Rural Mail in Winter.

Carriers Have Harder Work And They Will Be Slower.

Farmers Should Help Them by Keeping the Roads Open in Snow Storms—Many Duties for Carriers to Perform.

Farmers and patrons of the rural free delivery service will do well to remember now that winter is at hand the rural carrier will not be as prompt in his deliveries—mails are delayed, and because farmers are not able to come into the village as frequently, they often expect more of the mail carrier.

Rural carriers are not required to deliver mail to houses standing back from the main road except in cases of registered mail, special delivery and pension letters.

The patrons are expected to meet the department half way by providing the carrier every facility for the performance of their duties by keeping the roads open after heavy snow falls, and by using their influence with the proper authorities to keep them in good repair at all seasons or the year and under all sorts of weather conditions.

Rural carriers must not act as agents, salesmen or solicitors for express companies, wholesale houses, corporations or firms, but the law provides that the carrier shall not be prohibited from doing an express package business, provided it does not interfere with the discharge of his official duties.

Section 214 of the postal laws and regulations prohibits them from holding any county or municipal office. They may act as agents for newspaper publishers, sell newspapers or periodicals on their own account, or accept and collect subscriptions for the same.

Rural carriers are required to take with them on their trips for the accommodation of their patrons a supply of envelopes, stamps, postal cards and newspaper wrappers.

If a carrier finds an unstamped letter in a box and the requisite amount of money also deposited, he is to affix the necessary stamp. Patrons depositing money in boxes should wrap it securely in paper.

The carrier is empowered to register letters or packages and to deliver the same, giving and taking the proper receipts on forms provided. He is also authorized to accept money orders, giving receipts therefor, and if patrons of the delivery desire to make him their agent for this purpose he may enclose the orders when issued in an addressed envelope confided to his care and mail them without returning them to the sender.

Each rural mail carrier in the United States will be required to take a careful census of his route and write the names in a book supplied for that purpose. Slips are prepared for the carrier, and these will be left with the families to be filled out, each slip to contain the names of all parties, even to the servants.

In this manner names of every person along the route will be before the postmaster, and he will have no trouble in forwarding the mail.

CLEVELAND'S THEATRE, CHICAGO.

Commencing with a matinee on Sunday, Nov. 19th, there will be a fine production of Hadden Cyambr's delightful play called Captain Swift. This is one of the plays that made Palmer's theatre famous in New York. It ran there for 300 nights, and was afterwards acted in all the principal cities. In Chicago it was played several times with the greatest possible success and the cast included Mrs. Agnes Booth, Maurice Barrymore and E. M. Holland, in the principal parts. It is a story of life in the Australian Bush, and of the adventures of a desperado known as Captain Swift. It is an absorbingly interesting play and will no doubt achieve popularity.
