THE KONGO FOREST.

This Region of Mystery.

Unfamiliar Animals That Haunt The mightiest forest of which the human race has any knowledge to-day is that of the Kongo. It is a region of impenetrable mystery concerning which accounts have been so strange that until the past few years they have been deemed incredible. But recent discovery has transformed scientific increduity into a measure of belief. Thus on the basis of Sir Harry Johnston's explorations of Uganda a giant ape larger than the gorilla is a denizen of this tremendous forest region. There, too, are animals of a quite unfamiliar kind, notably the okapi. The forest seems to be the reof the five horned giraffe, the tailest mammal in the world. The hugest elephants, bearing tremendous tusks, are there. The largest fish found in all Africa haunt the streams meandering through the recesses of this forest. Lions seem not to penetrate into the thick growth of the jungle thereabouts. The forest leopards are arboreal, catching monkeys for their food.

The curiosity of the mighty forest is unquestionably the okapi, a large and recently completed. Its yearly capacity stake, thence south 89 degrees east 67 feet Sir Harry Johnston. In his books of cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, David I. Franks was an aid de camp New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Donn's—and testified to the innovance of the control of the contro ness of an impenetrable forest seemed so anomalous that no scientist of stand
