

WELLAND CANAL OBJECT OF ALLEGED PLOTTERS

Federal authorities in the East believe the alleged plot of Paul Koenig, head of the detective bureau of the Ham- burg-American line, to blow up the Welland canal is only an incident in a vast conspiracy. The illustration shows a part of the canal, which connects Lake Ontario with Lake Erie. At the right is Koenig and at the left R. E. Leyen-decker, an art dealer, under arrest as one of the alleged conspirators.

INTERIOR OF TURKISH FORT ON GALLIOLI

Interior of Turkish fortifications on the Gallipoli peninsula, with a body of troops about to move to the first-line trenches.

SHARPSHOOTERS IN WHITE AND ON SNOWSHOES

The mountain fighting in which the Germans are engaged has made it necessary to draw on those German soldiers who are snowshoe adepts. The photograph shows a patrol of these men, garbed in white uniforms, to make them almost invisible against the white background and equipped with their snowshoes, taking a head on the enemy in the Vosges mountains.

KING OF ITALY WATCHING HIS SOLDIERS

A striking photograph taken on the heights of Cadore while the king of Italy, accompanied by his minister of war and the commander in chief of the Italian armies, was watching the movements of the fighting forces. King Victor Emmanuel has his eyes fixed to the great field glasses.

GIVEN TO HER DESCENDANT

A beautiful statuette of Pocahontas, Indian maid famed in history and ancestor of President Wilson's bride, was presented to the White House couple by the Pocahontas Memorial association, an organization made up of Washington women. It is in bronze and is a replica of the statue that will be erected at Jamestown, Va. The statuette is 18 inches high and the sculptor, William Ordway Partridge of New York.

FROM ALL OVER

Argentina is getting more of the war business than any other country except the United States. Since France and a wet summer in England have caused a honey shortage there. There are 1,200,000 dollars in the market. The price of wheat has risen.

Paris is the size of Spain, France, Germany and Italy put together. The Atlas moth, a species found in China, has wings which measure almost twelve inches across when fully spread. In July, 1915, according to a government estimate, there were 190,677,000 farm animals in the United States, a gain in a year of about 7,000,000.

Elaine looked at the man. He jumped at the sound of the door opening. Later in the day he told Mary to go and get Mrs. Frick for the name of the girl who had the window garden. Mrs. Frick obediently supplied the name, but of Elaine's present whereabouts she professed profound ignorance. "I told her I wouldn't have any more around with flowers and that my neighbors would be suing me for damages what with her carelessness in dropping flower pots about, and so she packed her trunk and went away—good riddance I say." When Mary repeated this conversation to her master, Arthur frowned blackly. "If I hadn't been out there listening to her singing, the pot would not have landed between my inquisitive eyes," he groaned. Three times during the ensuing week Elaine telephoned an inquiry concerning Arthur's injury, and when Mary told her the last time that all traces of it had disappeared the inquiries ceased. It was six months after that when Arthur Pierce walking through the street heard Elaine's voice once more. She was singing the same song and with her voice there blended a score of childish trebles. The kindergarten was a tiny, low-roofed building, with casement windows opening upon a sunny garden. Arthur leaped the fence and crossed the grass to the open window. With arms on the sill and his hat tucked under his arm, he listened, staring with all his might at the girl whose face he had never seen before, but whose voice had charmed him by its sweetness during long hours while he had gone about with eyes bandaged after a delicate operation to save his vision. Now he could actually see her and she was as fair as her voice. He used to marvel how anyone could live in Mrs. Frick's dreary domain and sing so cheerily. Round-eyed children eyed him with amusement as they sang and it was a gurgling of merriment that attracted Elaine's attention. Her voice ended suddenly and the childish voices trailed into silence. "What do you want?" she asked gravely. "I heard your voice singing," he said humbly, "and I wanted to actually see you." "Oh, are you Mr. Pierce. Won't you come in?" He came in and Elaine gave him a seat on the low platform. "You can see?" she said gladly. He explained the nature of his temporary blindness. "I'm glad it happened," he said bluntly. "If it hadn't I never should have met you."

"Some day I shall have a real garden—with worms and caterpillars and everything," she laughed to cover her confusion. "I'm sure you will," he said with sudden gravity. The next day he bought an old-fashioned place in the suburbs. For months he supervised its repairs and remodeling, and one October day he took Elaine to see it and asked her to be his wife. "I really can't resist this lovely garden," she said, with a happy smile. (Copyright, 1915, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Should It Be True? Here's some strange news. A scientist says that women are talking less, and if the decline keeps up the women of 1900 will forget to use their only weapon. "Women are not the persistent, animated conversationalists that they were twenty years ago," says the learned man. "Take, for instance, women in restaurants and at public places of all kinds, where they are seen freely moving about with men. Everywhere you see the men taking not only their own shares in the conversation, but even leading it in many cases. At receptions, too, and at public dinners the fair sex seems, for some time now, to be letting the reins of conversation slip from their hands. One explanation for this queer state of affairs is that women, with their growing interest in outside doings, in business and politics and in the strenuous pursuits of careers independent of men, are becoming more and more self-absorbed." And only the other day a man sued for separation because his wife had a habit of waking him up in the dead of night to nag him.

Fruit Diet and Beauty. A diet of oranges will clear muddy complexions and reduce superabundant curries. Lemon, taken internally, quenches thirst and prevents the bad habit of overindulgence in ice water. Lemons clear the skin, assist digestion and have a tendency to rid one of obesity. Applied externally, they are a black, which will remove stains from fingers and neck, freckles from arms and cheeks and other sallow blemishes. Pineapple will sweeten the voice, restore the quality if it has grown husky and assist digestion, which means that it will help to beautify the complexion. Apricots are used for the same purpose and are much favored by the Orientals.

Remote Possibility. Gardens is a crank about chimneys. He has all sorts of more or less artistic chimneys rising from his country home. "What's the idea?" "I don't know, but he seems to be an optimist." "In what particular?" "He evidently doesn't think his place will ever be a target for Zeppelins."

Elaine looked at the man. He jumped at the sound of the door opening. Later in the day he told Mary to go and get Mrs. Frick for the name of the girl who had the window garden. Mrs. Frick obediently supplied the name, but of Elaine's present whereabouts she professed profound ignorance. "I told her I wouldn't have any more around with flowers and that my neighbors would be suing me for damages what with her carelessness in dropping flower pots about, and so she packed her trunk and went away—good riddance I say." When Mary repeated this conversation to her master, Arthur frowned blackly. "If I hadn't been out there listening to her singing, the pot would not have landed between my inquisitive eyes," he groaned. Three times during the ensuing week Elaine telephoned an inquiry concerning Arthur's injury, and when Mary told her the last time that all traces of it had disappeared the inquiries ceased. It was six months after that when Arthur Pierce walking through the street heard Elaine's voice once more. She was singing the same song and with her voice there blended a score of childish trebles. The kindergarten was a tiny, low-roofed building, with casement windows opening upon a sunny garden. Arthur leaped the fence and crossed the grass to the open window. With arms on the sill and his hat tucked under his arm, he listened, staring with all his might at the girl whose face he had never seen before, but whose voice had charmed him by its sweetness during long hours while he had gone about with eyes bandaged after a delicate operation to save his vision. Now he could actually see her and she was as fair as her voice. He used to marvel how anyone could live in Mrs. Frick's dreary domain and sing so cheerily. Round-eyed children eyed him with amusement as they sang and it was a gurgling of merriment that attracted Elaine's attention. Her voice ended suddenly and the childish voices trailed into silence. "What do you want?" she asked gravely. "I heard your voice singing," he said humbly, "and I wanted to actually see you." "Oh, are you Mr. Pierce. Won't you come in?" He came in and Elaine gave him a seat on the low platform. "You can see?" she said gladly. He explained the nature of his temporary blindness. "I'm glad it happened," he said bluntly. "If it hadn't I never should have met you."

"Some day I shall have a real garden—with worms and caterpillars and everything," she laughed to cover her confusion. "I'm sure you will," he said with sudden gravity. The next day he bought an old-fashioned place in the suburbs. For months he supervised its repairs and remodeling, and one October day he took Elaine to see it and asked her to be his wife. "I really can't resist this lovely garden," she said, with a happy smile. (Copyright, 1915, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Should It Be True? Here's some strange news. A scientist says that women are talking less, and if the decline keeps up the women of 1900 will forget to use their only weapon. "Women are not the persistent, animated conversationalists that they were twenty years ago," says the learned man. "Take, for instance, women in restaurants and at public places of all kinds, where they are seen freely moving about with men. Everywhere you see the men taking not only their own shares in the conversation, but even leading it in many cases. At receptions, too, and at public dinners the fair sex seems, for some time now, to be letting the reins of conversation slip from their hands. One explanation for this queer state of affairs is that women, with their growing interest in outside doings, in business and politics and in the strenuous pursuits of careers independent of men, are becoming more and more self-absorbed." And only the other day a man sued for separation because his wife had a habit of waking him up in the dead of night to nag him.

Fruit Diet and Beauty. A diet of oranges will clear muddy complexions and reduce superabundant curries. Lemon, taken internally, quenches thirst and prevents the bad habit of overindulgence in ice water. Lemons clear the skin, assist digestion and have a tendency to rid one of obesity. Applied externally, they are a black, which will remove stains from fingers and neck, freckles from arms and cheeks and other sallow blemishes. Pineapple will sweeten the voice, restore the quality if it has grown husky and assist digestion, which means that it will help to beautify the complexion. Apricots are used for the same purpose and are much favored by the Orientals.

Remote Possibility. Gardens is a crank about chimneys. He has all sorts of more or less artistic chimneys rising from his country home. "What's the idea?" "I don't know, but he seems to be an optimist." "In what particular?" "He evidently doesn't think his place will ever be a target for Zeppelins."

Dr. F. LeBlanc, Physician and Surgeon. Office and residence at North Street, Downers Grove, Ill. Office hours—9 to 12 A. M., 1 to 5 P. M., 6 to 8 P. M.

EDGAR D. OTTO, Engineer-Contractor, Surveys, Plans, Estimates, Building Construction. Phone 100 W 1, Downers Grove, Ill.

MARY S. DIENER, Graduate Nurse, Ev. Deaconess Hospital, PHONE 98-21, DOWNERS GROVE, P. O. Box 21 Res. 109 Ross Ct.

Cut Flowers, Sweet Peas, Roses, Bouquets for Weddings and other Occasions. Set Pieces for Funerals. C. V. WOLF, Tel. 126-J, 153 Prairie Ave.

L. KLEIN, Meat Market, Fresh or Salted Meats, Fish or Game in season, Imported and Domestic CREESE. Phone 10, 32 S. Main St.

NEWHOME, Sewing Machine advertisement with illustration of a woman and a sewing machine. "I'll get it for my wife". NO OTHER LIKE IT. NO OTHER AS GOOD.

MERTZ & MOCHEL, Downers Grove, Painters and Decorators. Country work a specialty. My figures are right and my work is Guaranteed. address P. O. Box 349, Res. 235 E. Franklin Street, Downers Grove, Illinois.

T. E. BROOKS, Auto Moving, Packing, STORAGE. Tel. 15, Res. 198, 13 W. Railroad St.

W. H. BLODGETT, Fire and Tornado Insurance. Companies the Best—100 years in business. Agent for the Traveler's Insurance Company. Life, Accident and Health. RENTING, TELEPHONE No. 7.

A. P. Mehren, Electrical Contractor, Heating Apparatus, Lamps, Fixtures, Houses Wired. 19 Railroad St. Phone, office 62-2; res. 70.

To Reach Home, A. P. Mehren.

VICTORY CHAPTER, No. 10, Royal Legion, Downers Grove, Ill. Hold a monthly meeting on the 2nd Tuesday of each month in the rooms of the members. Officers of the chapter: Regent, Mrs. E. H. DeGroot; Mrs. H. W. Babcock, Secretary.

MAPLE CAMP NO. 10, M. W. A. meets the 4th Thursday of each month in the Morris hall. W. E. Choate, V. C.; A. H. Hartman, W. A.; R. O. Miller, Clerk.

NAPER POST, No. 68, G. A. R. meets the 2nd Saturday, 2:30 P. M., of each month in G. A. R. hall. Captain T. E. Rogers, Commander; F. A. Rogers, Senior Vice-Commander; Geo. T. Hughes, Junior Vice-Commander; E. W. Farrar, Officer of the Day; R. W. Bond, Adjutant; Geo. H. Heert, Quartermaster.

GROVE LODGE NO. 50, M. W. A. meets the 4th Thursday of each month in the Morris hall. W. E. Choate, V. C.; A. H. Hartman, W. A.; R. O. Miller, Clerk.

VESTA CHAPTER, No. 10, M. O. E. S. meets the 2nd and 4th days of each month. Laura Heintz, Worthy Matron; Walter Chapman, Worthy Patron; Osa Lower, Secretary.

ROYAL NEIGHBORS OF AMERICA, Honor Camp, No. 503, meets the 1st Thursday evening of each month in the hall. Mrs. Curtis Barrows, Grand; Miss Agnes Venard, Recorder.

MARTIN F. POZDAL, Painter, Paper Hanger and Decorator. By Day or Contract. Country work a specialty. My figures are right and my work is Guaranteed. address P. O. Box 349, Res. 235 E. Franklin Street, Downers Grove, Illinois.