

governments of Colombia and Venesula in war.

There is a contingency which might involve the United States in difficulties with foreign countries. Both Venezuela and Colombia have large foreign debts, on most of which interest has not been paid for years. Bonds representing this indebtedness are held chiefly by England and Holland. If, in order to protect these boudholders from further loss by a disastrous war, either of these nations should interfere it is probable that the Monroe doctrine would be involved and the United States would cry "Hands off."

In the meantime it may be well to explain that the popular idea that this is a mere farce comedy revolution is not altogether well founded. In the first place the territory of the Repub-Le of Colombia is ten times as large as that of the State of Illinois, while its population is only 6,000, against 4,800,000 in Illinois. In the second place the attacks on the present government of Colombia have been many during recent years that the Colombian army has been greatly enlarged. It is now said to consist of upward of 40,000 well-drilled and experienced soldiers, who are under the command of able generals. The government is conservative, and its friends say that it is devoted to building up the trade and commerce of the republic.

On the other hand, even his bitterest enemies admit that General Uribe-Urise, the revolutionist leader (reported dead, but report is not credited) is a man of spotless personal character, who is actuated by the purest motives.

Even at that general and the negro sergeant led time the revolution was well under way, and General Uribe-Uribe directed its operations for several weeks from his Broadway hotel. While in this General Uribe-Uribe was anxious to country he made friends with many prominent business men, who were impressed with his plain sincerity and his patriotic fervor.

So he acquired the splendid physique and the courage which has enabled him to win no less than forty-six pitched battles, coming off victorious and scatheless in every one he has been engaged in.

In the meantime his ambitious parents saw that the boy's education was not neglected. After he had finished at the little mountain school he was sent to the great national university of Bogota, the capital of Colombia, which is also a mountain city located far in the interior and thousands of feet above the sea level. Here the young man graduated and then went back to his mountain home to practice his profession as a lawyer. Almost immediately he was chosen by his fellowtownsmen to represent his native town in the national Chamber of Deputies, corresponding to the lower house of Congress in this country. Uribe-Uribe soon developed great powers as an orator, writer, and leader in the House. The Conservative party was in control of the government, and Uribe thundered in vain in favor of a free press, free speech, and free education

These reforms were resisted by the government, and finally the people of Uribe-Uribe's mountain home rose in revolt. Their first revolution was in 1876, and Uribe threw himself at once into their cause. He soon won a wide reputation as a brave and able soldier. A second revolt occurred in 1885, and in this struggle Uribe won great fame, becoming the leader of the insurgent

Time and time again, at the head of only 300 mountaineers, Uribe won victories over larger numbers of government troops. Once when a few of the men under his command mutinied Uribe shot the leader with his own hand and reduced the other to submission in a few minutes.

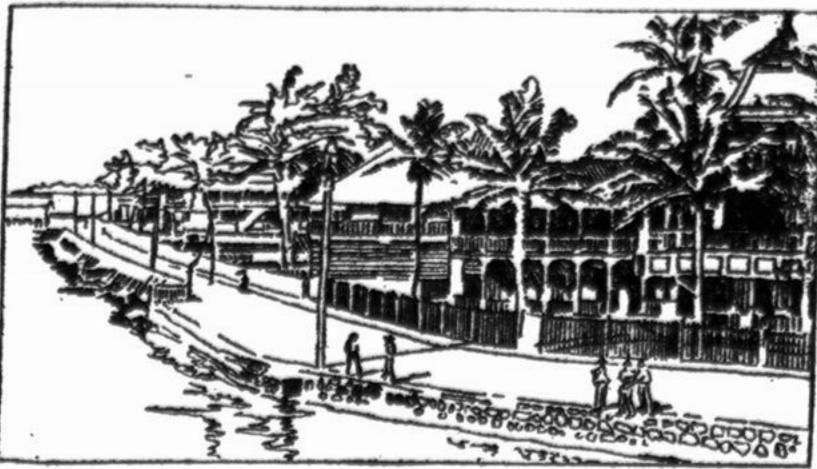

Finally be was captured and thrown into prison. When he was brought to trial his defense was so logical and eloquent that he was acquitted without a moment's hesitation.

In the latter part of 1899 another inserrection broke out at the head of which Uribe promptly placed himself During this struggle, which has been almost continuous ever since, Uribe performed many feats of daring and heroism. On one occasion the rebel army lay on one side of a stream facing a greater force of the enemy. A narrow bridge formed the only passage way over the deep river. Uribe finally announced that at a certain hour He is at the same time one of the most | he personally, with the first ten volunteers, would cross that bridge and lead on the isthmus. Copid will have a hard time soon Family Red to Pick Their Wheat Or Mornel by Mornel.

In narrating the frontier experiences of "The First White Baby Born in the Northwest," in The Ladies' Home Journal, W. S. Harwood tells of a queer experience that befell the family in the first year after settling on farm far removed from the settlements."The winter had been unusually long and severe, and their store of provisions ran low. It was a long distance to the nearest base of supplies. and communication with the outside world had been cut off. Indians in the neighborhood one night broke into the granary where the wheat was stored and stole a quantity. In doing this a large amount of broken glass became mixed with the wheat which the Indians left, so for many days. amidst much merry story-telling and many a joke and laugh, in spite of the serious situation, the family gathered about a large table in their livingroom and spent the short winter days picking over the wheat, kernel by kernel, in order to free it from the pieces of glass. For this wheat stood between them and starvation, and none of its precious kernels must be lost. Their stock of flour had long since wasted away, as had most of their food supplies, so they boiled and ate the wheat without grinding. Relief reached them just in time to prevent a sad ending to the experience."
