Howl, you howlers! Curse the trust and the minute you get $10 abead send an order to some mail-order house an help support the biggest trusts in th country. What if you get goods a little cheaper? That is just what the truste claim they do. They crush out competi tion with their prices, and if you take th benefit you simply sustain them in their contention. Every dellar sent to a mai order house is that much contributed to ward building up a trust. The proprietor is not a philanthropist in any sense of the word. He is a shrewd business man wh by judicious advertising has built up a trust that bids fair to wreck the majority of small towns. If you desire this send them your cash and get credit from your home merchant. Let your actions speak for you, and practice what you preach.

A growing and commendable custom i noticed in Downers Grove of ladies appear ing on the streets with uncovered heads The fashion really commenced its run a year ago, and doubtless owns its popularity not only to its comfort but to the convenience it affords. The custom is indeed to comfortable and sensible to be see dropped, and it is predicted that only on conventional occasions will hate be worn at all during summer weeks. In other neighboring cities the custom of removing hate and bonnets in church has been en thusiastically adopted, and those living in town go to church with heads uncovered The pastors endorse the custom, as it en ables the congregation to see them, which makes it essier to held the attention and at the same time gives the people the benefit of expressions and gestures. The Jacksonville Courier speaks to the point when it says: "The prosperity each is bound up in the prosperity of all, and no individual can escape bis share of responsibility for the result. To criticise the methods of those who are trying to advance home interests is not as conducive to do good as to take off one's own coat and put his shoulder to the wheel and all push together." There is an old saying, the gist of which that it is easier to find fault than to do better. It is easier to kneck than to construct. But in the end a community is a partnership in which all receive a chare of the profite, and in ad vancing the common welfare the laborer, the business man and the capitalist are alike under obligation to do their share according to their ability.

Farmers are rejoicing over the changed corn leaves were carled and drosping and chuckle of triumph the Deacon jumps fort. the potators well, there were none that an exposed man. Then with the return dare hold up their bends. Today one may of the far-away look Si takes three for look upon green pastures and lawns that one and lands in the kingrow, look af if they had never thirsted for a drink. Fields of dark green corn bid fair to yield the tillers of the soil a hundred bushels per acre, and the petatoes have Some of the boys have been practicing taken a new lease of life and ere trying hard to yield a part of a crop at least.

No. of Concession, Name of Street, or other party of the Concession, Name of Street, or other pa It was the chief purpose of the framers of the new revenue law to uncover the monies and credits that have escaped taxation for years, and the increases being made in the personal property assessments throughout the state show that it is be glaning to accomplish its purpose. When such property is compelled to bear its just share of the general burden, there will be much less complaint about taxation.

Jones of Arkansas has already again one into the prophesying business. He says the next president will be a Democrat. Nothing more encouraging to Republicans could be uttered by Senator Jones. Our readers will remember his positive predictions of Bryan's election the day before Mc-Kinley was re-elected last November. Likewise in 1896.

The Hon. Champ Clark has decided on Thomas B. Reed (Rep.) and Joseph Ballay (Dem.) as the opposing candidates for president in 1904. Mr. Clark has also reversed the decision of the supreme court in the insular cases. Such stupendous achievements seem ingularly, unfitted to the present heatad term.

Henry Waterson's jubilation over the solar plexus blow given to popu-Hem in Ohio: "At last the Buckeye vallants are tired of sucking eggs," is peros more expressive than elegant. Some to think about it, the self-same ency was engaged in "sucking eggs" very long ago. Has he too got

VILLAGE ETCHINGS.

White Emmons Jonkins and his terie devote most of their attention blocks below the cross roads where the quoiters congregate, at an old brick building known as the Stock Exchange. The structure was at one time a butcher shop and in its little back room the older villagers were wont to gather on cold afternoons to swap lies. The shop has been remodelled and a roll top deak littered with papers-the nearest approach to business which the place offers-stands in the spot once occupied by the butcher's block and sanguinary array of knives and cleavers. In front of the desk and nearer the big window is a plain deal table and upon it are the checkers and chess men which delight the hearts of the Commerce club.

Every day but Sunday the members of this eminently respectable organization gather with a regularity that puts the quoiters to shame, for they have some off days because of the weather. In the old days of the butcher shop and the little back room, checkers was the favorite pastime of the frequenters of the place but with the added dignity of the transformation of the shop to a real estate office and the assumption of the title Stock Exchange came the chessmen with their strange shapes and erratic moves. By common consent the champion the "Red Line" at Nash's. chess player is Dr. Strong who for a number of years has devoted his spare time to the solving of chess problems. When a stranger drifts into the stock exchange and admits that he plays chess the Doctor is trotted out and the members of the club seat themselves in a solemn circle to swait the certain defeat of the new-comer who, perhaps, before that has prided himself on a knowledge of the game. The expression which flits over the Doctor's face when at last he calls "checkmate," is worth going miles to see.

When it comes to playing checkers. however, all hands take off their hats to Silas Whitcomb, called Si for short, Si dosen't move very swiftly-indeed all his actions are characterized by a degree of deliberation which is refreshing in these days of trolley cars and express trains-but at checkers he certainly gets there. Once in a while he loses a game but that is more from good nature and a desire to please his Mertz & Mochel's. opponent than from an inability to win. He has a way of pausing before a move, to let his eye roam around the room and out of the window while he ponders over the probable result, which is exasperating to a nervous player and which causes the Deacon, who occasionally drops in for a friendly game to writhe in his chair.

"Your move! your move, Si" he will exclaim fidgeting nervously, "Your move, Si, I can't be sitting around here all day; your move, Si!" Then Si coming out of his trance makes a seeming. ly useless move. With a premature
