THE GLD SALEM CHAUTAUGUA Tenth Anniversary to be Celebrated by Fine Programs The strenuous American life is leading many forms of nervous trouble and eminent physicians prescribe fresh air, rest and recreation as the only sure and sensible cure. Two weeks of rest from the daily routine and turmolf of everyday fiving will work wonders with any one, and there is not another place in Illinois where two weeks can be so pleasantly and comfortably spent as at Old Salem, Petersburg. Illinois. Plenty of sunshine on the open fields, plenty of shade beneath the stately trees; bouting, bathing, fishing and all kinds of outdoor sports, such as baseball, lawn tennis, croquet, etc., and last but not least, pure cold water and absence of mosquitoes at night.

Old Salem holds the distinction of being the biggest and best chantauqua in the west, and the assembly of 1907 will far surpass any former effort. The teuth anniversary will be celebrated and a program of exceptional merit will be presented. During the past ten years the most noted men and women of America have appeared on its platform, for Old Salem's program has always been the best that money could buy, and its prestige and reputation bring to it. For the program this year-the anniversary program -- the programs for the past ten years have been scanned, and the cream of all the talent, the nieu and women who were the most enthusiastically received, have been selected. What an array of extraordinary talent, stars of the first magnitude, such an arrangement will bring forth can easily be imagined.

Old Salem has been growing by leaps and bounds. No other chautauqua in the west contains so many permanent cottages and the hundreds of tents erected each year make it a veritable "white city." Last year a magnificent new hotel was erected, also a bath house and a swimming pool. The crowning event of last year's assembly was the prescutation by W. R. Hearst, the great newspaper publisher, of the old Abraham Lincoln homestead just across the Sangamon from the chautauqua grounds to be held by Old Salem in perpetuity as a national park. For intellectual enlightment, for elevating entertainment, for pleasant companionship and the making of new acquaintances, for ideal camping life and comforts, for outdoor sports, for rest and recreation make an early proparation to attend the big chautauqua, the premier of them all-Old Salem. Few towns anywhere in this part of country have so many birds quickin learn the zones of safety; and the persistent precept to school chilto the feathered tribe than la foun mick of birds are the beedless small boy, the cat and the squirrel. The schools have taken good care of the endeavor to introduce the squirrel. Those of us who cannot get away for the summer console ourselves with the philosophic reflection that Downers Grove is a good enough summer resort for our purposes. And in truth it is shadler, quieter and more comfortable every war, than most of the places we seek for an outing. But then the man who hies himself to the sands of Michigan or the pines of Wisconsis argues that he isn't searching for the beantiful or the picturesque, or even for comfort; but for a change. And his reasoning is sound, in the main Its only flaw is that he doesn't explain by he seeks the change at the sensor the year when Downers Grove is the plant attractive.
