Only Person "Touched."

Duels in France are often more costly than dangerous. The very lowest figure for which an encounter can be brought off is £4, and to do the thing in style considerably more must be spent. Aurelian Scholl, the boulevardier journalist, once suffered. A friend of his sent a challenge and borrowed 100 francs off Scholl for his expenses. This sum he never repaid. "The duel was a bloodless one," relates Scholl. "I was the only person touched."—London Chronicle.
