Delivered at the McKinley Funeral in Canton.

A SWEET AND TENDER STORY

McKinley's Devotion to His Invalid Wife -How the Dead Statesman Became a Christian-The World's Grief Over Our Nation's Loss.

The following is the full text of the sermon of Dr. C. E. Manchester at the McKinley funeral in Canton Thursday: Our President is dead. "The silver cord is loosed, the golden bowl is broken, the pitcher is broken at the fountain, the wheel broken at the cistern, the mourners go about the streets." "One voice is heard-a wail of sorrow from all the land, for the beauty of Israel is slain upon the high places. How are the mighty failen! I am distressed for thee, my brother. Very pleasant hast thou been unto me." Our President is dead. We can hardly believe it. We had hoped and prayed, and it seemed that our hopes were to be realized and our prayers answered, when the emotion of joy was changed to one of grave, apprehension. Still we waited, for we said, "It may be that God will be gracious and merciful unto us." It seemed to us that it must be his will to spare the life of one so well beloved and so much needed. Thus, alternating between hope and fear, the weary hours passed on. Then came the tidings of a defeated science, of the failure of love and prayer to hold its object to the earth. We seemed to hear the faintly muttered words: "Good-bye all, good-bye.

REV. DR. C. E. MANCHESTER. It's God's way. His will be done." And then, "Nearer, my God, to thee."

Passes On to Be at Rest. Bo, nestling nearer to his God, he passed out into unconsciousness, skirted the dark shores of the sea of death for a time, and then passed on to be at rest. His great heart had ceased to beat. Our hearts are heavy with sorrow.

"A voice is heard on earth of kinfolk weeping The loss of one they love;

But he has gone where the redeemed are keeping A festival above.

Has reached the Father's home." The cause of this universal mourning to be found in the man himself. The inspired penman's picture of Jonathan, Hkening him unto the "Beauty of Israci," could not be more appropriately employed than in chanting the lament of our fallen chieftain. It does no violence to human speech, nor is it fulsome eulogy to speak thus of him, for who that has but if I can, by official act or adminisseen his stately bearing, his grace and manliness of demeanor, his kindliness of to the prosperity and unity of our beaspect but gives assent to this descrip-

Loved by All Who Knew Him.

It was characteristic of our beloved President that men met him only to love him. They might, indeed, differ with him, but in the presence of such dignity of character and grace of manner none could fail to love the man. The people confided in him, believed in him. It was said of Lincoln that probably no man since the days of Washington was ever so deeply embedded and enshrined in the hearts of the people, but it is true of McKinley in a larger sense. Industrial and social conditions are such that he was, even more than his predecessors, the friend of the whole people. A touching scene was enacted in this church last Sunday night. The services had closed. The worshipers were gone to their homes. Only a few lingered to discuss the sad event that brings us together today. Three men of a foreign race and unfamiliar tongue, and clad in working garb. entered the room. They approached the altar, kneeling before it and before the dead man's picture. Their lips moved as if in prayer, while tears furrowed their cheeks. They may have been thinking other man ever had such high honors beof their own King Humbert and of his untimely death. Their emotion was eloquent, eloquent beyond speech, and it bore testimony to their appreciation of manly friendship and of honest worth.

Soul Clean and Hands Unsullied. It is a glorious thing to be able to say in this presence, with our illustrious dead before us, that he never betrayed the confidence of his countrymen. Not for personal gain or pre-eminence would he mar the beauty of his soul. He kept it clean and white before God and man, and his hands were unsullied by bribes. "His eyes looked right on, and his eyelids looked straight before him." He was sincere, plain and honest, just, benevolent and kind. He never disappointed those who believed in him, but measured up to every duty and met every reaponaibility in life grandly and unflinchingly. Not only was our President brave, heroic and honest; he was as gallant a knight as ever rode the lists for his lady love in the days when knighthood was in flower. It is but a few weeks since the nation looked on with tear-dimmed eyes | soon follows.

Some of the Abuses of Reading. What are the abuses of reading? These: 1. Hurried reading without concentration. 2. Reading for mere entertainment without reflection. Reading when we ought to be doing fellow. some other thing.

Governor Loves Fine Horses. Governor Geer of Oregon is a lover of fine horses. He has given a great deal of time to this fad and is now said to be the best judge of horses in the state.

as it saw with what tender conjugal devotion he sat at the bedside of his beloved wife, when all feared that a fatal liness was upon her. No public clamor that he might show himself to the populace, no demand of a social function was sufficient to draw the lover from the bedside of his wife. He watched and waited while we all prayed-and she lived.

Tender Story of His Love. This sweet and tender story all the world knows, and the world knows that his whole life had run in this one groove of love. It was a strong arm that she leaned upon and it never failed her. Her smile was more to him than the plaudits of the multitude and for her greeting his acknowledgments of them must wait. After receiving the fatal wound his first thought was that the terrible news might be broken gently to her. May God in this deep hour of sorrow comfort her. May his grace be greater than her anguish. May the widow's God be her God. Another beauty in the character of our President, that was a chaplet of grace about his neck, was that he was a Christian. In the broadest, noblest sense of the word that was true. His confidence in God was strong and unwavering. It held him steady in many a storm where others were driven before the wind and tossed He believed in the fatherhood of God and in his sovereignty. His faith in the gospel of Christ was deep and abiding. He had no patience with any other theme of pulpit discourse. "Christ and him crucified" was to his mind the only panacea for the world's disorders. He believed it to be the supreme duty of the Christian minister to preach the word. He said: "We do not look for great business-men in the pulpit, but for great preachers."

Ever a True Christian. It is well known that his godly mother had hoped for him that he would become a minister of the gospel, and that she believed it to be the highest vocation in life. It was not, however, his mother's faith that made him a Christian. He had gained in early life a personal knowledge of Jesus which guidded him in the performance of greater duties and vaster than have been the lot of any other American President. He said at one time, while bearing heavy burdens, that he could not discharge the daily duties of his life but for the fact that he had faith in God. William McKinley believed in prayer, in the beauty of it, in the potency of it. Its language was not unfamiliar to him, and his public addresses not infrequently evince the fact. It was perfectly consistent with his life-long convictions and his personal experiences that he should say as the first critical moment after the assassination approached, "Thy Kingdom come; thy will be done," and that he should declare at the last, "It is God's way; his will be done." He lived grandly: it was fitting that he should die grandly. And now that the majesty of death has touched and calmed him we find that in his supreme moment he was still a conqueror.

Lessons from the Sad Event.

Let us turn now to a brief consideration of some of the lessons that we are to learn from this sad event. The first one that will occur to us all is the old, old lesson that "in the midst of life we are in death." "Man goeth forth to his work and to his labor until the evening." "He fleeth as it were a shadow and never continueth in one stay." Our President went forth in the fullness of his strength, in his manly beauty, and was sudden'y smitten by the hand that brought death with it. None of us can tell what a day may bring forth. Let us, therefore, remember that "No man liveth to himself and none of us dieth to himself." May each day's close see each day's duty done. Another great lesson that we should heed is the vanity of mere earthly greatness. In the presence of the dread messenger, how small are all the trappings of wealth and distinction of rank and power. I beseech you, seek him who said: "I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live, and whosoever liveth and beileveth in me shall never die." There is but one Savior for the nick and the weary. I entreat you, find him, as our brother found him. But our last words must be spoken. Little more than four years ago we bade him good-bye as he went to assume the great responsibilities to which the nation had called him. His last words as he left us were, "Nothing could give me greater pleasure than this farewell greeting-this evidence of your friendship and sympathy, your good will, and, I am sure, the prayers of all the people with whom I have lived so long and whose confidence and esteem are dearer to me than any other earthly honors. To ail of us the future is as a sealed book. tration or utterance, in any degree add loved country and the advancement and well-being of our splendid citizenship, I will devote the best and most unselfish efforts of my life to that end. With this thought uppermost in my mind, I reluctantly take leave of my friends and neighbors, cherishing in my heart the sweetest memories and thoughts of my old homemy home now-and, I trust, my home hereafter, so long as I live." We hoped with him that when his work was done, freed from the burdens of his great office, crowned with the affections of a hapby people, he might be permitted to close his earthly life in the home he had loved.

Sadness of the Home-Coming. He has, indeed, returned to us, but how? Borne to the strains of "Nearer. My God, to Thee," and placed where he first began life's struggle, that the people might look and weep over so sad a homecoming. But it was a triumphal march. How vast the procession. The nation rose and stood with uncovered head. The people of the land are chief mourners. The nations of the earth weep with them. But, O, what a victory. I do not ask you in the heat of public address, but in the calm moments of mature reflection, what stowed upon him, and by so many people? What pageant has equaled this that we look upon tonight? We gave him to the nation only a little more than four years ago. He went out with the light of the morning upon his brow, but with his task set, and the purpose to complete it. We take him back a mighty conqueror.

The Absence of It. If there is any truth in the saying that happiness is the absence of pain, mental and physical, the enjoyment of it can only be found in heaven. But so far as the physical is concerned, it is within easy reach; least measurably so, as far as cure will go. A City of Apartment Houses. The building operations on Monkattan island show that New York City more and more runs to hotels, restaurants and apartment houses, and this goes to show the marked decline of home life, in the old acceptance of the term. Folks of morest incomes who desire to maintain the old conditions are driven to the suburbs of the great city or to its outlying parts. Unless one be possessed of great fortune, to live near the heart of the city means much sacrifice of privacy as residence in hotels and apartment houses involves. The roomers and transients give abundant business to the multiplying restaurants. Thus New York tends to become a city apartment and tenement houses, the well-to-do in the former and the poor in the latter. Under the pressure of these conditions the science of building apartment houses of the first-class has made great advances, by which the largest amount of luxury is aimed at with the least expenditure of space. Apartments of the best sort command yearly rents that would buy a fine house in the lesser cites. The increase in apart-

"It will be better to pay it now perhaps," he added, "than to leave something as security, for you will not be likely to see me here again."

Then picking up his change which comprised about all the money the cashier could find in the establishment, he bowed and walked out.

The Excess of Women, The census returns show that of the 32,526,075 persons enumerated in England and Wales, 15,721,728 were males and 16,804,347 females. This gives an excess of 1,082,619 females, an excess which is partially attributable to the fact that men serving in the army, navy and the merchant service abroad are excluded from the reckoning. In 1891 the excess was 896,723. To each bundred males enumerated there were 106.9 females. The proportion of females has been steadily increasing at each census since 1851, having been successively 104.2, 105.3, 105.4, $66.4, and 106.9 to one hundred males.

The temperature of the atmosphere cools, on an average, about one degree for every 300 feat that we ascend, or wurms at the same rate as we descend. The mean temperature at the north pole is about 0, and at the equator between 80 and 9 degrees. We can, therefore, get into a temperature one degree colder for every 70 or 80 miles that we travel north, or in a temperature one degree warmer for every 70 or 80 that we travel south.

COLORADO MINING STOCKS.

Buy DEER GOLD MINING COMPANE'S stock at 25c per share. Company controls 25c,000,000,000 and made eight or ten millionaires. There is no reason why this mine should not develop into a property of equal magnitude, and advance from 25c per share to 35c,000 or 31c,000 per share.

Heavy development work is now being carried on in both shafts, one 700 and the other 500 feet deep. One hundred thousand deliars have been spent to date in development. Experts pronounce this ground the making of one of the largest mines in the Leadville district. Leadville has produced upwards of $275,000,000.00 and has made more millionaires than any other camp we have.

I believe dividends will be paid on this stock in the very near future. Twenty-five deliars buys 160 shares; one hundred and twenty-five deliars buys 300 shares, or two hundred and fifty deliars buys 1,000 shares.
