THE REPAIR AND MAINTEN- WORK OF ANCE OF EARTH ROADS

Reyou look at the ordinary country road after a shower you will see small puddles along the wheel ruts and sometimes larger pools. This water stays on the road surface because it cannot drain away into the side ditches. If you look closely you will see side ditches which have grown up in bushes and weeds in many cases and which are so far from the traveled part of the road that the rain water does not drain into them. That part of the roadway where the wagons travel is called the traveled way. To prevent water from standing on the Combination Club Room and Resting traveled way the road should be raised in the center and should slope gently into broad, shallow ditches. It is then said to have a crown. If it is 10 feet from the center of the road to the side ditch, the surface at the town on the road from Atlanta to side ditch should be at least 10 inches | Chattanooga a stranger asked me to lower than it is at the center where look out on the right hand side and the horses travel. tracks or in the middle where the car window, making the traveler curihorses travel. When driveways into farm-yards are built across the side ditches they frequently form channels for water from the farm yard to run into the road. The pipes under driveways become filled with leaves or rubbish and the water can no longer run away. If the driveways that stop the ditch water were rebuilt so that no pipes were necessary and the ditch could be left open, much trouble from surface water would be stopped.

Sometimes a road runs across low ground or through a swamp where the road can not be drained by side ditches alone. If the road were built higher like a railroad embankment across such low land and made with a crown, it would be dry and hard. Sometimes a road passes through what is called a cut. This is a place where the earth has been dug out so that the road can go over a hill without being too steep. The water which always flows quietly under the ground on hill-sides, is known as ground water. In road cuts such water sometimes makes the road very muddy, and the road then needs what road builders call underdrain. ous to know more about the place and age. A good kind of underdrainage is its people. So it is a fine advertisea trench to go along under the side ment of Calboun. with loose stones the ground water, slimy ditch water." instead of soaking into the roadway. will stop among the stones and flow down the hill through the pipe.

To keep a road smooth and crowned the best method is to drag it with a road drag. A road drag is made easily with two halves of a log which has been split. The log should be about 6 or 8 inches in thickness and about 6 or 8 feet long. The two halves of the log are set 2 feet apart with the smooth faces forward and upright. They are then fastened together with braces set in holes bored through the log. A pair of horses may be used to drag the road and are hitched to a chain fastened to the front half of the log. The road drag should move forward so that it slants across the road in such a way that a small amount of earth will slide past the smooth face of the log toward the center of the road, thus forming the The edges of the logs will smooth out the ruts. The best way to drag is to begin at the side ditch and go up one side of the road, and then down the other. In the next trip the drag should be started a little nearer the center and the last trip over the road the drag may work close to the center itself. Small ridges of earth will be thrown in the horse-track and smeared by the round side of the log smoothly over the road. The smear ing of the earth by the drag is called "puddling" and it tends to make the surface of the road smooth and water tight after the sun comes out. The road is always dragged after it has rained and not when it is dry. A good strong pair of horses with a well-built drag, can drag about 3 or 4 miles of road in a day, and it is the best way to maintain good roads. In every county some farmer along each miles of road should own a drag and drag the road when it rains, and he would always find the road in good condition when he goes to market.

Owing to the fact that many rural schools were closed at the time when the prize maintenance essay was an nounced by Director Logan Waller Page of the Office of Public Roads, it has been decided to extend the limit for receiving the essays to October 15, 1913. In addition to the gold medal given as first prize, two silver medals will be given as second and third prizes. If a child who has submitted one essay previous to the issue of this notice should care to try again, he is at liberty to do so, but he must be a pupil of a rural school. There is some misunderstanding in regard to the subject of the essay. The idea is to set the children thinking how to better their earth roads with the material they have at hand.

Even more remarkable than the little park is the Log Cabin, and still more noteworthy are the women who conceived and executed this and other civic betterments. They wisely said after the cabin was built, "It must be a rest room for country women and children as well as the meeting place for the club." And this came to pass.

This vine clad cabin is set in the midst of an extensive lawn, with roses and shrubbery. It has a spacious rock chimney and wide verandas, with rough cedar posts. It contains two large rooms, with invatories, running water and all the things that go to make such a place useful and restful. It is heated in winter, lighted with electricity, has a plano, a library of several hundred books and reading ta bles supplied with newspapers and

A paid matron is at the cabin during business hours to look after the little children of the country women who come to town to trade at the stores. This beneficent feature of the cabin's administration can be best appreciated by those who have "clerked" in a country store and seen the painful efforts of a woman to shop with a baby in her arms, while other cross and whining youngsters were pulling at her skirts or racing up and down the store, bent on getting into something out of which they must be dragged or coaxed by the anxious storekeeper or the harried mother. So the cabin being business. It pays! So well has the rest house proved its right to be that the town council now donates $60 and the county commissioner $50 annually for its upkeep. Getting $110 a year from town and county officials for such a purpose is not the least of the things done by the eighty-six members of the Calhoun Woman's club, of which Mrs. C. C. Harlan is president and Mrs. H.

Ogden is corresponding secretary. If this little story of a Georgia village's venture in civic uplift induces other public spirited women to start something, its object will have been attained and its writer will be glad to have done something to help make life in little places more endurablemore useful.
