Self-Winding Watches. "Watchmaking is no longer what it used to be," said a collector. "Where will you find to-day artists making and selling readily watches worth $2,500 apiece?"

"Breguet was the greatest watchmaker the world has ever seen. He was a Swiss, but he lived in France. The watch collector who hasn't a Breguet timepiece has a sadly incomplete collection. Breguet watches were the acme of beauty, of originality and of accuracy. One played a time every hour, another had on its dial little figures that danced, a third was a self-winder."

"They were very ingenious, those self-winding watches. They worked on the pedometer principle. The motion of the body in walking kept them wound."

Three of our young people who have already won gold medals took part, Miss Ella Smart, Miss Maude Iehl and Franklin Huling. TRAPPING RABBITS. There are lots of rabbits in the woods back of the rye field, and I've got six box traps in the barn. If you'll see 'em every morning we'll set the traps now. This proposition made to a 14-year-old boy, says Fred Mather, the author of "Men I Have Fished With," seemed a fine proposition, and the boy instantly agreed. He was to put the captured rabbits in a bag, and the man who owned the traps was to take care of them. The boy tells the story:

The next night was clear and crisp, and oh! how cold that morning was! The first trap was untrapped. The second actually held a rabbit. There was the game crouched in the far end. I let the trap down, and for a few moments enjoyed my triumph. I was a mighty trapper!

I carefully adjusted the bag over the trap, and then opened it. There was a thud in the bottom of the bag, and then a glimpse of something gray and a sound of "Zip! zip!" and if that really was a rabbit it was gone.

The third trap held a rabbit, and with the last failure in mind, great care was taken in arranging the bag, but somehow the same thing happened again. The next two traps were empty, and the sixth was sprung.

Remembering what Garry had said about a rabbit not biting, I put in a hand and brought the animal out some way, memory fails to record how, but it does bring back the pitiful cries that rang through the woods. But I hardened my heart and dropped the game in the bag, and started for home with my prize, in triumph not unmixed with other feelings.

After pondering for a while on the escape of the other two rabbits, the recollection of those pitiful cries came up in full force. Then I seemed to realize that they came from a poor, terrified and harmless thing that I was taking to be killed without the excitement of the hunt.

I peeped into the bag. Two large eyes and a trembling form were in the corner. Somehow the grip on the mouth of the bag was loosened, the bottom was turned up, and a white lump of cotton in a field of gray went bobbing off into the brush.

When I entered Tom Simmonds' store, I said to Garry, "Here's your bag. I haven't got any rabbits, and don't want any."

"My dear," began Merchant, "if—or any one should tell you they saw me at lunch to-day with—"

"Who was she, John?" interrupted his wise wife, "and who was you with her?"—Philadelphia Press.

During one month recently a single machinery manufacturing company of St. Louis shipped 553 cars of machinery.

By a piece of practical sense, which also has it in a touch of something that amounts to great is done by the owners or managers of the great estates. But it seemed to be agreed that there was a good deal of land in Scotland that would grow trees and that would give the other marketable crop. And Mr. Burns expressed his personal opinion that there ought to be a British school of forestry. That looks like a plausible proposition, when taken in connection with the fact that Great Britain raised $15,000,000 worth of marketable timber and imports $150,000,000 worth.

That life float on it. "That's a beautiful photo of you."

"I'm glad you think so, then you'll be willing to exchange that ugly one I've got here for it."

"I'll keep it. It is so much more like me."
