al men in the state. We do not need J Cooper survive him. more, but we do need more liberally educated and scientific farmers, men who have been taught to think, study, experiment and investigate along agri-ultural lines The secret of success in agriculture is education, but is must be a practical education, an education that shall instruct and interest, an education that shall fill the farmer with enthusiasis m, that shall impire him with an ambition to excel, that shall awaken within him a feeling of pride and respect for his calling and an approdution of the advantages and opportunities of farm life, an education that shall make for us a better agriculture Our best educators all agree that no other one influence is so poworful for improvement in agriculture so the farmers' institute, where new discoveries and experiments are discurred and applied to local conditions. The farmers' institute will be held at the Court House, Wheaton, February 12, 13 and 14. Following is the progrum:
