The "Girl" chances to ride by, is interested by her very When twilight comes, my daddy takes first glimpse of the fascinating stranger, comes to his aid and binds up the wound with part of her bonnet-

This is the beginning of the romance between the "Girl" and the road-agent, whom she knows only as 'Mr. Johnson." Not knowing that the "Girl" is the proprietor of the Polka saloon in Cloudy, but having heard that the miners leave their gold in the care of the woman who runs that place, Ramerrez plans to rob the establishment. He goes to the saloon himself in advance, and there meets Rance, the sheriff-gambler, whose ealousy at once becomes apparent and who is prevented from making trouble for the stranger then and there only because the "Girl" vouches for him.

From this point exciting events folow in rapid succession. While Rance s following a blind trail for the roadgent, Ramerrez has an early morning breakfast with the "Girl" at her cabin. In attempting to leave he is seriously wounded by Rance and apprehended, though the "Girl" seeks to
