...about her head, and looking at her...
 "This is Mr. Tamerlin's house. I was told."
 "You won't you come in?" Flo put on her nicest "welcoming" smile. Her visitor entered, and deliberately looked about the living room.
 "He has made it all very homelike for you, hasn't he?"
 She sank into one of the hickory chairs, and removed her hat, leaning her head back on the brown cushion.
 "I love it," said Flo impulsively. "It's the happiest summer we've ever spent. It's an ideal place for a honeymoon."
 "How long since—since you came here?"
 "About two weeks! But we shall stay here until fall." She looked Flo over curiously, with little hard lines about her mouth as though she wanted to cry. "Do you really love him in so short a time?"
 "Love him? I don't know. I like to see each other like two little just-married girls."
 "Are you talking of my husband?" demanded Flo, haughtily, as haughtily as she could from five foot two.
 "I am speaking of the man who, by all laws of love and good faith should be my husband," retorted the stranger. Flo realized as she put back her long white veil that she was very young too, and just at this instant her face was colorless.
 "This whole house was built for me, for my honeymoon, do you hear? I only returned from British Columbia yesterday and found that Billie Tamerlin had broken his word to me and I have come for my things."
 "Your things?" Flo tried to explain as light broke on her.
 "You needn't try to claim them too, at all. I sent them down the day before we were to be married. Two trunks and my books and a lot of things from my room at college. It was all arranged and had been for weeks, weeks, do you hear?" She was clenching the edge of the little oak table until her white kid gloves parted at the seams. "My brother and father didn't like Billie, and I was going to run away with him, and—then a letter came from the West from dad, and he was horribly ill, and so of course I went to him. I left word for Billie, and find he never received the letter. I was frightened, and in haste to catch the first train West, and left the letter on my bureau. Oh, it is all such a terrible mixup, and I hate the sight of you, whoever you are."
 Flo stood amazed at the reckless heartbroken flood of words. Outside on the veranda there came the sound of masculine footsteps, and she turned with relief as Tamerlin and Drake, her own blessed, honeymooning Drake, entered the room.
 Tamerlin never stopped for conventionalities. With two steps he reached the side of the stranger, and took her into his embrace right before his tenants. It did Flo good to see him grip her firmly, masterfully, and plant kisses after kisses in the proper spirit on her lips.
 "We'll step outside for a few minutes," Drake began tactfully, but Tamerlin stopped him.
 "Don't, Edgerly. I want you to meet Miss Creston. She will be Mrs. Tamerlin just as soon as I can dig up the gentleman who ties love knots around here with swiftness and dexterity."
 "I thought you had grown tired waiting, Billie," came a little muffled tone from the head on his shoulder. Flo and Drake stared out the door at the gleaming quicksilver of the sea at high noon far below them. "I thought she was your wife."
 "Where would I have found a wife in six weeks? Didn't I hang around and munch my heart waiting for some word from you? I thought you had gone away for good, of course, and rented the shack when the chance turned up. Edgerly, will you slyly slip this place back to me?"
 "Just looking up the next train on to Shepherd's Landing," responded Drake, with a cheerful smile of renunciation.

Protecting Wild Life.
 The permanent wild life protection fund, which W. T. Hornaday of New York has been instrumental in collecting during the last two years, now amounts to more than $73,000. The income of this fund is to be used for conducting a nation-wide campaign during the next hundred years in behalf of wild-life protection. Efforts will be made to stop the sale of wild game, promote laws to prevent unscrupulous hunters from owning or using rifles and shotguns, stop all spring and late winter shooting, stop all killing of insectivorous birds for food and of all birds for millinery purposes. Increase the number of game preserves. It is proposed to begin next September a campaign in favor of creating game sanctuaries in the national forests on a very comprehensive scale.

An Obligation.
 "Our friend always puts his best foot forward, although he is a trifle uncooth."
 "Yes," replied Senator Sorghum; "a man who puts his best foot forward ought to be careful at least to keep his shoes polished."
A Street Brawl.
 "Lay off me! Lay off me!" said the first tough citizen.
 "Before I hit yer, tell me dia," said the second tough citizen.
 "Huh!"
 "Wot's yer fav'rite hospital?"

Fish.
 Alice—Remember, there are just as good fish in the sea as ever were caught.
 George—Yes, but a fish that's caught is worth two or three in the sea.

Sensitive and Transmissive.
 "That young woman has the plane from the very dining room table," said Edgerly.
 "Such a degree as to make it nervous and horrible, and to accomplish this they had recourse to the most forced situations, to the delineation of coarse outlines of passion and to a fiction which was unnatural, forced and hom-

ROQUE GONZALES GARZA

He says any pacification plan that recognizes Carranza and does not include the Villistas as factors in the situation will mean nothing but anarchy in Mexico.

INHABITED ONLY BY CHILDREN

Both the German and Russian armies have marched through and fought around this village of Rosen. Newspaper correspondents found there only ruins and children when they passed through in the rear of the advancing Germans.
