There are a vast amount of corn unhusked and this is so unusual that it creates no end of comment. The long season of rainy weather last fall, followed by cold weather, prevented farmers from getting out their corn crop and a considerable part of it is still in the field. The offering for Hopkin's theatre for the week commencing Sunday matinee March 30 is that clever Burlesque organization which is styled Clarke's New Royale. Although the "Royals" have been on the road but a few years, it has in that time gradually climbed to the topmost ranks in the burlesque field and today it stands positively without a peer. It is fully as meritorious as any and a great deal better than many similar attractions. The entertainment will include two very original burlesques. They are respectively styled "Meet Me at the Fountain," the action of which takes place in a department store, thus affording ample scope for the comedians and chorus and "Only King," a satire on one of the latest light operas.
