The fashion of making a round of calls has always been a tax on the society woman. Therefore any delicate way out of it will be hailed with joy and the latest is "calling" by telephone. "Formal calls," said a society woman, "are becoming obsolete. I mean the running in of an afternoon, chatting for five or ten minutes, leaving your cards, rushing off to the next place on your list, and then expecting these women to do the same thing to you and praying you may be out when they call. That sort of thing is growing beautifully less and less and I think the telephone is largely responsible for it. I make nearly all my calls now over the 'phone. It is so much more comfortable and saves such a lot of time and bother. I just sit down in my own home and call up Mrs. Smith in her home. I owe her a call. If she is in she comes to the 'phone and, although I may have nothing in particular to talk about, we chatter away for several minutes and before I ring off I impress upon her the fact that I am returning her call and that she needn't expect me to call in person. She laughs and thinks it all right and then pays some of the calls she owes in the same way. It really does away with a great nuisance."—American Telephone Journal. Officials of the Chicago Telephone company inform us that quite a number of women have already adopted this plan of returning calls and that the demand for residence telephones has increased 30 per cent in the past month.
