The poet was favoring a friendly soul with his last verses, says a writer lu St. James' Budget. The verses were descriptive of a beautiful girl. The poet read:

Her hair was massed in flowing curls, The color of a whisper

This made the listener "sit up." "What's that?" he said. "Read that

"I thought you would say something about that," the poet answered. "! don't want to appear egotistical, but that little phrase gives some scope for the exercise of the mind."

"In what way?"

The poet laughed. "Don't you see," he said, "how beautifully that describes the shade of her hair? Every poet speaks of golden hair or raven locks. To be a success one must be original. Well, she did not have golden hair. It was noarly golden, and I convey the impression by means of that one word."

The other still looked puzzled, "You have heard," said the poet, patiently, "that silence is golden?" "Yes," the other admitted.

"Well," resumed the poet, "if silence is golden, what would a whisper be? It would be nearly golden, wouldn't it?" The poet laughed again. The other was sitting down and could not stagger. so he laughed, too,
