Sour Stomach Makes a Sour Man

This is the day of the optimist. The "don't worry" man is a genial, smiling chap who looks foward to a bright future of health and happiness and wealth too, of course.

The pessimist is scorned. He is blamed for a surely and gloomy disposition and receives no sympathy for his morbid forbodings.

It isn't altogether right.

Many a man gets the reputation for having a sour disposition, when the truth of the matter is that he has a sour stomach.

Actors Don't Use Walking Sticks. There is one profession that has always refrained from carrying a walking stick. The actor knows well that on the stage he must walk without extraneous support, and he knows that the mere hint of a walking stick in his hand as he walks the streets is a temptation to lean this way or that. Actors, even when out of a job, never lean on a stick. They know that their balanced walk is their asset. If the whole of society recurs to walking sticks the actors will refrain.

Roman Custom.

It was a custom even among the comparatively modern Romans to bury with their little children their favorite toys, and the custom seems to reach back to the earliest times of which we have any truthworthy relics. In- hausen, Keeper of Recdeed, in our own day, the doll fur- ords and Seal. nishes a striking example of that most primitive trait, mother instinct, for among many savage tribes, notably the Bechnanas and the Basutos, it is the custom for married women to lavish their pent up mother love upon rude dolls until the advent of their offspring.

Applying Logic.

Janie was visiting in a family orthodox to the point of deprecating even the public saying of grace by the feminine members of the household. Jarle, the matter having been explained to her in the long wait ensuing upon the father's breakfast tardiness, pondered and finally uttered an impertment ultimatum. "Well, if women can eat out loud, I don't see why they can't pray out loud when they say 'Thank you God,' for the food!"
