AMUSEMENTS.

PASTORS PRAISE PLAY.

"The Man Higher Up" at Olympic Lauded by Chicago Clergy.

Rarely in the epochs of theatrical history does a drama arise to amuse, interest and instruct American playgoers which contains a moral and civic lesson that gains the heartfelt and unqualified indorsement of Chicago clergymen in a body. Such a play is a rarity, prized by all high-class producers and its continuous success is a foregone conclusion.

"The Man Higher Up," the new American drama of love and politics, which is opening another chapter in the Olympic Theater's record of all-winter runs, received the vote of approval from 400 Chicago ministers and an audience of church and social workers at a special performance on Tuesday, October 8. The clergymen who attended were of all dominations—Protestant, Catholic and Jewish—but they were in entire accord while manifesting their enthusiasm for thrilling dramatic incidents of "The Man Higher Up." The clerical audience was fully as unreserved in their applause as the laity, who nightly thronged the Olympic Theater to witness this stirring stage picture of municipal graft, reform and romance. At the end of the performance, Dr. Jenkin Lloyd Jones, director of the famous Abraham Lincoln Center, went behind the scenes and personally congratulated Edward Ellis, Miss Janet Beecher and other principals of the company, for their skill in portraying the play's moral.

HAGENBECK-WALLACE COMBINED SHOWS AT THE WHITNEY OPERA HOUSE.

This year Chicago is going to have a new sensation, a circus all the winter. Commencing Saturday next, the Hagenbeck-Wallace Combined Shows can be seen afternoons and evenings at the Whitney Opera House, two performances daily, rain or shine, in the vernacular of the tented world.

Not a feature, not an act of this world famous organization will be missing, the greatest trained animals in the world will be seen, the finest hippodrome races presented, in fact all that goes to make up the thrill and sensation of a circus performance will be enjoyed by patrons, who can sit at their ease in a comfortable theater no matter what the weather is outside.

This venture marks a new epoch in the amusement world, it is a novelty that has hitherto never before been offered to the amusement seekers of any city, and will doubtless be one of the premier attractions of the Chicago theatrical season.

The opening date is set for Saturday, Oct. 19th, and from that date on every day will be circus day for an indefinite period. The management have arranged to sell the seats three days in advance for any of the performances, and arranged to have a down town ticket office at Tom Murray's, Madison and Clark streets, where reservation can be made. Phone orders will be received either there or at the box office of the theater.

FILM STORY AT THE MOTIOPHON.

SATURDAY, OCT. 19.

Lazy Bill Hudson.—Bill Hudson's wife is a devout churchgoer but Bill would rather be in bed Sunday mornings and turn over to have another sleep. One Sunday morning Mrs. Hudson arises and wakes up Bill to go to church with her. He simply turns over. She dresses and before leaving him reproaches him for his lack of religion. He listens to her lazily and goes to sleep again and Mrs. Hudson goes to church alone. An hour later he looks out of the window and sees the boy leave a Sunday paper on the front stoop. He goes down stairs in his pajamas, makes a quick dash out of the front door to get the paper when lo! the door slams and Bill finds himself locked out. He tries to open the door in vain. His predicament suddenly becomes worse when he sees his wife, with the minister and several others returning home from church. Bill makes a wild dash for the rear of the house and with the aid of a ladder starts to re-enter his bedroom. Mrs. Hudson and the minister get a glimpse of the strange figure on the ladder and conclude it is a burglar. They send for the policeman, who climbs the ladder to arrest the supposed burglar, and Bill resents the policeman's attack and a battle royal ensues in which Bill is badly battered up by the policeman who is dragging him out in triumph when he is recognized by the frightened Mrs. Hudson and her neighbors.

Be Careful in Speech.

If in our speech we would need consider how our words will affect those to whom they are spoken—if we would try to hear them with their ears and consider how they accept in their hearts, there would not be much passionate or unadvised speech; certainly there would be few spirits wounded or lives embittered by the words of our lips.—W. G. Horder.

All Have a Duty.

Every man or woman is one of man's kind's dear possessions; to his or her just brain, and kind heart and active hands, mankind intrusts some of its hopes for the future.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

OCEAN TO OCEAN NATIONAL HIGHWAY.

It would seem that a plan which is at once practical and possible has been outlined whereby the long discussed national highway extending from New York to San Francisco may become a reality. Other plans of similar purport have been broached in the past, but have been consumed in talk, for the simple reason that organization and business principles played no part in their make-up. They were the visions of dreamers, and were lacking in the financial backbone which is necessary nowadays to bring about desired results along any line.

But the present idea of a national highway rests upon a stable basis. It owes its origin to business men who have proved themselves by action rather than words. Its every detail is firmly anchored to a sound business principle and the expense of the project has been levied in such a way that it will not prove burdensome even to those who will profit most by its realization.

At a casual glance one might say that a transcontinental highway would be of benefit only to automobile manufacturers, dealers and owners. That this class will derive a special benefit from such a highway is a fact that cannot be denied, and it is also true that the fund necessary for the building of this road is to be borne entirely by this class. But there is another truth which is also worthy of emphasis—an economic truth which will be far greater in its result than the pleasure or profit which such a highway will bring to the few. This is the fact that, if a highway is built across the continent, there is no class in America which will not profit thereby.

It has been generally conceded that the automobile industry is still in its infancy. As it is, the industrial world has been almost revolutionized by the introduction of the motor car. It has created a demand for skilled labor such as never existed before. It has caused towns to take on new life and to become cities. It has given thousands of men the opportunity of making an honest livelihood, and has exerted an influence which has not been rivaled even by the steam engine.

If this much has been done in twelve years or so, and if the industry is now only a lusty youngster, what must be the result if it is given such stimulation as an ocean to ocean highway will give it? One great enterprise only serves to create others as has already been demonstrated with the manufacture of automobiles and accessories. There is no limit to the possibilities which the extended manufacture and sale of the automobile will bring about, and those men who are striving for its advancement are the pioneers of a movement which will serve to make ideal the industrial conditions of America.

And then again, there is another phase of the question which is broad in its appeal and worthy of more than passing notice. This is the effect which one good road spanning the continent from coast to coast will have upon the other roads of the country.

It is a lamentable fact that for the most part the roadways of America are not good. Some few states have seen to it that their legislators have appropriated sufficient funds for the building of good highways. Other states are trying to secure the enactment of similar measures, but it is to be regretted that conditions generally are not what they should be. An ocean to ocean highway would serve to create a general interest in good roads. Give the farmers of the country a sample of what benefits are to be derived from such a highway, and they will be the first to set about making the tributary roads equal to the national thoroughfare.

The plan under present consideration is a big one, but with interest in it at fever heat, and men behind it who know how to secure big results in an orderly and systematic way, there is no reason why all the fundamental arrangements should not be completed within a few months, and the road itself an actuality by 1915, the time set by those whose ideas have gone into making a success of the venture. It is a project which is free from politics; the money for it is being subscribed by those who can afford it, and the completion of the road will result in benefit for the many. There is no class distinction here, and all encouragement should be given to the enterprise.

GRAND JURY RETURN 14 TRUE BILLS.

The October term of Circuit Court convened Monday, Oct. 7, with Judge Sluser on the bench. The grand jury was sworn and V. A. Dieter of Naperville was appointed foreman. William H. Blodgett of Downers Grove was chosen as clerk. After the instructions regarding the duties which they would be called upon to perform, the jurors went into private session to consider the evidence against several prisoners who were awaiting the action of this body.

On last Wednesday noon the jury made a partial report, returning into court fourteen true bills and eight no bills.

"Bait" Was Good.

"How did you come to buy that worthless mining stock?" "Well, you see, I thought it was all right. The man who sold it to me had mahogany furniture in his office, tall brass candlesticks and a swell rug on his floor."—Detroit Free Press.

AUTUMN FOLIAGE.

The town dweller of today, and at present the great majority of people are town dwellers, knows little about the great impressionist painting which God hangs in the autumn in the picture galleries of the hills.

Trees for many years were out of favor in cities. If they were found to jut out a few feet into the roadway, they were ruthlessly cut down. Now parks are being developed, and new residence streets have their row of saplings, bound to be grown-ups some day.

But American city life as yet has but a scanty tree life, only a hint of the majestic greenery of the real hill country, only a shadow of the flaming torch set afire by Jack Frost when the cool days of autumn come on.

To the man who is sensitive to beauty, the glory of autumn foliage is more exhilarating than any oratory or music or drama he may see in cities. The painter is happier at this season in a farm house eating homely dishes thrown on the table by red-armed cooks, than he would be at the La Salle Hotel partaking of the masterpieces of the French chefs.

Not thus with the young people who are brought up in these haunts of loveliness. While the reds and yellows of the maples are dancing before their eyes, the flame of discontent still burns in their hearts. The electric lights of the town look better than the rainbow symphony of the country.

It is a materialistic age. But it may not always be so. Some day people will move from the cities to the farms, not merely because the farmer is getting higher prices for his potatoes, but also because the loveliness of nature will be truly reckoned as one of life's greatest values.

TOWN SPIRIT.

One hears much nowadays about "town boosting," "booster buttons," "boosting campaigns," etc. It's all very good talk and should be repeated over and over again.

But there is a deeper side of the subject in what might be called town spirit, the keen feeling of loyalty to any cause that belongs in our town.

In schools and colleges a great deal is said about school spirit. The pupils are exhorted to stand by their athletic teams, to root for them on the field, to support school entertainments, as something expected of every member of the school.

The fervor of this spirit can be seen at the football games.

If towns could have the same feeling how a community like this would get ahead. If you root for new enterprises as the boys root for an athletic team, nothing could stop your community growth.

Even from selfish reasons that spirit of loyalty pays. Every new enterprise that can be built up here, every public improvement, every store, factory and farm, every public service corporation, all professional service, all faithful labor, the entertainments that are given, the societies that are supported, and the activities that are conducted, all help make our community more attractive and livable. They attract new residents and they bind old ones to our homes.

The tie between the people living in one town ought to be one of loyal friendship. If you meet a townsman a thousand miles away, you welcome him like a long lost brother. Next time you see him on your own street you pass him with a cold nod.

In towns where there is a fraternal spirit between the people, there grows up a feeling of affection for that community. If you move away from such a town you never forget the cordial welcome you met there, and you never cease to speak a good word for it. All which makes life pleasanter, and from the sordid viewpoint, it is good advertising, both for the community and the individual.

A WOMAN'S BACK.

The Advice of This Downers Grove Woman is of Certain Value.

Many a woman's back has many aches and pains. Ofttimes 'tis the kidneys' fault. That's why Doan's Kidney Pills are so effective. Many Downers Grove women know this.

Read what one has to say about it: Mrs. Jacob Schaller, 57 South Main street, Downers Grove, Ill., says: "For two or three years I suffered off and on from attacks of backache. I had dull, heavy pains in my loins and there was weakness extending from my hips downward. The least exertion tired me and I often had to sit down and rest. The kidney secretions also caused much annoyance and plainly showed that I had kidney complaint. Several months ago I had the good fortune to learn of Doan's Kidney Pills and I immediately began using them, procuring my supply at Bush & Simpson's Drug Store. No other medicine ever brought me such great relief as this one. Since taking the contents of two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, my back has been entirely free from pain and my kidneys have caused me no trouble whatever."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Pity. A girl who has a steady beau feels the same kind of pity for the girl who sits alone night after night that the boy who can dive has for the one who is afraid to wade in "above his knees."

School Notes

Rev. and Mrs. Straub broke away from home duties and spent the day Wednesday visiting our schools. We all enjoyed their visit and were much encouraged by the words of appreciation of the good work the teachers are doing. We hope others will avail themselves of the opportunity to visit the teachers and pupils in their work.

Wednesday was mothers day in Miss Croushon's room. All the mothers of the pupils of this grade were invited to spend the afternoon with them in their work. The following were present: Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Barrett, Mrs. Strong, Mrs. Danner, Mrs. Roe, Mrs. Jorgenson, Mrs. Dreese, Mrs. Wheeler, Mrs. Kengemann, Mrs. Wm. Straub, Mrs. Bateman, Mrs. Prickett, and Mrs. Hammerschmidt.

H. J. Gibson of Chicago was a business visitor at the High School Wednesday.

Any form of education which leaves one less able to meet every day emergencies and occurrences is unbalanced and vicious, and will lead any people to destruction—"Luther Burbank" in "The Training of the Human Plant."

Prof. and Mrs. Slocum of the Yerkes Observatory, located at Williams Bay, Wisconsin, and Rev. Viehe and Mrs. Easton, were visitors at the North side school last Friday. They all report a pleasant and profitable visit.
