TALMAGE'S

ENCOURAGEMENT FOR THE DIS-COURAGED, THE SUBJECT.

From the Text, Matthew XXV: 15-"To Another One".-The Duty and the Joy of the Christian Is to Carry Good Cheer-Talent of Persuasion.

(Copyright, 1901, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.) Washington, June 2.—This is a discourse by Dr. Talmage for those given to depreciate themselves and who have an idea that their best attempts amount to little or nothing. Text, Matthew xxv., 15: "To another one."

Expel first from this parable of the talents the word "usury." It ought to have been translated "interest." "Usury" is finding a man in a tight place and compelling him to pay an unreasonable sum to get out. "Interest" is a righteous payment for the use of money. When the capitalist of this parable went off from home, he gave to his stewards certain sums of money, wishing to have them profitably invested. Change also your idea as to the value of one talent. You remember the capitalist gave to one of his men for business purposes five talents, to another two, to another one. What a small amount to this last, you think, and how could he be expected to do anything with only one talent? I have to tell you that one talent was about $7,200, so that when my text says. "To another one." it implies that those who have the least have much.

Wasting the Talents.

We bother ourselves a great deal about those who are highly gifted or have large financial resource or exalted official position or wide reaching opportunity. We are anxious that their wealth, their eloquence, their wit, be employed on the right side. One of them makes a mistake, and we say. "What an awful disaster." When one of them devotes all his great ability to useful purposés, we celebrate it; we enlarge upon it: we speak of it as something for gratitude to God. Meanwhile we give no time at all to conmider what people are doing with their one talent, not realizing that ten people of one talent each are quite as important as one man with ten talents. In the one case the advantage or opportunity is concentrated in a single personality, while in another it is diwided among ten individuals. Now what we want to do in this sermon is to waken people of only one talent to appreciation of their duty. Only a few | pulpit. "To another one." people have five talents or ten talents. while millions have one. My short text is like a galvanic shock. "To another one."

Carry Good Cheer. Is it a chearful look? Carry that look wherever you go. It must come from a cheerful heart. It is not that inane smile which we sometimes see which is an irritation. In other words, it must be a light within us so bright that it illumines eye, cheek, nostril and mouth. Let ten men who are accustomed to walking a certain street every day resolve upon a cheerful countenance as a result of a cheerful heart, and the influence of such a facial irradiation would be felt not only in that street, but throughout the town. Cheerfulness is catching. But a cheerful look is exceptional. Examine the first twenty faces that you meet going through Pennsylvania avenue or Chestnut street or Broadway or State street or La Salle street or Euclid avenue, and nineteen out of the twenty faces have either an anxious look or a severe look or a depressing look or an avaricious look or a sneering look or a vacant look. Here is a missionary work for those who have trouble. Arm yourself with gospel comfort. Let the God who comforted Mary and Martha at the loss of their brother, the God who soothed Abraham at the loss of Sarah and the God of David, who consoled his bereft spirit at the loss of his boy by saying, "I shall go to him:" the God who filled St. John with doxology when an exile on barren Patmos and the God who has given happiness to thousands of the bankrupted and persecuted, filling them with heavenly riches which were more than the earthly advantages that are wiped out-let that God help them. If he takes full possession of your nature, then you will go down the street a benediction to all who see you, and those who are in the tough places of life and are run upon and belied and had their homes destroyed will say: "If that man can be happy, I can be happy. He has been through troubles as big as mine, and he goes down the street with a face in every lineament of which there are joy and peace and and embroilment, the genius who quits heaven. What am I groaning about? | work and steps on the stage or politi-From the same place that man got his cal platform, eats beefsteak and quail cheerfulness I can get mine. 'Why art on toast and causes the common laborthou cast down, O my soul, and why ers, compelled to idleness, to put their art thou disquieted within me?

New Race of Ministers.

More people go now to church than ever in the world's history, and the there are more than that on our planreason is in all our denominations there is a new race of ministers stepping into the pulpits which are not the apostles of humdrum. Sure enough, we want in the Lord's army the heavy artillery, but we want also more men who, like Burns, a farmer at Gettysburg, took a musket and went out on his own account to do a little shooting different from the other soldiers. The church of God is dying of the proprieties. People who in every other kind of audience show their emotions in their countenances in religious assemblies while we are discussing coming release and the joys of heaven look as doleful as though they were attending their own funeral. My friends, if you have the one talent of wit or humor are you using it merely to make a few people laugh winter nights

SERMON. cery? Has it never occurred to you that you have a mission to execute with that bright faculty? Do you employ it only in idle conundrum or low farce or harlequinade or humiliating banter? Quit that and swing that flashing scimiter which God has put in your hand for the slaying of sin and the triumph of righteousness. Or is your talent an opportunity to set a good example? One person doing right under adverse circumstances will accomplish more than many treatises about what is right. The census has never been taken of lovely old folks. Most of us, if we have not such a one in our own house now, have in our memory such a saint. We went to those old people with all our troubles. They were perpetual evangelists, by their soothing words, by their hopefulness of spirit, and inexpressible help. I cannot see how heaven could make them any lovelier than they are or were. But there are exceptions. There is a daughter in that family whose father is impatient and the mother querulous. The passage of many years does not always improve the disposition, and there are a great many disagreeable old folks. Some of them forget that they were ever young themselves, and they become untidy in their habits and wonder how, when their asthma or rheumatism is so bad, other people can laugh or sing and go on as they do. The daughter in that family bears all of the peevishness and unreasonable behavior of senility without answering back or making any kind of complaint. If you should ask her what her five talents are or her one talent is, she would answer that she has no talent at all. Greatly mistaken is she. Her one talent is to forbear and treat the childishness of the old as well as she treats the childishness of the young. She is no musician, and besides there may not be a piano in the house. She cannot skillfully swing a croquet mallet or golf stick. Indeed, she seems shut up to see what she can do with a ladle and a broom and a brush and other household implements. She is the personification of patience and her reward will be as long as heaven. Indeed, much of her reward may be given on earth. She is in a rough college, from which she may after a while graduate into brightest domesticity. She is a heroine, though at present she may receive nothing but scoiding and depreciation. Her one talent of patience under trial will do more good than many moroeco covered sermons on patience preached today from the tasseled cushion of the

The Talent of Honesty.

There is a man in business life whose one talent is honesty. He has not the genius or the force to organize a company or plan what is called a "corner in wheat" or "a corner in stocks" or "a corner" in anything. He goes to business at a reasonable hour and returns when it is time to lock up. He never gave a check for $20,009 in all his life, but he is known on the street and in the church and in many honorable circles as an honest man. His word is as good as his bond. He has for thirty years been referred to as a clean, upright, industrious, consistent Christian man. Ask him how many talents he has and he will not claim even one. He cannot make speech, he cannot buy a market, he cannot afford an outshining equipage. but what an example he is to the young, what an bonor to his household, what a pillar to the church of God, what a specimen of truth and integrity and all roundness of character! is there any comparison in usefulness between that man with the one talent of honesty and the dashing operators of the money market, who startle the world first with a "boom" and then with a "slump?" I tell you that the one man with the one talent will live a happier life and die a more peaceful death and go to a better place than his brilliant but reckless contemporary. "To another one."

The chief work of the people with many talents is to excite wonderment and to startle and electrify the world. What use is there in all that? No use at all. I have not so much interest in the one man out of a million as I have in the million. Get the great masses of the world right and it does not make much difference about what the exceptional people are doing. all the people with the one talent enlisted for God and righteousness, and let all those with five or ten talents migrate to the north star or the moon. and this world would get on splendidly. The hard working, industrious classes of America are all right and would give no trouble, but it is the genius who gives up work and on a big salary goes around to excite dissatisfaction hands into empty pockets and ear gristle and gnaw bones. The world would be mightily improved if it could slough off about 5,000 geniuses, for et. Then the man or woman of one talent would take possession of the world and rule it in a common and Christian way. There would less to amaze and startle, but more to world. "To another one."

The Taient of Persussion-Is your talent that of persuasion? to some extent, yet none of us thinks of it as a talent. But it is the mightiest of talents: Do you know that this one talent will fetch the world back to God? Do you know it is by courtesy to old and young alike .the mightiest talent of the high heavens? Do you know that it is the one talent chiefly employed by all the angels of God when they descend to our world -the talent of persuasion? Do you real-around the stove in the corner gro- cross on the hill back of Jerusalem was in persuasion as well as sacrifice? That is the only, absolutely the only, persuasion that will ever induce the human race to stop its march toward the city of destruction and wheel around and start for the city of light. Now may the Lord this moment show each one of us that to a greater or less extent we have that one talent of persuasion and impel us to the right use of it. You say you cannot preach a sermon, but cannot you persuade someone to go and hear a sermon? You say you cannot sing, but cannot you persuade some one to go and hear the choir chant on Christmas or Easter morning? Send a bunch of flowers to that invalid in the hospital, with message about the land where the inhabitants never say "I am sick." There is a child of the street. Invite him into the mission school. There is a man who has lost his fortune in speculation. Instead of jeering at his fall go and tell him of riches that never take wings and fly away. Buckle on that one talent of persuasion, O man, O woman, and you will do a work that heaven will celebrate 10,000 years.

The Final Review.

After the resurrection day and all

heaven is made up, resurrected bodies

joined to ransomed souls, and the gates

which were so long open are shut there may be some day when all the redeemed may pass in review before the great white throne. If so, I think the hosts passing before the King will move in different divisions. With the first division will pass the mighty ones of earth who were as good and useful as they were great. In this division will pass before the throne all the Martin Luthers, the John Knoxes, the Wesleys, the Richard Cecils, the Miltons, the Chrysostoms, the Herschells, the Lenoxes, the George Peabodys, the Abbot Lawrences, and all the consecrated Christian men and women who were great in literature, in law, in medicine, in philosophy, in commerce. Their genius never spoiled them. They were as humble as they were gifted or opulent. They were great on earth and now they are great in heaven. Their surpassing and magnificent talents were all used for the world's betterment. As they pass in review before the King on the great white throne to higher and higher rewards, it makes me think of the parable of the talents, "To another ten." I stand and watch the other divisions as they go by, division after division, until the largest of all the divisions comes in sight. It is a hundred to one, a thousand to one, ten thousand to one, larger than the other divisions. It is made up of men who never did anything but support their families and give whatever of their limited means they could spare for the relief of poverty and sickness and the salvation of the world, mothers who took good care of children by example and precept, starting them on the road to heaven, millions of Sabbath school teachers who sacrificed an afternoon's siesta for the listening class of young immortals, women who declined the making of homes for themselves that they might take care of father and mother in the weaknesses of old age ministers of the gospel who on niggardly stipend preached in the back woods meeting houses, souls who for long years did nothing but suffer, yet suffered with so much cheerful patience that it became a helpful lesson to all who heard of it; those who serv ed God faithfully all their lives and whose name never but once appeared in print and that time in three lines of the death column which some survivor paid for, sailors who perished in the storm while trying to get the life line tried souls who endured without complaint malignity and abuse, those who had only ordinary equipment for hody and ordinary endowment of intellect, yet devoted all they had to holy purposes and spiritual achievement, see this, the largest of all the divisions, from all lands and from all ages, pass in review before the King on the great white throne I am reminded of the wonderful parable of the talents and more especially of my text, "To another one."

COURTESYT OWARD CHILDREN.

Lack of Politeness in Our Intercourse with Them Is Injurious.

Great injury is done not only to the present happiness of children, but to their future character and conduct by lack of politeness in our intercourse with them. Their possessions are their own. How often do we forget that? They are ridiculouss trifles; they are worthless and in our way, yet we have no right to throw them out and burn them without warning or consultation. A sister's or an aunt's gentle persuasion will do much to gain pleasant consent to yielding up the treasures which encumber too much space or are laid down in improper places. A box or basket provided to hold these priceless sticks and stones and once or twice a little pleasant aid in gathering them, and the collector will be gained over to what he sees will surely preserve his property and at the same time the little fellow will have learned respect other people's property and proper way to ask leave touch and handle. While mothers are busy with their often overwhelming give equipoise to church and state and duties, it often happens that to an elder sister much care of the children who are able to amuse themselves is given, and here she will have a de-Make good use of it. #### Finds Charges Groundless.

Col. D. C. Smith, who has made careful investigation of the complaints against Supt.. R. N. McCauley of the Soldiers' Orphan home at Normal, reports to Governor Yates that the charges are groundless. Serious complaints were filed with Governor Yates against Supt. McCauley. They were in effect that children had been confined in dungeons in the basement as means of punishment; that these foul places were full of sewer gas of most deadly character; that they were damp and unhealthy, and a menace to the lives of the children; secondly, that Supt. McCauley was incompetent and that some of the employes smoked cigarettes, swore and acted otherwise so as to corrupt the morals of the chil-

SPORT IN WESTERN CANADA: and His Stock Growing Fat He May

Have Plenty of Shooting. There is probably no country on the American Continent where the life of the farmer carries with it that assurance of comfort and success as does Western Canada. Nor is there to be found anywhere else such a pleasant combination. Game abounds every where and nowhere does it afford such perfect amusement. A noted sportsman writing of the favorite pastime says: "There is one particular spot where I saw a man drop seventy mallards one morning and bring them all to bag, too, for they dropped in open water or on flat prairie. At the right season of the year you can see black lines and triangles cut sharply out against the sky all round you, moving very swiftly, and you begin to wonder whether you have enough cartridges to hold out. You can hear the prair:e chicken crowing like barn-door fowls, and a little to the northeast is a bit of marshy ground, cattle-poached and dappled with gleaming pools, where the snipe are nearly as thick as mosquitoes. A thin column of blue smoke curling up in the distance shows you where a few wandering Indians have pitched their camp, but there is no other indication of civilization in sight. Still, the neighborhood is wellsettled, and a short drive will bring you to a farmhouse, where you can buy the finest butter and the freshest eggs for uncivilized prices. A very short railway journey will bring you to a country full of deer and the lordly wapiti, the king of the deer tribe the world over, and down on the flat, hoggy land by the lake shores the moose will stand knee deep in water on the summer evenings ready to lie down when the flies get bothering. All day you breathe the wild free air of the prairie, and at night you are lulled to sleep by the surge and ripple and splash of the waves on the beach. broken now and then by the wierd banshee-cry of strange water-fowl." Particulars regarding settlement of the lands of Western Canada can be had from any agent of the Canadian government, whose advertisement appears elsewhere in your columns.

After five years of rivalry between the leaders of the two great relimovements the famous breach tween Gen. William Booth, the found er and head of the Salvation Army the world, and his son, Ballin Booth, who is at the head of the Vol unteers of America, may soon b healed. I. D. Hazard of New York, financial secretary of the colonisation and social settlement department of the Salvation Army of America, who is now in Cleveland, is authority for the statement, according to dispatches from the Ohio city, that secret negotiations are now being carried on with the view to effect a reconciliation between Gen. William Booth and his son. Gen. William Booth planted the seed from which the Salvation Army has grown and he has lived to see it the greatest religious organization of modern times, so far as work among the lower and criminal classes is concerned. For twelve years Ballington Booth was the commander in chief of the Salvation Army and about five years ago, when he disagreed with his father, he severed his connection with the Salvation Army and organized what is known as the Volunteers of America. The rupture between the father and the son caused widespread discussion.

Woman's Slayer Caught by Boy. A man who had just committed murder ran down the steps of the Vernon. hotel, Chicago, Monday evening brandishing the revolver with which he had shot a woman. At the foot of the stairs he brushed a 16-year-old boy aside and ran swiftly east in Randolph street. The boy followed the murderer, and captured him. The man was identified as Edward Forshay. The woman, Edna Forshay, an actress, was found lying with two wounds in the breast, lying in the hallway of the hotel. In his letter to his mother Forshay spoke of the actress as if she had been his wife. In talking he did not admit that she had that claim upon him. They went to the Vernon hotel three weeks ago. Three days ago he quarreled with her, according to the hotel employes, struck her, leaving the marks of the blows upon her neck.
