Miss Ina Hall returned Thursday from Wichita, Kansas. The Daily Eagle of Wednesday gives the young lady the following highly complimentary notice: Miss Ina Hall who has been in this city since last autumn attending the public schools of Wichita, left yesterday for her home in Chicago, where she will spend the summer season with her mother. Miss Hall while here has made home with her grandmother, Mrs. Dr. Hall, and attended the Irving school, graduating from the eighth grade there with honors last week. She is a delightfully interesting, bright and attractive little lady with ennobling qualities of heart and mind and has made large and enduring circle of friends during her stay here who cordially express the hope that she will return to resume her studies here and renew old friendships. All wish her a pleasant vacation at home in the Lake city.

The second week of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" in Chicago was ushered in with much eclat on Monday at the Auditorium. William A. Brady's monster production has attracted throngs of people since its opening, and the line in front of the box-office has not been broken during a fortnight. The critics have commented enthusiastically on this rendering of Harriet Beecher Stowe's melodrama, none of them dissenting from the opinion that not even in the palmy days at the Boston Museum or when Lewis James and Mary Wainwright offered it has the piece been so magnificently staged and so intelligently acted. "From a spectacular standpoint it had everything of the kind out classed so far that comparisons are more than usually odious." The scenic environment of Uncle Tom is artistic as well as stupendous. The ice-choked Ohio river by moonlight; the snow-covered gorge in the mountains of Kentucky; the St. Clair mansion, and the transformations alike are marvels of beauty. The New Orleans levee and the cotten field, when crowded with gaily decked negroes, are gratifying to the eye, too, while a wealth of suggestions is in the broken shutters and the unshingled roof of Simon Legree's home on the Red river. Matinees are announced for Wednesdays and Saturdays. The engagement is positively limited to three weeks.
