MAS SEALS ARE HERE AGAIN

The Red Cross Christmas seal, the harbinger of the festive season and the little messenger of hope and cheer to the thousands of tuberculosis sufferers, is with us again. A little splash of color, green and red, with the smiling face of dear old Santa Claus shining out of a wreath of holly, reminding us of tinkling sleigh-bells, crackling logs on open hearths and stockings hung expectantly on chimney corners. While the bright little stickers carry with them a message of good will at this gladsome season, they remind us also of a duty to perform toward suffering humanity. This is the season when the fortunate open their hearts and their purses to help those less fortunate than themselves and the Red Cross seals remind us that there is much suffering and want to be removed.

Every Red Cross seal is a bullet in the war against tuberculosis, the greatest scourge of modern civilization. More devastating than war, this disease is annually claiming its victims by hundreds of thousands. The saddest part of the story is that tuberculosis is, thanks to modern science, a preventable disease, yet it goes on because of the lack of knowledge on the part of the general public, especially on the part of the workers from whose ranks it claims its heaviest Earnest men and women, realizing the enormous havoc which this disease is working, especially among the men and women employed in factories and manufacturing plants, are bending their efforts to stamp it out. It can be done through education and correct giene and to the furtherance of this work is devoted the proceeds of the sales of Red Cross Christmas seals.

Chicago and Cook County have the most complete program for the care and treatment of tuberculosis of any large city in the country. This has been brought about through the intelligent and systematic work of the Chicago Tuberculosis Institute, a voluntary organization which derives its main support from the sale of Red Cross seals each year and which has charge of the distribution of the seals throughout the state.

What is being done in Cook County should be repeated in every county throughout Illinois. Many well-meaning persons advocate the establishment of a state institution for the care of tubercular patients. The task is one of too great proportions to be handled by the state through a single institution, or through a dozen of them. Each county should have its own sanitarium and the disease should be attacked all along the line until it is completely eradicated.

Every citizen can help a little in this work through the purchase of Red Cross Christmas seals. The actual work of detecting the disease and caring for the sufferers must be left to experts, but every man and woman who buys a few Red Cross seals is doing his or her share in this noble work for humanity. It requires funds to carry on the work and these funds are derived mainly through the sale of Red Cross seals. Illinois is one of the greatest manufacturing and one of the greatest agricultural states in the country. It is far behind some other states in its support of the crusade against tuberculosis. Let us all co-operate this year to increase the sales of the little Christmas seals and show that we are not unmindful of our duty toward suffering humanity.
