TWENTY-TWO YEARS AGO IN THE REPORTER

(From the issue of October 17, 1895.)

In the case of the village vs. Eli J. Jacobson, of Chicago, for distributing intoxicating liquors in the village in violation of ordinance, case called at four o'clock Wednesday, in police magistrate's court, the defendant entered a plea of guilty and was fined $50 and costs.

Samuel Curtiss and wife of Diamond, visited with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Curtiss, over Sunday. Mr. Samuel Curtiss has been instrumental in organizing a village incorporation at Diamond and is one of village fathers of the new improvement.

Mr. and Mrs. George Caskey's hearts were gladdened last week by the arrival of a nice healthy boy, a twelve pounder.

Miss Lou Wylie is spending her two weeks vacation on the farm of her uncle, T. M. Wylie, near Tampico.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy L. Bush will soon occupy the house being built by G. C. Luce, on Gilbert avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lower have moved into their new residence on the north side.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Cooper rejoice over the arrival of a new boy at their home Sunday morning.
Express messenger Smith came in off his route Thursday and found company a this house. A young son had preceded him two days.
Last Sunday evening Fred Appleburg, an employee of Fred Schramm, who lives about one and one half miles south of town, while walking to his employers home, was confronted and held up by three men near Prentiss' corners.

TRESPASSERS KILLED SHEEP

The following incident partially explains why farmers always display signs about their property, "No Trespassing."
The Joe Kline farm, about four miles west of Wheaton on the Geneva road, is thus picardecad, but last Sunday about 100 people swarmed into his woods and pastures. That evening a fine sheep was found to be missing, and after much search it was discovered in the woods Tuesday afternoon with its front legs tied with a white handkerchief, having the initial "K" in one corner. The animal was taken to the barn, but was dead Wednesday morning. The sheep was worth about $30 for the mutton alone.
One could hardly blame the farmers if they used drastic measures in such cases, but it is just one of numerous misdemeanors with which the tillers of the soil have to contend.

"ON TRIAL" MAKES PICTURE WITH THRILLS

Intensely Dramatic Offering to be Shown at Curtiss, Thursday Oct. 25th.

"On Trial," the most intensely dramatic stage production in recent years which created a sensation when offered by Cohan & Harris, has been filmed by Essanay.

Dramatic critics proclaimed it an innovation in theatrics. The play opened with a court room scene. Robert Strickland was on trial for the murder of his erstwhile friend, Gerald Trask. Ten thousand dollars in bank notes, missing from Trask's home safe, was claimed as the motive for the murder. Strickland, acting like a maniac, proclaimed himself guilty. He did not want a trial, even. It seemed almost certain that the death penalty would be the jury's verdict and Strickland awaited it eagerly.

As, one by one the witnesses took the stand to testify in the trial, the scenes would revert back to those surrounding the murder. Glover, the victim's secretary, re-enacted his part as a witness to the crime. The victim's wife did likewise, and at last Mrs. Strickland, wife of the defendant, took the stand. Here again the scenes reverted back to the day of the murder. It was Mrs. Strickland's confession of a hidden past with Trask, of his persecution of her, after her marriage, and finally of her having bowed before his evil will in order to save her happiness. After her visit to Trask's apartment, she is shown confessing her deed to her husband. Strickland, driven temporarily insane by his friend's betrayal, rushes to the apartment and slays Trask. Robbery was not the motive, however. It develops that Glover had taken advantage of this opportunity to cover his crime, had stolen the $10,000. The verdict is "not guilty."
Exactly as it appears on the stage, "On Trial" was filmed. Unhappened by the limited opportunities offered by the stage, the picturization is even a greater hit than the drama.

"DOWN TO EARTH"

Artcraft Presents Douglas Fairbanks in a Comedy of Purpose with Plenty of Zip

"Down to Earth," is a comedy of the kind that delights and entertains for the moment and, in addition, puts over a totality of effect which leaves a clear impression on the audience mind. There is no dispersing of attention, as in a mere vehicle to display a talented artist's favorite style, perplexing spectators to follow the story—none of that, but straight and harmonious structural charm from the outset to the end.
It is in a genuine dramatic composition of this kind that Douglas Fairbanks really appears to best advantage.

In a chivalrous attempt to rescue a lovely young girl from a fake sanitarium, whose patients are permitted to indulge their half-imaginary diseases, and, at the same time, cure her of destructive habits acquired in a lifetime of self-indulgence, he purchases the good will and clientele of the place and smuggles the patients collectively aboard his yacht to avoid a pretended smallpox quarantine. He carries them all to a supposed desert isle, which in reality is a slice of headland cut off from civilization by inaccessible hills except through a single pass, where he posts a negro to impersonate a wild man.
On this supposed desert isle, the various types of neurotic and dyspeptic patients, each a distinct type, each rich enough to devote personal attention to "symptoms" are put through a rigorous course of training beside their activities in providing the necessities of life. The result solves a problem of our race and our times, but there is a pretty love story besides, and abundant comedy opportunity for the subordinate roles, at once a relief and an added charm.
This film will be shown at the Dicke Theatre this Thursday, October 25th.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and for years it was supposed to be incurable. Doctors prescribed local remedies, and by constantly falling to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Catarrh is a local disease, greatly influenced by constitutional conditions and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is a constitutional remedy, is taken internally and acts thru the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System. One Hundred Dollars reward is offered for any case that Hall's Catarrh Cure fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

CONTRACT LET FOR STRAIGHTENING OF TWELFTH STREET

The State Aid Road Committee of the Board of Supervisors let the contract on the 16th to A. F. Beckman of Glen Ellyn, to do the grading on the cut-off road, known as Twelfth street.
This road will commence at the end of Twelfth street at what is known as York Road and extend westerly thro' the Forest Preserve tract and over Salt Creek, connecting at the easterly end of Twelfth street near the schoolhouse on the Butterfield Road.
It is the intention to get the grading done before winter so that it may have a chance to settle and be ready to receive a hard surface next year.

Explains Corn's Fruitfulness.

Many plant students are led to wonder how ears of corn become so well potentiated that no vacancies occur among the kernels, for the tassels are so far above the silks and winds blow freely throughout the fields. But close observation has shown that there are 7,000 pollen grains to every ovule, and only one is necessary.

Fuel Value of Woods.
Elkory, oak, beech, birch, hard maple, ash, elm, locust, long-leaf pine and cherry have fairly high heat values, and only one cord of seasoned wood of those species is required to equal one ton of coal. Elkory, of the non-resinous woods, has the highest fuel value per unit volume of wood, and has other advantages. It burns evenly and, as housewives say, holds the heat. The oak comes next, followed by beech, birch and maple.

Put Outside the Law.
The strangest punishment which still survives in Great Britain under modern law is that of "outlawry." About ten years ago a lawyer charged with forging a check was "outlawed" in the Glasgow high court. By this sentence the person of the accused is declared forfeit. He cannot bear testimony in a court, nor sue, nor defend an action. He cannot act on a jury, nor vote at an election, nor act as tutor or guardian to another person. If anyone takes him he has no redress.
