SMALL PARKS BEAUTY

Well for Growing Cities to Make Provision for This Necessity of the Future.

In cities the range of vision seldom ascends beyond the first story of the buildings aligning our streets. It is therefore evident that many people, if confined night and day to commercial centers, would not see even the little smack of nature afforded by a study of or casual look at the sky. We must, then, create natural scenery in city or at least reproduce nature as far as lies in our power when circumscribed by the demands of traffic and influences, must be forced upon otherwise purely artificial city scenes. This is possible only through small neighborhood parks, street trees and planted parkings, no matter how narrow and ribbon-like the latter may hasn't much time for a formerly common conception of civic art. He says: "So long as art is regarded as a trimming, a species of crochet work to be stitched in ever-increasing quantitles to the garments of life, it is vain to expect its true importance to be recornized. Civic art is too often understood to consist of filling our streets with marble fountains, dotting our squares with groups of statuary, twining our lampposts with wriggling acanthus leaves or dolphin's tails, and our buildings with meaningless bunches of fruit and flowers tied up with impossible stone ribbons."

Counting Molecules,

A French mathematician has tried to convey to our minds some notion of the infinitesimal size of the molecule. He declares that if a person were to try to count the number of molecules in a cubic millimeter of hydrogen gas, taking one-billionth of a second to repeat each number, the task would occupy him for more than 1.000 years .- Youth's Companion.

Labels That Won't Come Off. To label a bottle so that the label is waterproof and cannot fall off, the following plan is recommended in "Camera Craft:" A strip of black passepartout binding tape long enough to reach round the bottle and to overlap a little is used, and the writing is done with white ink or paint. A little hot paraffin wax poured over it makes it waterproof. The white letters on a background can be read in a very feeble light.

Faults of Preachers. Mr. Cowan points out that preachers have a remarkable lack of common sense when choosing their texts. He has heard of an Edinburgh minister who preached a sermon on miserly brother cleric from the words, "And the beggar died."
