in this country only New York and Chicago are larger. During the last ten years Vienna has increased 21.9 per cent, or whole United States. Few large cities in this country do not show a larger rate. Of the two American cities larger than Vienna, greater New York in-Chicago 54.4 per cent. In common with most large cities the population residing in the central districts of Vi-

Foothful Editor at Gypsum, Ran. Allan Swisher, aged 12, of Gypsum, Kas., is probably the youngest newspaper editor and publisher in the United States. During the present month he has been made an honorary member of the Kansas State Press association, and has received mention in the columns of W. J. Bryan's Commoner, as follows: "Master Allan Lee Swisher, a 12 year old boy of Gypsum, Kas., is the editor and publisher of a little paper called the Chronicle. The work, both lettering and illustrating, is done with a pen. Whether or not young Swisher will become permanently identified with the newspaper fraternity, he certainly has found useful employment for his spare time." The Gypsum Chronicle has been running twenty-eight weeks. It is a four-page paper customarily, with a larger number of pages occassionally. It is printed on the ordinary white paper used by dailies. While the first copy is made with a pen, the other impressions are made with a stamp or by some other simple process. The first page of a recent number was given up to a penpicture of Alphonso XIII, king of Spain. Master Swisher attends the village school, and spends his evenings in the publication of his paper. Since coming to public notice he has had so many demands for the Chronicle that he has had to call in a number of schoolmates to aid him in "the press work" after the original copy had been Verdi's Herror of Poor Music. Verdi had a horror of barrel organs and when he went on his holidays he had a method of suppressing the street music which was rather unique. At Moncaleri once a visitor found the composer living, sleeping and eating in one room.
