

A DEPARTMENT FOR WOMEN

The Director's Frock. Long, fluted lines unbroken by a full, Superfluous, lustrous red to the...

A shortish neck imprisoned in a ruff. Skin-fitting sleeves that show a stint of stuff.

A waist promoted half way up the back. And not a shred that's comfortably slack.

A multitude of buttons, row on row. Not there for business—merely made for show.

A skirt whose meager gores necessitate The waddle of a Chinese lady's gait.

A "husky" touque extinguishing the hair. As if a giant hand had crushed it there—Behold the latest mode! and write—

Comb That Won't Fall Out. There is no longer any reason for women losing their backcombs.

There is no longer any reason for women losing their backcombs. A Massachusetts man has devised a comb that "stays put" and will not come out unless the hair comes off...

MILLINERY

For the most part hat shapes are towering. Among the small hats are turbans of silver with colored aigrettes.

There is a fad just now for making the color of the hat pins contribute to the trimming of the hat.

Some of the smartest of the new hat-pins are small enameled plaques in all tones of color.

The lavender sweet pea is new and is seen only on the most expensive hats.

Grapes are used as millinery trimmings and in iridescent colorings, chiefly greens, they are beautiful.

Handsome Evening Toilet.

One of the richest as well as the most beautiful gowns seen this season is an empire model of rose pink chiffon satin with low corsage and sleeves of wide bands of Irish lace.

Caring for the Patterns.

To keep paper patterns from being mused take a strip of denim four feet long, twenty-seven inches wide; hand it over a hump.

For the Bath.

One athletic young woman indulges frequently in what she calls her "home-made Turkish bath." It is a fact, as she says, that one cannot always cleanse the skin thoroughly with only soap and water.

HANDSOME BALL GOWN.

A stunning creation in coral satin, with pointed design in front of skirt and bodice embroidered in small jet and gold beads.

goes down into the pores and cleanses them, carries off more old skin and particles of dust and waste than the ordinary wash cloth.

The Home Hospital. The hospital drawer should be fitted up with the following articles: Two large and four small bed pads.

ABOUT THE BABY

The best treatment for baby during its first year is to attend carefully to its physical wants and to absolutely neglect the fact that it has a mind at all.

Remedy for Nose Bleed. For obstinate and persistent nose bleeding either put an ice pack or a cloth ring out of ice water at the back of the neck just at the base of the brain.

The Old-Fashioned Bonnet. How dear to my heart is the old-fashioned bonnet.

The Child's Bath. Some children are timid about venturing into a bath tub.

The Grand That Dulle. If the scissors grinder kept his blade on the whetstone unnecessarily the scissors would soon be useless.

Fashion Note. By wearing a sheath gown instead of a skirt.

Attention from all, but provided with a visible means of support.

It's awfully hard for a woman to manage her house to the satisfaction of the hired girl.

A man man seems to think the end justifies the means.

BATTLE WITH WILD SWAN.

Great Fowl Struck Ship's Cabin and Gave Two Sailors Hard Fight.

While coming up the bay to Baltimore Friday night the steamer Avalon ran into a flock of wild swans off Thomas Point and a swan was captured by the lookout, W. T. Whitley.

The steamer was running at a lively clip when Whitley heard a fluttering and a few minutes later saw a flock of swans directly in front of the boat.

At first I did not know what kind of bird it was, but I was determined to capture it.

Shortly after the steamer docked at Light street the swan was sent to the office of Assistant General Manager A. H. Seth of the company.

When I saw the swan strike the boat I rushed up to it, expecting to pick it up with ease.

Some Married Meditations. By Clarence L. Cullen.

The Woman Problem—How to keep her nose from looking shiny.

Another woman who only imagines that she's a sure-fire hit is the one who makes it a sort of a boast that she "can't sew a stitch."

When a young woman gets to be known as a "good fellow," did you ever notice what a strangely long time it takes her to snag a husband?

If you don't believe that the world moves, hang back only a dozen years or so and reflect upon what then was thought of the woman who kept her money in her stocking.

When a young woman of acidulous personality finds, after experimenting, that she can't trap any male victims, she proclaims that she has become a "bachelor girl."

Once there was a man who, five years after marriage, was just as eager to tie his wife's shoelaces as he had been during the courtship.

The woman who brags that, after ten years of matrimony, her husband still makes love to her, sometimes forgets to wonder as to how he contrives to keep in such good practice.

The woman who "humorously" describes to the next man who comes along how the last fellow made love to her may make a comedy hit, but she's usually a long time getting married.

The guileless chap who says that his wife won't let him do this or that may be a knockout with the tabbies who look upon men as mice, but he's a dismal sort of a jellyfish all the same.

Why is it that, whereas the man with a flirtatious wife is the last human being on earth to discover it, the woman with a cut-up husband usually becomes wise to his curves almost immediately?

The "temperamental" woman who gives you the sad-and-sweet antelope gaze while she tries to make you believe that she "feeds upon memories alone," generally can do all sorts of things to a nice thick steak when you take her out and lead her to one.

THE SIGNER. "The bells pealed loud, my lad," Said dad, "And joy was unconfined Upon the fateful day, Not many years away, That Hancock signed."

And then remarked the youth— In truth This is no idle myth!— "I can't just place him now, What bush league, anyhow, Was Hancock with?"

AS USUAL. "Did you hear about Bill's watch?" "No; there's a woman in the case." —Yale Record.

HIS IDEA OF IT. "What is it a sign of when a young man kisses a girl on the forehead?" "Poor eyesight." —Milwaukee Sentinel.

MOODS. At 40 a man may regret that he married. At 60 a bachelor regrets bitterly that he did not take a wife. —Lo Figaro.

COSTLY. "The loveliness of her gown caused comment at the ball." "And the highness of it causes comment at home." —Houston Post.

DEFINITE. "Did that young couple just married take a fat?" "I don't know about the couple; I know the bride did." —Baltimore American.

ARMED. She—"I heard you singing in your room this morning." He—"Oh, I sing a little to kill time." She—"You have a good weapon." —Boston Transcript.

THE MODERN QUERY. "Well, they are divorced." "No?" "Yes." "Which gets rid of the children?" —Washington Herald.

VERY DOUBTFUL. "I don't think they would be happy if married." "Who?" "That Henry James heroine and that Marie Corelli hero." —Kansas City Journal.

VISHNU UP TO DATE. It was the terrible car of Juggernaut. Suddenly a man was seen to hurl himself between the ponderous wheels.

HOW HE KNEW. Earle: "Come in; sister's except in 'you.'" Mr. De Lasteray: "How do you know she is?" Earle: "She's been sleeping' all the afternoon." —Brooklyn Eagle.

ANOTHER BRAND. "I suppose you realize the danger of freewater?" said the man who tries to benefit people.

"I do," answered the Indian, thoughtfully; "especially the kind the paleface puts in his automobile." —Washington Star.

ECONOMY. Son—"What is the meaning of economy?" Mother—"Economy, my son, is going without something you do want in case some day you should want something which you probably won't want." —L.M.

EDITION TWENTYONE. WELCOME TO A COLD BITE. Weary Walker—"Would ye give a poor feller a cold bite, mum?" Lady—"Certainly; you will find an icicle hanging on the gate as you go out." —Chicago News.

A BUM JOB. Mrs. Wise: "Mrs. Sewen told me yesterday that she had to go to the dentist's to have a nerve killed." Mr. Wise: "According to the bill she's just rendered for your new spring dress, he evidently didn't succeed in killing her nerve." —Utica Observer.

POOLED. "That Professor Bink fooled me badly." "How?" "He told me ethnology was the science of the races, and when I went to the library and asked for a book on ethnology there wasn't a word from cover to cover on how to win winners." —Tit-Bits.

SCIENCE. Mrs. Blunder had just received telegram from India. "What an adventure!" "What an adventure!" "What an adventure!"

FASHION NOTES. Patent leather boots with white uppers are the correct dress boot.

In strange contrast are the gold frame of the wrist bag and the lower part woven of raffia.

Many an otherwise handsome hat is made ridiculous by being decorated with tassels.
