THE PRESIDENT'S DANGER.

In a thoughtful discourse to the New York bar association on the "Suppression of Anarchy," James M. Beck, assistant attorney general of the United States, suggested that "the people can aid in the protection of the president" against the assassin "by giving to his high office the respect that is its due. It is the misfortune of our political system that the president is not above and apart from party politics as is the French chief magistrate, or the English constitutional ruler, but is a party leader, and therefore the storm center of all our political conflicts, about whose head plays the fatal lightning of political passion. Barely has any president escaped scurrilous criticism and unjust abuse, and no one can measure what influence the public abuse of Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley had in the death of each. God forbid that I should advocate in any way the abridgment of the right of free speech or of a free press. The genius of our institutions requires that discussion be free. If a citizen be honestly of the opinion that the president seeks to subvert the liberties of his country, it is not only his right but his duty to say so. We have no place in our political institutions for the maxim "the king can do no wrong," and the oil of anointment, which was supposed to consecrate the monarch, has not fallen from his head to give any peculiar sanctity to the choice of the people. As any other public servant, the president must give an account of his stewardship and the manner in which he has discharged his trust most of necessity in a free country be the subject of a fair discussion. But there is a clear line between criticism and insult. The law may not be able to draw it, but men of gentlemanly and patriotic instinct cannot fail to mark it. The man who publicly degrades the personality of the president and weakens the respect of his high office makes assassination possible. If this lesson can be learned by the American people the martyred McKinley will not have died in vain."

Benjamin Kidd, the economist, who has just made a tour of the new British South Africa, says he believes the country to be richer than the United States west of the Mississippi, and believes that its future is assured.

Apogee of Lord Kelvin's assertion that in 400 years the coal of the world will be used up, M. Cartieux, chief engineer of the Northern railway of France, says that in ten years, between petroleum and alcohol, coal mining will not pay.

Bertillon, the expert who won unenviable notoriety in the Dreyfus case, has at last vindicated his claims for his system of detection. A mysterious murder was committed in Paris lately, and no clew was left by the murderer except certain fingerprints on a window pane. The streaks were photographed and enlarged and Bertillon identified them as belonging to a man who had undergone the anthropometric system eight years ago. The man was found and arrested and the murder has been proved against him.

George Seton, a London writer, has published a budget of anecdotes, one of which tells of a fashionable woman who appeared before Pope Leo in a very low-necked dress. His holiness disapproved of the costume so strongly that he sent a cardinal to remonstrate with the wearer. The messenger made this rather ambiguous explanation: "The pope, my dear madam, is rather old-fashioned, you know, and dislikes seeing any lady in evening dress. I, on the other hand, who have spent six years of my life as a missionary among the cannibals, am quite used to it."

Quite a good hull was made by Sir Thomas Myles, an eminent Irish surgeon, at a recent meeting of the Solicitors' Apprentices' Debating society in Dublin. Sir Thomas was speaking of Cecil Rhodes, whom he greatly admired. He pictured the condition of things in South Africa just previous to the Boer war and asked with emphasis: "At such a time was England to stand with her arms folded and her hands in her pockets?" He was somewhat disconcerted by the yell of laughter which arose, but after a moment or two joined in the merriment, saying, good-humoredly that his apology could be found in the fact that he was an Irishman.

MEN IN PUBLIC LIFE.

Count von Buelow is now known in Germany as "the happy phrase-making chancellor."

When Senator Spooner is in an exciting debate his hair seems to bristle up a little more than usual, and he frequently runs his hands through it, catching it in his bunches and twisting it into varied fantastic figures.

Senator Hoar was showing some Massachusetts visitors about Washington one day and was pointing out a magnificent old residence built years ago by a famous and rather shady lawyer of his time. "Why," was asked, "was he able to build a house like that by his practice?" "Yes," replied the senator, "by his practice and his practices."

Every election day for the past 27 years ex-Senator Dawes, of Massachusetts, has been driven to the polls by his old coachman, Patrick O'Hearn. On their arrival Mr. Dawes casts his ballot and afterwards holds the horse while the coachman goes in and votes. He confesses to an admiration for the Irishman's loyalty to his political faith, which has not been shaken by any of the arguments of his employer. The favor of the story lies in the fact that Patrick being a democrat and Mr. Dawes a republican it would amount to exactly the same thing if neither of them voted.

HELPS AND HINTS.

Stained teacups and other china should be rubbed with a little salt. After the discoloration has gone wash and dry the china as usual.

A judicious blend of different kinds of coffee always produces a better liquor than any single coffee; but this mixture ought to be made after roasting and not before.

Cutting butter in very cold weather is often a difficulty. When cutting a slice of butter from a large roll first dip the knife into hot water, when all likelihood of breaking the butter will be avoided.

To clean a clock lay in the bottom a rag saturated with kerosene oil. The fumes will loosen the dirt and it will drop out. In a few days remove and place another saturated rag in the clock, the fumes of which will lubricate the works.

Milk is an excellent substitute for soap in washing dishes. It not only softens the water and gives the dishes a clear, polished look, but it preserves the hands from chapping. It also prevents a greasy scum from appearing on the top of the water.

ACROSS THE ATLANTIC.

Eighty per cent. of the heads of British families are men, and only 20 per cent. women.

Prisoners in England awaiting trial can now elect to work during the period and to receive payment accordingly.

The agricultural returns of Great Britain for 1920 show that the total under crops and grass was 22,287,765 acres—a decrease of 20,490 compared with 1921.

Inmates of an institute for the blind at Sunderland, England, have struck, after having duly communicated with the National League of the Blind, because the wages they received for making ship and furniture have been reduced.

Coughs

"My wife had a deep-seated cough for three years. I purchased two bottles of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, large size, and it cured her completely."—J. H. Burge, Macon, Col.

Probably you know of cough medicines that relieve little coughs, all coughs, except deep ones!

The medicine that has cured the worst of deep coughs for 60 years is Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

Three sizes: 25c, 50c, $1.00. Consult your doctor. If he says, "If he tells you not to take it, then don't take it. He knows."

An inactive liver prevents any cough medicine from doing its best work. Ayer's Pills are liver pills. J. C. AYER CO., Lowell, Mass.

COLORADO

That is the title of a very beautiful seventy-two-page book published by the C, B. and Q. railroad. It is most entertaining and informative, besides being illustrated with exceptionally fine engravings. The rates to Colorado are so cheap this year that many will take their vacation there. They should ask the C, B. and Q. ticket agent for this book. Price, 6 cents.
