HOW DADDY KEPT HIS HIRED MAN
 By F. J. Milnes, President National Indoor Game Association, Downers Grove, Ill.

 "So he drove 24 miles," said Mother presently, "out of sheer hunger for friendship." Her eyes were still resting on the horizon. Finally she turned toward Daddy and spoke more abruptly. "John, did it ever occur to you it might be a paying investment to fix up a social room where our men could have their recreations at home? Suppose we took the lower granary for that purpose. Suppose we even spent three or four months' wages in buying some games and contraptions that men like as furniture for this room. Put in a half dozen chairs, a card table and supply it with some papers and some sporting news magazines." "Nah," said I, "reading and wouldn't keep him at home. What he wants is a pair of boxing gloves and a pool table. Then his friends would come to see him."

"Very well," said Mother, "suppose we got him some boxing gloves and a pool table. The things would last for some years and their expense would be more than counterbalanced if we could avoid this drought. How do we have every year to have our crops parched and would we not have some- thing to show for it?"

"I would retire earlier and get their rest. And I believe also that they would appreciate this to the extent that we might find it to be a good paying in-vestment in the long run."
 "Sure, Daddy," I butted in, "get a pool table and I'll work like a trooper to help pay for it."
 "Yes," said Daddy, "I'm afraid your working like a trooper would be at the pool table instead of in the fields. You'd stay up all night playing pool and you and the man wouldn't be worth your salt the next day."
 "No," said Mother, "that wouldn't necessarily follow; we could place restrictions as to the hours for play, just as we have to anyhow. Everything has to be governed by reasonable reg-ulations, even your horses and cows; and the more I think about it, the more I am of the opinion that it ought to be given a trial."
 At that Daddy jumped up as if he had been shot out of a cannon and started off on a quick pace for the barn. There he and the hired man had some words, as a result of which the hired man stayed with us from that day until this, or at least up to the time I last heard from home. Re-turning from the barn, Daddy told me that the hired man had agreed to stay with us on condition that we fix up a room according to Mother's proposal, and that the man and I were to make over the lower granary for the pur-pose. We agreed to work at this in the evenings after chores.

In two weeks the trick was done, and not many days later the room was well equipped, including my much de-sired pool table. We also built a little alcove leading off from the main room in which we placed a comfortable bed, a small rug and a rocking chair. This was to be our man's bedroom where he maintains a little more privacy, quite distinct from the larger room where he meets his friends.
 And that's how Daddy kept his hired man. "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy"—and the hired man a quitter.

THE MANONTHEGROUND.
 Not so very long ago, when the gov-ernment stepped into the fight be-tween the mail order house and the rural merchant, and organized the rural free delivery system and the parcel post, many a good merchant threw up his hands and calmly ex-pired in a business way. But the wise man, the man who used his head, began to figure what he could get out of the parcel post and the free deliv-ery that would give him a chance to compete with the mail order house. Like all great inspirations, the an-swer was simple: "Do as the mail order man does. Get a mailing list and go after the business." And the "manontheground" got busy. In the first place he had his local paper, which circulated throughout his terri-tory each week, or daily in some cases. He advertised with catchy spe-cials, and got people to write in for them, sending them out by parcel post. He got a list of every buyer in his territory, went to the newspaper office and had some attractive cir-culars printed and circulated his names. After a while he had a com-plete mail-order list of satisfied cus-tomers. People found they could get goods right at home, practically, for the same money they could buy them for in the large cities, and goods came quicker. There were no waits, no broken packages nor missing ar-ticles. In fact, the "manontheground" proved to them that he had a mail-order house right at their doors that could deliver the goods as cheaply and quicker than the catalog houses. And the "manontheground" got the business. The lesson in this little tale is that you should have a mailing list of your customers.

FOND MEMORIES.

I remember, I remember the house where I was born; my memory goes back to when hoop skirts and such were worn.

I remember, I remember the Emma Abbot shows; I remember when the ladies of the chorus wore their clothes.

I remember, I remember the Merry Widow hat, the ping-pong craze, the Sousa march, the pompadour and "rat."

I remember, I remember when croquet was quite a game, when square pianos were in vogue, and archery the same.

I remember, I remember the horse-hair furniture, and when a burlesque queen in tights the glided youth would lure.

I remember, I remember the leg o' mutton sleeve, and when the hobble skirt was new—what fame it did achieve!

I remember, I remember the two-step and the waltz, and the melodrama villain who always played us false.

I remember, I remember—and with these words I close—when theatrical attractions were not moving picture shows.

THE COLOR LINE.

Last summer at Bar Harbor I circled with my arm A shirt-waist made of figured silk That had a wondrous charm. At home, down in a quiet lane Where we could not be seen, I hold within my close embrace A lovely grenadine.

ACTION OF SINGLE SPOON-FUL SURPRISES MANY.

Downers Grove people who bought the simple mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., known as Adler-I-Ka, are surprised at the INSTANT effect of a SINGLE SPOONFUL. This remedy is so complete a bowel cleanser that it is used successfully in appendicitis. Adler-I-Ka acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel and ONE SPOON-FUL relieves almost ANY CASE of constipation, sour or gassy stomach. ONE MINUTE after you take it the gasses rumble and pass out.
