MRS. J. WARREN ROGERS.

J. WARREN ROGERS.

Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary

On the first day of January, 1857, J. Warren Rogers and Mary Frances Freeman were united in marriage and, therefore, on the first day of the present year they had journeyed together for fifty years. This well known, highly respected and happy couple is intended to pass the day in quiet and joyful home life, but a number of their closest friends would not have it so. Therefore, two of these made a loving and peremptory demand on their attention, by telephoning message to their home in Chicago where a sumptuous dinner was prepared and enjoyed while the wedding cake which adorned the table with its beautiful decorations and fifty candles was something unique and never to be forgotten. These were James J. and wife of 4010 Indiana avenue, the latter being before marriage Miss Lettie McVitts. Her father, Mr. Rogers had worked when she was a child. Early in the evening they returned to their home after having spent a most enjoyable day with several others who had been invited. During the evening many of their friends remembered the occasion extended calls with words of hearty felicitations and wishes for a long and happy life together. The occasion was a most successful and joyous event.

Lightning Struck His Wagon

He had just left his wagon when a bolt of lightning struck it, and passed through the glass there, and the air up over the wagon and down the axle. The horse got so frightened that he ran away and was not found until a week later. The wagon was a heavy one and it would have been a tragedy if it had been in the wagon at the time.

Heights Star, vice president; Theo. A. Kolb, publisher of the Niles Tribune and the Norwood Park Sentinel, secretary; F. Furstenheim, publisher of the Weekly Reminder, Auburn Park, treasurer; C. H. Rush, publisher of the Wilmette Local News; J. E. Taylor, publisher of the Broadax; Hugo Schwantes, publisher of the Cook County Times, are trustees. The organization will be called the Chicago and Suburban Publishers' association. The purpose is to get the publishers of closer touch with each other and have an exchange of ideas so that better publications may be produced. All other business men have their associations and the publishers of Chicago and suburbs will be benefited by doing likewise.
