

ONE OF WISCONSIN'S BEST

Capt. Joseph Hoefel.

Joseph Hoefel, captain of the 1912 University of Wisconsin football squad, played a backfield position during his high school days at Green Bay, Wis., but he has been a permanent fixture at left-end since his freshman year. He is now a senior and considered one of the most reliable men on the team, a deadly tackler, and fast in getting down the field.

"KECKIE" MOLL IN COMMAND

Former Wisconsin Star Succeeds Marquis F. Horr as Football Coach at Purdue—Team Neglected.

A bomb was exploded in the Purdue football camp, when the board of directors of the University Athletic Association dismissed Marquis F. Horr, football coach, from his position and turned the coaching of the Bollersmaker squad over to Coach "Keckie" Moll, who has charge of the back field only. George G. Dunlap, an instructor in the university, who has been coaching the freshmen, was appointed varsity line coach.

The action of the directors, while it came unannounced, was not entirely unexpected, for it was generally reported that an investigation was being made of the conduct of Coach Horr with a view to either disciplining him or releasing him from Purdue's employ. "Improper conduct" is the language used by the directors in its report ordering the dismissal of Horr. It is charged that he has so conducted himself as to make his future connection with the university undesirable.

Purdue's poor showing when everybody expected a championship team, led to the drastic action. The action, it is declared, is in no sense retaliatory, neither is it due to a desire for punishment for inefficiency. The directors feel that the football squad, owing to Coach Horr's misconduct, has been neglected.

Coach Horr came to Purdue from Northwestern a year before last. He had previously achieved fame as a player on the Sycamore university eleven, being selected as all-American tackle two consecutive years. He went to the Olympic games several years ago and was a star in the weight events.

Sweden Lost Money on Olympics.
The promoters of the recent Olympic games in Stockholm lost $243,000. The income from the stadium, including season tickets, was about $270,000. On the day of the marathon, $22,788 was taken in at the gate and adding to this the season tickets for that day, the total receipts was $34,128, which is the largest sum ever taken in Sweden for a public affair. The Swedish government will make up the deficit.

Marvelous Swimming Record.
Peter John Newell, the aged Samoan swimmer, who for more than twenty years held the record for long distance and endurance swims, broke his own record by remaining 37 hours and 12 minutes in the water without support of any kind and without partaking of food. Newell's great feat was accomplished on his sixty-eighth birthday anniversary.

SCANDAL IN ENGLISH RUGBY

Many Devonshire Players Receive Compensation for Lost Time in Addition to Expenses.

English Rugby football is faced with a scandal which may lead to a wider breach in the English Rugby Union as that which caused the formation of the Northern Union in the nineties.

Rugby is ostensibly a purely amateur game in England in distinction to the association game, which is played largely by professional teams.

Recently the Northern Union adherents invaded Devonshire and attempted to recruit players from the existing Rugby clubs. This campaign led to the exposure of the fact that many of the Devonshire players were receiving compensation for time lost from work in addition to their expenses while playing with their teams. This practice is open among the teams of the Northern Union, which has revised the Rugby rules until the form it plays is so strenuous that professional players are necessary for a successful team.

Some of the Devonshire players who have been suspended for negotiating with the Northern Union invaders state that the payment for lost time is general in the Rugby Union, and they declare that they will expose the system at the investigation which has been ordered by the governing committee of the union.

The scandal comes at a particularly inopportune time, as the South African Springboks have recently commenced a tour of the Rugby Union. England is particularly anxious to present an unbroken front to the invaders in order to wipe out the broken series of defeats which the last South African team inflicted on the English fifteens several years ago. During that tour the South Africans suffered only one reverse, and that was at the hands of the Scottish Union. The present invaders declare that they will return home with a clean score, and they are determined to show the Scots that their victory was a fluke.

GOSSIP AMONG SPORTS

Fogel denies that Cravath will be sent back to Minneapolis.

What is your candid opinion of a newspaper that spells center fielder "centre fielder"?

It is said that McGraw, Doolin and Clarke would like to obtain John Kling if Boston is through with him.

The Boston Braves are to have a new manager, a new secretary and several new players next season.

Eppa Rixey, Philly star pitcher, has returned to the University of Virginia and is playing on the basketball team. Ty Cobb announces he may quit baseball. This may be the first heat in Cobb's dash for that $15,000 salary demand.

Postponing a boxing match for two weeks on account of bike races shows Boston still remembers the middle ages of sport.

Harry Ables, Texas southpaw, once with Birmingham, won a mess of games for Oakland of the Pacific coast league this year.

Clark Griffith, after one year on the job as manager at Washington, had his salary raised from $7,000 to $10,000 without a fight.

No, Mahmout is not a Turk. He is a Bulgarian. He is fighting the Turks. When he returns it might not be safe to call him a Turk at all.

A football regular may depended upon to give his best effort. There is always an ambitious "sub" waiting and itching to step into his shoes.

Carpentier, former French title holder, renounced his claim to the title. Being hit by a thunderbolt is an experience one does not wish to have repeated.

A LITTLE BIT HUMOROUS

Stage an Exception.

Cyril Scott tells of a dinner he once attended at which Edwin Booth was the guest of honor. Mr. Booth was called on for a speech.

"What shall I speak of?" he asked. He was a quiet man and hated speech-making.

"Oh, just tell us about the stage; something about the theater," someone said.

Booth laughed. "If you want to know about finance, ask a banker. But if you want to know anything about the stage, ask the barber or the hotel clerk—anyone except an actor."

The Missing Adjunct.

"There was a very disagreeable wait at the Muggleton's wedding last evening. The bride was in tears, the bridegroom's collar melted, the pastor fell asleep in his study and the organist played, 'Oh, Promise Me,' eleven times."

"What in the world was the trouble?"

"Why, the moving picture man's auto struck a fire hydrant and his whole outfit went to smash."

Aloft in the Distance.

"I shall take a lofty position in discussing public affairs," said the young man who is learning politics.

"That's right, son," replied Senator Sorghum. "Only don't soar so high into the empyrean that you are like an airship and the only impression people get of you is a small spot and a buzz."

PROOF.

Jigson—So your grandfather lived to be ninety years old, eh. Did he retain possession of his faculties until the end?
Jagson—Can't say. His will hasn't been read as yet.

A Noble Character.
Who never takes umbrellas. That don't belong to him. Deserves to dwell in heaven Among the seraphim.

Country Girl of Nowadays.
"Where are you going, my pretty maid?"
"I'm goin a-milking, sir," she said, "and I'm also pretty and I'm only eighteen. I'm just a country girl. I've never been to the city and I know what manners are. And if there's anything more you'd like to know just ask me."—Satire.

Human Chronometer.
The doting mother was telling the bachelor uncle about the wonderful baby.
"George is so regular in his habits," she said. "He wakes up crying at exactly 12 o'clock every night."
"A time bawl," said the bachelor uncle.

Black Hand Methods.
"I received a letter from a trust magnate today," said the manager of the campaign fund.
"What does he want?"
"Wants to contribute. Says he has hidden $5,000 in a hollow tree, and demands that we go and get it."

A Possibility.
Jinks—If I had not married I would be worth a million.
Binks—But I am single and penniless.
Jinks—Ah, but if you had married you might have learned to economize.

Two or Three.
Country Cousin—Well, I was in the Metropolitan museum this morning.
City Host—That's nothing to brag about. I know two or three fellows living right here in New York who have been there.—Smart Set.

His Idea.
"Don't you think we have laws enough already, senator?"
"Oh, yes; but if I don't let 'em know what I'm here for, I'll never get here again."

FORENSIC AMENITIES.

"As to the judicial decision quoted by my learned friend on the other side of this case, if the court please," began the prosecuting attorney. "I say it's punk—"

"I protest, your honor!" interrupted the other lawyer. "Such a remark is not in keeping with the dignity of a courtroom."

"I say it's punk—"
"Again I protest, your—"
"I insist, your honor, it's punk—"
"Your honor, this is outrageous! I demand a ruling on that point!"

"I was only going to say that it's punk—"

"Mr. Sharp," interposed the judge, "you will not be permitted to indulge in abusive slang in speaking of a judicial decision in this court."

"I assert once more," bellowed the attorney, "that it's punctuated wrongly, as he quotes it! That is all I was trying to say, your honor!"

No Credit There.
She—What an atrocious necktie! I wouldn't trust you to affect anything on earth. I never knew a man with so little taste.

He (chuckling)—You forget that I selected you, my dear.

She—That was something you couldn't help.

WOMAN'S WEAKNESS.

Howell—Why does your wife constantly sing "Oh! To Be Nothing?"
Powell—I guess she is thinking of her age; at the rate she is marking it down it will soon reach that figure.

After the Tumbult.
This is the day of calm delight With peace and quiet bliss. When nobody fans all take their flight And score boards are at rest.

No Wonder.
"What is the most eloquent speech you ever heard, Pipkins?"
"One word—'Yes.'"

"Why did that seem so eloquent?"
"I asked a friend of mine if he would lend me fifty plunks and that's what he said."

A Coincidence, Maybe.
"What do you think of Sulzer's chances?"
"They seem to be very good."
"Why so?"
"Well, Sulzer has a cowlick, and I've noticed that men with cowlicks seem to get what they want."

See Textbooks.
"Cholly Chappington says he had a brain storm yesterday."
"I don't believe it."
"Why not?"
"A storm in a vacuum is contrary to the laws of physics."

More Fitting.
"What's the name of this place?"
"Tarrytown."
"Thank you. Judging from the number of village loafers about here, it ought to be called 'Tarry-at-the-Station.'"

ONE EXPERIENCE ENOUGH.

Mrs. B.—Why don't you give your husband a box of cigars for his birthday so he will stay home evenings and smoke.
Mrs. W.—I tried that once and he was out every night for six weeks trying to give them away.

Strange.
The Mona Lisa, so 'tis said, Hangs on a Russian wall; And we, somehow or other, Do not seem to care at all.

Somehow or Other.
"Jabbock is a resourceful man."
"Indeed he is! If Jabbock were shipwrecked on a desert island, I believe he would still be able to dress for dinner."

Gastronomics.
"How does Betty spend the morning?"
"First, she eats cereals and then devours novels."

For Rent.
"He's a regular flat."
"Is that the reason he has such a vacant look?"

WHO'S WHO AND WHY

AMIR OF AFGHANISTAN HELPS TURKEY

The specter of a holy war is unfolding itself before the eyes of Europe.

It began when Italy clashed with Turkey in Africa, and now that the little Christian states, that act as a buffer between the larger powers and Turkey, are at war, the cloud is darkening rapidly among all the Mohammedan nations.

In the mosques of India, the pagodas of Malaysia and the shrines of a dozen other nations prayers are being said for the success of the Turkish arms.

All Islam has thrown its religious support to the khalifate at Constantinople, and should the sultan, as head of the Moslem faith, unfurl the green flag of the prophet it is feared the fanatic Mohammedan nations would begin holy wars.

Even the most conservative of European diplomats admit there is a possibility of political alliances between Turkey and other Islamic nations. The Russian persecutions in Persia have fired the Mohammedans there, and the Asiatic Moslems are looking for a champion who can come to the rescue of the threatened Islamic states.—Turkey and Persia.

Habibullah Khan, Amir of Afghanistan, is the man. One word from him, alarmists say and others fear, will bring on a series of religious clashes that will entangle every nation in Europe, Asia and Africa.

The Amir has not failed to take advantage of the almost universal manifestation of respect paid him, and in a meeting held in Kabul recently to express sympathy with the Turks he spoke in no uncertain manner.

SOMETHING NEW IN ORGANIZED CHARITY

Before the state legislature in Albany, N. Y., this winter will be presented a plan for America's first "department of home assistance," the first organized government bureau to care for the destitute home. More than a generation ago governmental aid for the families of the very poor was abandoned in New York city; living conditions—and living's cost—have changed radically since then; today the specially appointed committee of investigation for the city conference of charities and correction urges governmental aid as the only hope of real "social justice" and livable support for the homes of the destitute. There are hundreds of women and children starving in New York for whom only the government can adequately care.

"Of course it is, primarily, a matter of the cost of living," said O. F. Lewis, chairman of the conference committee on governmental aid of New York city. "The price of the necessities of life has increased so much that destitution has become a problem too great for the private societies to meet alone. I have no doubt that the private charitable organizations could take care of the destitute families if they only had enough money; but under present conditions they have not enough money; and so something else must be done—something else must be added.

"What we are suggesting is something absolutely new. But it is simply the outgrowth of present conditions. It is a question that has broken through many times lately in various parts of the United States; here in New York we are first bringing it to the point of definite, organized action."

PRINCESS NURSING WOUNDED SOLDIERS

According to press reports from Greece, the hospital arrangements of the Greek army are entirely inadequate for emergencies. The army has acted with such rapidity that it is impossible for the field ambulances to keep pace with it. Princess Alice, wife of Prince Andrew, the fourth son of King George, with a staff of picked nurses, is following the army and rendering first aid to the wounded, by whom she is spoken of as "the ministering angel."

At Sarandoper she performed almost miracles, sitting with her staff from one quarter to another until late in the evening, when she was compelled to stop because her clothing was drenched with blood.

Princess Helena, daughter of the Crown Prince, has also arrived with her hospital train.

Looking around the railroad station at Larissa, which was littered with wounded men, some on ambulances, others propped against the walls, she exclaimed in pathetic tones:

"Only three weeks to prepare for all this! It was not enough time, and this is only the beginning."

MRS. GROVER CLEVELAND TO WED AGAIN

Mrs. Grover Cleveland, widow of the former president of the United States, is to be married next April to Prof. Thomas Preston, an honorary professor at Princeton University and now occupying the chair of archaeology at Wells College, Aurora, N. Y., the institution attended by Mrs. Cleveland, then Frances Folsom.

Although formal announcement has not been made and probably will not be made until after the debut of Miss Esther Cleveland this winter, the fact of the engagement has been known for some time among the intimate friends of Mrs. Cleveland and Professor Preston.

The second romance of the woman who as "the bride of the White House" charmed a nation and whose high character and devotion to her distinguished husband, have been, by example, a national influence toward high ideals of wifehood, is the outcome of an acquaintanceship of little more than a year's duration, with a man practically unknown in America.

Professor Preston, who is about fifty years of age, a literary scholar and a linguist of international distinction, is a man of strong but retiring personality, and, although he has held a high place among the faculty of Princeton for years, it is said that his first meeting with Mrs. Cleveland took place not many months ago.
