Importance of American History

By Henry Cabot Lodge. ITH the coming of a true national consciousness came the interest in the past and in history. It was apparent that the United States was one of the most considerable facts of the age when its consolidation had once been effected and all peril of dis solution had departed with the crushing out of the powers which aimed at separation. Anything which helped to explain this great fact became, therefore, of intense interest. As the years passed on the act grew larger. In due time a not very serious war revealed the fact to the world, and it appeared that the fact of the United States had, and was destined to have, a strong and increasing influence upon all the other facts known as the nations of the earth. Thus did it become more than ever obvious that the explanation of the United States to be found in the history of the past four centuries was worthy of the best efforts of the historian. The pride on what the country is spurs men on to pride in all who shared in making the nation. From the abortive attempts of the earliest adventurers, from the feeble settlements clinging to the Atlantic scaboard on through the confused and seemingly petty history of the colonies and of the scattered people and small States struggling out of revolution and dissension to a larger national life, to those who saved the Union from disintegration, and still on to those who have carried her power forward to the Pacific and made a great nation where there was none before, all alike have come to have deep meaning and importance. Hence the rise of American history, and, what is more important, of the general interest in that history, which may be trusted to separate the wheat from the chaff and give PLACE YOUR WANT us not only knowledge, but also something worthy to take a place in literature by the manner in which the knowledge is communicated to men. Gold

(A Cynical Financial Fable.)

By Ellis O. Jones OD what has been done to improve conditions?" queried the Man from Mars. Oh, a great many things," replied the Guide, "but most important of all, numerous millions of gold have been brought from abroad." "How does that help?" "Of course, you could not be expected to understand such FOR SALE-ENGIT FT, OF OAK SHELY a recondite and peculiarly human proposition. The presence of gold acts like | ing; also good gas range and 3 burner magic. Nothing can go wrong if gold is near." "Yes, but the people cannot eat or wear gold or burn it for fuel," con tinued the Man from Mars.

"Oh, no; but its presence has a reassuring effect." "Yes, but how do the people get hold of this gold? You say many men are out of work. What good does it do them." "The people do not get hold of it. Of course, you cannot be expected to understand. The gold is just loaned to us by foreigners. We will send it back when the people have sufficiently feasted their eyes." "And in the meantime?" "Ob, in the meantime, things will work themselves out regardless."

"And after that?" "Oh, after that, confidence in some new thimblerigging proposition will be instilled into the people.

"Thank you," said the Man from Mars. "It is as clear as mud."-Life.

Ought We to Protect the Filipinos?

By William Jennings Bryan. iE most familiar excuse advanced by imperialists is that if we do not hold the Philippine Islands some other nation will grab them. This is like excusing the stealing of a horse on the ground that some one else would have stolen him. This is not a necessary alternative; we can protect the Philippine Islands better when they are independent than we can when they are colopies. If we give them independence they will have their national pride to impire them and their own soldiers to assist us, whereas we must now keep a part of our army there to protect the government.

There are eight million Fiftpinos on the injund and they could organize an army of defense of several hundred thousand. These soldiers, led if necessary by American officers, could present a very formi-table opposition to any attack upon their independence. When we remember the fight which they made against us when they were almost without arms, we can estimate their efficiency as affes when properly equipped and drilled

But even better than guardianably would be the policy of neutralization. It is entirely probable that England, Gormany, France, Russia, Japan and China would join with us in the protection of the independence of the Philip pines in return for equal trade advantages, as Switzerland is protected from

Chinese vs. American Ideals of Marriage

By Ng Poon Chew, Chinese Editor

and Lecturer. O the Chinese, marriage will not last for a day, or a year, but for all time. It will last for better or for worst in truth; it sticks closer than a brother through all the span of life. Divorce is naknown and trial marriages much less. You regard marriage as an affair of the heart, and by logical conclusion you are bound to follow the whim and fancy of ever-changing emotions in choosing so-called life partners. We pay more attention in its negotiation than you exert in the search into the title of farm or lot with a view of purchase. In this deliberation we do not for a moment take into consideration the wishes or desires or views of the young people immediately involved, consequently our young people have absolutely nothing to do in their marriage arrangements. In a Chinese marriage absolute impartiality is extended to all parties concerned; either party can take the shitlative in negotiation for marriage, while in America a square deal is denied the girl The young man has the initiative and chance to choose, while the roung girl has no chance at all. Your method is unequal, partial and unjust, for reu deny the woman privileges that are her right. In our marriage ceremony we are also far ahead of you, for we do not enjoin the woman to obey her husband, neither do we ask her to love him. For to a civilized being the one is just as irksome as the other.

Fear Kills Efficiency.

By O. S. Marden.

NE of the worst forms of fear is that of apprehension, forebod ing of some evil to come, which hangs over the life like a threatening cloud over a volcano before an eruption. Some people are always suffering from this peculiar phase of fear. They are apprehensive that some great misfortune is coming to them, that they are going to lose their money or their positions; or they are afraid of accident, or that some fatal disease is developing in them. If their children are away they see them in all sorts of catastrophes,-railroad wrecks, burning cars, or shipwrecks. They are always picturing the worst. "You can never tell what will happen," they say, "and it is better to prepare for the worst." The man who lives under this terrible shadow of impending danger, with this dread that something is going to happen to his business, his family, by himself, is in no condition to ward off the evil before which he cowers --

Temperature for Lace Dressing.

Lace dressing has been considerd a necessarily unhealthful occupation on account of the intense heat required to be maintained in the room. In some cases the temperature exceeds 100 degrees Fahrenheit and much moisture is evaporated from the wet fabric. The evidence brought forth at a recent investigation in England, however, shows it to be an exceedingly healthful pursuit.

New workers are often temporarily appet at the beginning by the high temperature, but no cases could be found where health had broken down. On the contrary, some allmentscolds, for instance-were found less valent among lace dressers than

No special tendency toward lung diseases could be found not withstanding that most of the workers lived in poor and unsanitary localities and led irregular lives. Many lace dressers now enjoy vigorous old age after doing this work from childhood,-indianapolis News,

"Nope," said the boy. "Little boys should not tell falsehoods," said the book agent. "Isn't that your father reading the newspaper there by the window?"
