He would terrorise the neighbors in a most outrageous way, broke the wide world's standing records in athletics every day; while in puglistic circles he could wipe men in the dust, and show master tricks at fencinglaugh at every cut and thrust. He slew tigers in the jungle, and scalped redsking on the plain. He chased lions across the mountains and harpooned upon the main. He could break a bucking brougho, yes, and rope à Texan steer; sling a bowle knife or hatchet, throw the boomerang or spear. In bairbreadth escapes he gloried, did this worthy son of Mars. And he'd lick his weight in wildcatskick them higher than the stars. But his shoes were in his pocket and his face was ghastly white; he was silent as an oyster when he climbed the Scholastic Rabbits.

A company of scholars going together to catch rabbits had one schollar with them who had not much more wit than he was born with and him they cautioned to be silent if he saw any rabbits for fear of scaring them. But he saw a company of rabbits before the rest and cried out in Latin: "Behold, many rabbits!" He had no sooner said this than the rabbits ran to their burrows. Being reproved by his companions for it, he answered: "Who the devil would have thought that the rabbits understood Latin?"

Nonsense About Sneezing.

"When a man sneezes heartily, he may know himself to be healthy. No person in poor health even sneezes." says the eminent doctor Sir Jonathan Hutchinson. This statement will be challenged by those familiar with the plague, who know that hearty sneezing is its first symptom. Every one knows that a series of sneezes comes in the first stages of catching cold. and that the hay fever victim speezes to his great discomfort.

The voice of Experience. "Not for me?" said the sharper when the guileless countryman was pointed out to him; "newer again for me. The man with the carpetbag lifks like a mark, but the last one l tackled sold me a coupon ticket for seventeen gallons of mineral water from a spring on his place and never took my gold brick. When you get down to facts you can land a city man who thinks he knows it all a good deal easier than you can the country man who knows he doesn't."

A NEW BOOK ABOUT NEBRASKA.

The best and most comprehensive work on Nebraska ever produced has just been issued by the Burlington Route. It has 48 finely illustrated pages packed full of just the sort of information a prospective settler wants. In addition there is a large sectional map of the state which is accurate in every detail. There is no country under the sun where men of push and energy have a better chance to succeed. It is a paradise for "good reaters," for they will not be compelled to rent long in Nebraska. Send today for a copy of the book. No charge. P. S. Eustis, Passenger traffic manager, 209 Adams street, Chicago.
